Great Britain Faces Another War

PERIL FOR INDIA IN GREAT DRIVE OF BOLSHEVIKI

Cabinet Ministers Hurriedly Called to Paris to Confer With Lloyd-George Regarding the Situation.

FORMIDABLE FORCES FOR SOVIET REGIME

Enormous Supplies Obtained by Recent Victories and Britain Fears That Bolshevik Influence Will Cause War in Near East and Revolt in India.

London, January 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Before peace with Germany is a week old, the British public has been brought up sharply against the possibility of another war. Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for war; Walter Hume Long, first lord of the admiralty; Baron Beatty, commander of the grand fleet, and Field Marshal Sir Henry H. Wilson, chief of the imperial staff, left London tonight, having been hurriedly summoned to Paris for a consultation with Premier Lloyd-George and other British officials there on important military and naval matters.

This summons is inevitably connected in the public mind with the semi-official statement published today calling the attention to the threatening situation in the middle East as a result of bolshevik military successes which have given the soviets virtual mastery of the whole of European Russia, for, although it is not yet confirmed that they have entered Odessa, it is believed it cannot be long before they are in full possession of the coast regions in that vicinity.

By their victories the bolsheviki have obtained command of enormous supplies of food, raw materials, coal and rolling stock and other means of transport of which they formerly were in need.

Next Move of Bolsheviki.

Speculation is active in the European capitals as to what will be the next move of the bolsheviki. It is regarded as certain that, flushed with success, they will not be content with their present conquests, but will seek to extend bolshevism either eastward or westward. Expert military opinion inclines to the belief that their next move will be an attack on Poland and the Baltic states, and Warsaw dispatches to the London papers already indicate that the Poles are fully anticipating such a move.

The soviets now undoubtedly command formidable forces, but not sufficient to warrant an attempt to advance both east and west. Against the likelihood of an attack on Poland, which, it is said, would be popular with the red generals, is the fact that the bolsheviki flanks would be exposed on the north to an attack by the Letts and on the south to an attack by the Rumanians.

The semi-official statement issued at London today seems to indicate that the British government is more apprehensive of a move eastward, threatening India.

All these possibilities will be discussed by the important conference asembling at Paris. It is perhaps significant in connection with possible bolshevik activities in the middle East and the attitude of the Moslem populations generally toward England, that, whereas a fortnight ago it was stated that Premier Lloyd-George had been victorious in carrying the British view in favor of excluding the Turks from Constantinople and removing the capital of the new Turkey to Asia Minor against the wishes of Premier Clemenceau and the French statesmen who wished to retain the Turks in Constantinople, it is stated now that the French view is prevailing in the Paris conference.

British Press Sharply Divided.

This may be explained as possibly due to the new turn in events, as removal of the Caliphate from Constantinople would have produced a strong anti-British feeling throughout the Moslem world. It may be said that official circles here appear to be more impressed with the danger to British interests in the near and middle East through bolshevik propaganda than with possible military developments.

The British press is sharply divided into two divergent lines in connection with the government's treatment of the bolshevist question. One section, strongly anti-bolshevik, sharply attacks Premier

Brand New Scheme Proposed by Bryan To Get Pact Ratified

Nebraskan Arrives in Capital and Urges Democrats to "Walk Out" on Roll Call, Leaving Responsibility to Republicans.

DEMOCRATS ARE COLD TO BRYAN'S SCHEME

Senator Lodge and Other Republicans Confer With Democrats About Compromise — Lodge Says Beginning Has Been Made.

By Robert T. Barry.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, January 15.—William Jennings Bryan came to town today with a brand-new idea for ratification of the treaty of peace with Germany. The treaty could be ratified on the basis suggested by Mr. Bryan except for the fact that neither republicans nor democrats would accept it.

Mr. Bryan proposed that the democrats "walk out" when the roll was called for ratification with the Lodge reservations, leaving the republican majority of the senate to assume full responsibility. The democrats could, Mr. Bryan believes, then make a political issue of the destructive Lodge reservations to determine whether the people agreed with Mr. Wilson or Mr. Lowge on the scope of American participation in the league of nations.

Failed to Consider Bitter Enders.

The chief objection to Mr. Bryan's program, aside from the unwillingness of senate democrats to be regarded as "slackers" wasthat he failed to consider that 15 republican "bittter-enders" were a part of the senate majority which adopted the Lodge ratification, and that they would join the "bolting" democrats to prevent a quorum for ratification of the treaty with the Lodge reservations.

With the democratic minority walking out or remaining silent when the roll was called on the treaty ratification, the "bitter-ender" republicans who do not want the treaty ratified in any form, would be equally silent or absent and a quorum of the senate would not be possible.

Mr. Bryan appeared in the senate press gallery this afternoon to denounce newspaper headline writers for stating that he had broken with the president over the treaty, and to say in one breath that the treaty was bigger than politics, and in another to outline his plan of how the democrats could put the republicans in a hole by refusing to vote

Sir Oliver Lodge Arrives to Tell About Spooks

Scientist Asserts Spiritualism Strengthens Religion — Advises Weak-Minded to Keep Away From Ouija Board.

New York, January 15.—Sir Oliver Lodge, noted British scientist and leading exponent of spiritualism, declared on his arrival here today that spiritualism is not opposed to religion but on the contrary strengthens and supports it. "The survival of man can be proven," he said, "and that perception will strengthen the hands of true religion. I have no new religion to preach. All I say is that the essential parts of the old religion are all strengthened and supported by the new evidence. The result of accepting the facts under investigation is to strengthen faith and overthrow purely materialistic conceptions on the negative side."

Sir Oliver asserted that men who have lost their lives in the war have been communicated with but that they cannot be summoned although love and affection are the strongest forces attracting them. He said that while he understood that there were crooked mediums he had never met one.

"The next world is a phase," he

ALLIES DEMAND THAT HOLLAND YIELD KAISER

Supreme Council Has Drafted Note Asking for Extradition of Former German Ruler.

Paris, January 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The supreme council has drafted a note to the Dutch government asking for the extradition of the former German emperor. It will probably be sent Saturday.

The note refers to article 227 of the treaty of Versailles and invites Holland to join the allied powers in the accomplishment of this act.

Article 227 of the treaty of peace with Germany declares:

"The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II. of Hohenzollern, formerly German emperor, for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties.

"A special tribunal will be constituted to try the accused, thereby assuring him the guarantees essential to the right of defence. It will be composed of five judges, one appointed by each of the following powers—namely, the United States of America, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan."

The article also declares that it will be the duty of the tribunal to fix the punishment which it considers should be imposed.

Jailed For Trying To Burn the Effigy Of John Barleycorn

P. E. Keating Arrested by Officer Boozer and Held on Charge of Drunk and Disorderly.

Somebody must have been trying to put wood in P. E. Keating's alcohol last night. Anyway, Mr. Keating got real mad with old John Barleycorn, late in the evening, despite the fact that the police say his condition is evidence sufficient to prove that he was on intimate terms with the old monarch earlier in the evening, and did his best to burn up the effigy of the deposed ruler long before the hour set for his official incineration.

Keating was discovered, about 10:30, endeavoring to set fire to the bonfire and effigy of John at Five Points, which the n Anti-Saloo league people had prepared for the official celebration of the Eighteenth amendment, which goes into effect at 12:01 o'clock tonight.

And, to make the story perfect, it was Officer J. W. Boozer, of the local force, who prevented the untimely demise of John, saved the bonfire for its original fate, prevented the total spoiling of the big midnight celebration, and arrested the guileless Keating.

At the police station, Keating gave his age as 31 and address as 288 Central avenue, but failed to state whether his attempts to hold a private rehearsal of the dry victory were intended as a motion of protest or were inspired in the spirit of a true mourner at the cremation.

Right to Marriage And to Parenthood Wanted by Teachers

Birmingham, Ala., January 15.—Right to marriage and parenthood without thereby disqualifying themselves as teachers will be demanded as one of the principles of the Birmingham Federation of Teachers, organized here Tuesday.

City school regulations provide that marriage automatically shall end a woman's employment in local educational institutions. Repeal of this regulation will be sought by the federation, which has announced its intention to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

MEXICO IS SOWN WITH THE SEEDS OF BOLSHEVISM

Testimony to That Effect Given Senate Committee by an American Traveling Salesman.

POWER OF CARRANZA DUE TO UNITED STATES

Witness Says Mexic President Would Fall in Thirty Days But for Washington—American Women Tell of Outrages at Hands of Mexicans.

San Antonio, Texas, January 15.—Propagandists of bolshevism have spread their doctrine of radicalism from Sonora to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec within a year, the senate subcommittee investigating the Mexican situation was told today by an American traveling salesman. The witness was heard in executive session in order that he might be guarded to that extent by reprisals by Mexicans. He begged that his name be not used because he expects to return to Mexico.

Carranza, when forced to choose between two small armies in the south, one led by the federal commander and the other known as the bolshevik force, declared in favor of the latter, he assured the committee. Striking laboring men in other districts, he said, were frank in their declaration of support of the radical cause and almost everywhere he went he found undisguised evidence of the success of the extremist agitators.

"I have told the American consuls in Mexico about the conditions," he testified, "but I could always note that they were averse to hearing the facts, and especially anything reflecting unfavorably upon the Carranza government. They would rather converse with some fellow who knew nothing about Mexican conditions."

"Wilson Seems Hypnotized."

"Mr. Wilson seems to be hypnotized by Mr. Carranza," he added.

"If the American government should cease to support Carranza he would not last thirty days. The merchants and business men of Mexico want law and order, but they cannot hope for such while the bolshevik gang is upheld by the American government."

As an indication of the openness with which bolshevism is taught in Mexico, he told of a method employed in Guayamas, Sonora, when he was there a year ago. A man was making a speech in one of the public parks.

"The man got upon a bench and sang to attract the crowd," the witness said. "It was the hymn of the bolsheviki. When the crowd became larger he continued his speech and then he repeated the song. He had copies of the song

Teachers to Strike Unless Better Paid, Says Helen H. Taft

Daughter of Former President Declares Drives for Funds Have Been Started to Prevent Strike.

New York, January 15.—It would be better for college professors to strike in a body for higher pay than to strike individually by leaving their profession, declared Miss Helen H. Taft, acting president of Bryn Mawr college, in an address here tonight at a meeting held at the Bryn Mawr club in behald of the college's endowment fund campaign.

Miss Taft asserted it is to avert the necessity for a strike of any kind that the colleges of the country have launched their drives for funds. She declared that teachers already have begun to revolt against less than a living wage and that "radicals have appeared among the teachers in New York schools and one at least in Boston." Hundreds of schools in New York and Maine have had to close for lack of teachers, she said, and unless salaries are increased, "a few years will see us without teachers."

Discrimination.

"The discrimination against the teacher in contrast with those who

Young Atlanta Girl Making Big Success as Screen Star

One of the most striking instances of sincerity and fidelity in the creation of a screen role has just been furnished by Colleen Moore, 18-year-old film favorite, formerly a resident of Atlanta.

The real name of the beautiful young star is Colleen Morrison. She is the daughter of C. R. Morrison, a manufacturer, and was well known to many friends in Atlanta, where the family lived at 240 North Jackson street until several years ago, when they moved to Tampa, Fla.

Though she has been in motion pictures only three years, Miss Moore has scored repeated successes as leading woman for many of the screen's most noted male stars and also as a star in her own right. But she has just been given the biggest assignment of her career and with it her greatest opportunity. To make the most of that opportunity, she has gone through a week's course of training entirely unique in the history of motion pictures.

Production work has just started on an eight-reel superproduction of the newly-organized Hugh Dierker Photodrama Producing company, Colin Campbell, famous for years as a master director, is handling the megaphone, and Colleen Moore has the leading role. The Brunton studios in Los Angeles are the company's headquarters.

Neither the title nor the theme of this eight-reel feature has been announced, but it is known that Miss Moore's part is that of a blind girl. To properly prepare herself to enact the role with unerring faithfulness to real life, the star took into her home for an entire week a blind girl. The two were together practically all the time. The girl whose art calls upon her to act blind watched closely the girl whose misfortune it is to be blind. She watched her as she walked, as she talked, as she ate; noted the little mannerisms; studied to see wherein the blind girl was like other girls and wherein she was different.

At the end of the week the blind girl went back to her home and the girl who is to play blind went to her studio, hoping that in enacting the most pretentious role that has ever been hers she can make art make her truly natural —for such is the highest triumph of art.

WARNING ISSUED BY CENSUS HEAD

Atlanta Will Fall Behind Birmingham in Population Unless People Co-Operate With the Enumerators.

A warning was issued Thursday night by Walter O. Marshburn, census supervisor, to the people of Atlanta to the effect that if Atlantans did not co-operate with the census enumerators the official population of the city will fall far below that of Birmingham, which, according to newspaper reports, has already reached the 200,000 mark.

"The lack of co-operation with the census enumerators on the part of many Atlantans has created an alarming situation," said Mr. Marshburn Thursday night. "It has made the work of the census enumerators extremely difficult."

Eugene R. Black, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement Thursday night, in which he asserted that he was alarmed over the report that the census-takers are not receiving the co-operation to which they are entitled. Commenting further, he said:

Black Warns Atlantans.

"Reports from Birmingham indicate that that city has gone over the 200,000 mark. Unless the people here wake up to the fact that a census is being taken and see that each Atlantan is enrolled, Atlanta is going to fall behind Birmingham.

"In the past few years Atlanta has

Townsend Bill Given Indorsement at Annual Banquet of the Georgia State Automobile Association.

Resolutions promising the aid of its members in the war against automobile thieves and an endorsement of the Townsend bill proved the features of the fourth annual banquet of the Georgia State Automobile association, which was held last night at 6:30 o'clock at the Kimball House. W. Tom Winn acted as toastmaster.

The evening's events included interesting lectures regarding the betterment of the roads in this state.

W. Tom Winn, president of the organization, rendered his report for the last year. His report showed the part played by the association in the accomplishments of the year. The theme of the association's activities can be summmed up in the clause "advocacy of better roads in Georgia."

He sketched the result of a state system of main thoroughfares connecting main centers of commercial, agricultural, educational, social and religious activity. With hard surface roads, produce can be marketed to best advantage, he stated. Rural communities could be supplied by merchants and jobbers on a scheduled time, rain or shine.

Revision of Laws.

Mr. Winn reported a necessity for a revision of state laws, and states

JOHN BARLEYCORN BURNED IN EFFIGY THURSDAY NIGHT

While Celebrators and Mourners Look On, Many Gallons of Liquor, From Georgia Stills, Are Destroyed.

MASS MEETING HELD AT WESLEY MEMORIAL

Coming of National Prohibition Is Also Celebrated With "Sky Funeral" Over the City of Atlanta.

Keeping almost half the height of the big flag-pole, hopping to the explosive stimulus of gallons and gallons of contraband booze sprinkled on its blaze, bestowing on tried and true Five Points the most "lit up" appearance it has ever experienced—the flaming bonfire burned John Barleycorn to a cracking crisp last night.

Impressive and gay as well was the scene that presented itself to the spectators that stayed up to cheer the celebration of the coming tonight of constitutional prohibition. The flames that were already slowly burning when the parade of the Anti-Saloon league forces, the Ku Klux Klan and other organizations marched down Peachtree to the improvised pyre, were heightened in their intensity by the gallons of liquor bestowed by the official pouring-out by D. J. Gantt, revenue prohibition enforcement officer for seven southern states.

Having dumped on the blaze practically a hundred gallons of the stuff, there was added to the mass of burning stuff a genuine copper still, captured in the mountains of North Georgia by the revenue agents that aid Mr. Gantt in his search for moonshiners.

Ku-Klux Klan.

Massed about the bonfire, three deep, were the picturesque figures of the Ku-Klux Klan, whose silent march down Peachtree, led by the flaming banner and lighted by the lurid glare of hundreds of torches, had been a sight that chilled the marrow in the bones of the more imaginative and called forth memories or ideas of days of long ago to all that looked upon them.

The parade that led the funeral cortege to the scene of the borning was led by Chief James L. Beavers, with a squad of mounted policemen, followed by automobiles holding the revenue officers with the still that later was smashed and contributed to the fire and cars that held the officials of the Anti-Saloon league, who are leading the campaign for funds to assist in law enforcement. These last, the people who are giving their time to the cause of raising the funds, are the sponsors of the occasion.

Clothing Prices Beyond Reach Of Most Folks

Statement by H. R. Figg, Assistant to Palmer. Prices Must Drop Or Industries Must Shut Down.

Chicago, January 15.—Unless clothing prices go down people will lose their purchasing power and industries will be idle, said H. R. Figg, assistant attorney general, before the National Association of Retail Clothiers here today.

"Most clothing prices are already impossible for a great number of people in the United States," he added.

Mr. Figg, who has charge of price regulation under the Lever act, urged the retailers to appoint a committee to co-operate with manufacturers and wholesalers in finding a solution of the problem.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE FOR SHOE RETAILERS.

Boston, January 15.—A vigilance committee, national in scope, to police the retail shoe business as an aid to the department of justice in running down profiteers, will be offered to the government by the National Shoe Retailers' association, it was decided today. The shoe men at the last session of their annual convention, approved unani-

ENFORCEMENT OF LAW LARGELY UP TO STATES

Though Federal Agents Will Assist--Some Bootlegging Is Expected, But There Will Be No Searching of Homes.

Washington, January 15.—Inauguration of the nation's first saloonless year will be celebrated widely tomorrow night in Washington.

National reform associations, holding jubilee conventions here, will hold numerous meetings throughout the day and will watch the advent of constitutional prohibition at 12:01 a. m. Saturday with a dinner at which officers of the associations will tell of the progress of reform work. Attorney General Palmer will be another speaker.

A lighter side to the watch night celebrations will be portrayed at the National Press club, with the chief featuer of the evening a skit, written and produced by Washington correspondents, entitled, "Water, Water Everywhere."

To Enforce the Law.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer has virtually completed the organization, scattered throughout every state, which will enforce constitutional prohibition. He and Commissioner Roper, of the internal revenue bureau, charged with carrying out the law, have appealed to all law-abiding citizens to support this change in the basic law of the nation, expressing confidence that co-operation will be received from them and from state and municipal authorities.

With the coming into force of the amendment, the export of intoxicating liquors will cease. An enormous amount of whisky has been sent out of the country within the past few weeks, but large stocks still remain in bonded warehouses and its disposition will be watched closely to prevent illegal sales.

Liquor held in warehouses and elsewhere for private account must be moved in homes or other places of residence by the owners before tomorrow midnight. Any remaining in storage will be subject to seizure.

No Home Brewing.

Home brewing of beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol also will come under the ban.

Enforcement of the new liquor law will be left largely to state, county and municipal officials, but Commissioner Kramer has given warning that where these fail to use due diligence, the federal authorities will step in.

Resolutions urging "loyal citizens" to remind those who are indifferent or hostile that unless the national prohibition law is enforced lawlessness will be encouraged, were adopted today by the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Federal authorities were urged to see that the law is upheld in those states hostile to prohibition.

DRY ERA BEGINS JUST ONE MINUTE AFTER MIDNIGHT

New York, January 15.—Enforcement of nation-wide prohibition, which becomes the law of the land tomorrow, will not begin until 12:01 a. m. on January 17, it was announced here today at the office of Colonel Daniel L. Porter, of the United States internal revenue service.

"After that hour," it was said, "not a barrel of intoxicating liquor, a case of wine or a keg of beer can be legally manufactured, sold or transported for beverage purposes anywhere in the United States, its territories or insular possessions."

There will be no searching of homes or confiscation of intoxicants, the federal authorities declare, the law providing for seizure only in event that liquors are sold or in case a "home" is clearly shown to be a public resort. Possession of a private still by means of which whisky may be made, however, is held to be unlawful. A certain amount of "bootlegging" is expected to be carried on for some time, local officials say, but every effort of the government will be exerted to discourage violations.

"Drys" Want $50,000,000.

While it has been announced that the "drys" are to raise a fund of $50,000,000 to continue their fight, prohibition leaders here say most of the money will be used in "educating" the public as to the injurious effects of alcohol. They intimate that they will take no radical steps but that "toleration and patience will be exercised toward any man who is honest on the question and who believes that intoxicating drink is necessary to his well-being."

Cider mills and grape juice plants, meanwhile, have been working overtime of late in New York state, it was said, and the price of apples and grape fruit has been affected by an increased demand. Fermented sacramental wine for exclusively religious purposes will be manufactured and sold as usual, but with new federal restrictions. Sale of hard cider and grape juice with a "kick" in them, of course, are now taboo.

Latest internal revenue statistics show that the constitutional "dry" amendment puts out of business, or compels to change to other forms of industry, 336 distilleries, 1,092 breweries and 177,790 saloons and other places selling intoxicants in the continental United States.

The familiar ditty:

"There, little barroom, don't you cry,
"You'll be a drug store, bye and bye!"

has not proved true, at least in New York. Most saloons, the owners of which have decided to remain in business, have been transformed into restaurants or candy stores.

Distilleries elsewhere, it is said, are being utilized for making denatured alcohol for fuel, for use in the mechanical arts and for other legal purposes. Some are now creameries and cheese factories.

Breweries in many cases, according to reports, have been turned into malt sugar factories, automobile works, meat packing and cold-storage plans. Many employees of distilleries and breweries thus are retained at their old places but at new tasks. An army of bartenders, it is said, has obtained jobs at soda fountains and are reported to be "humanizing" the nut sundae business.

Claims for Prohibition.

Some of the things prohibition is alleged already to have done to the metropolis and other parts of the nation were pointed out here today by William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and others. Mr. Anderson said: "Five years ago, on a zero weather night, 1,000 or more men applied to the Bowery mission for lodging. So far this winter less than a dozen have appeared on any cold night. The municipal lodging house, with a capacity of 918, on not one night in December sheltered as many as 100 persons. Ordinarily it would be crowded.

"We are getting curious reports from all parts of the country. For instance, Harry A. Winkle, known as 'Dad,' for 26 years the keeper of the Philadelphia morgue, says: 'Prohibition has most nigh closed us up. We had as many bodies in two weeks in 1918 as we had altogether in 1919. Sixty per cent of them came here through "booze." Some of them were wood alcohol victims. The daily average has been close to 50 per cent of what was normal before prohibition.'

"The Yorkville police court in New York, on Christmas Day, had only two drunks as compared with 26 the preceding Christmas. St. Lawrence county, upstate, was going to spend $100,000 for a jail extension two years ago because of the number of offenders. This county covers 2,800 square miles, almost as big as Rhode Island. The supervisors said wait when an effort was made to bond the county, the voters decided to outlaw booze and today the jail is reported virtually empty of inmates.

"Camden, N. J.'s famous workhouse or 'paper pickery,' where the drunks were sent to sort over paper for baling and which did a business aggregating $4,000, at last accounts had only four prisoners. The Chicago 'bridewell' or workhouse population is said recently to have dwindled to almost nothing. Pittsburg, Pa., shows one of the best records, 90 per cent few cases of 'jags,' arrests reduced one-half and a minimum of cases of alcoholism being reported from the hospitals.

"Thomas W. White, state supervisor of administration of Massachusetts, reports that as a result of fewer cases many small courts which are now costing the state $500,000 a year can be elliminated by one-half. Milwaukee reports a 'shortage of labor' at the house of correction. The decrease in cases of intoxication there is officially given as 20 per cent during 1919. Two-thirds of the Cincinnati workhouse is to be abandoned, effecting a saving of $40,000 annually, because of the recent decrease in occupants.

Hobos Forced to Work.

"Sheriff Blodgett, of Penn Yan, N. Y., announced that 'never before in the history of Yates county have so few persons been confined in jail. We used to have an average of 250; today we have 36.' In the Connecticut state prison a year ago there were 567 prisoners. Now there are 120 vacant cells and it may not be necessary to build a new $3,000,000 prison. Captain W. J. Dempsey, of the New York Central railroad detective force, says the 'hobo' has been forced to go to work, because there is no longer such a lure of the 'free lunch, the booze, and the saloon stove.'

"Charles R. Buchanan, jailer at Hannibal, Mo., whose position used to pay him $175 by reason of his feeding prisoners at 20 cents a meal, has returned to his old job of cigar making, because prisoners are so few that he cannot make it pay. Middletown, N. Y., which has been 'dry' now for more than a year, reports unusual prosperity, some of its former 32 saloonkeepers having become successful merchants. Sheriff Joseph E. Davis, of Nassau county, informs us that he has only 38 prisoners in jail and only four of these are hoboes. Prohibition has reduced the number of prisoners 50 per cent.'

"Bird S. Coler, commissioner of charities, said that 'the alcoholic wards in the Kings county and Bellevue hospitals are nearly out of business. Wood alcohol is claiming a few cases, but ambulance calls have fallen off 25 per cent.' A. C. Baker, of the Bowery mission, said: 'The war, better wages and prohibition have virtually eliminated the bum and the bread line. It used to be that you could get 1,000 snow shovelers by visiting a few Bowery saloons. Now you couldn't find forty. Men who formerly came to us for beds are now paying their own rent.'"

Commenting on the fact that 45 of the 48 states had ratified the eighteenth amendment (New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island being the only ones not to do so), Mr. Anderson said: "An important thing to remember is the fact that, while no referendum on national prohibition was taken for the reason that there was no way one could be held, the 'dry' amendment was ratified exactly as all others have been. Nine-tenths of the area and almost two-thirds of the population of the United States were 'dry' under state and local action before prohibition became part of the nation's organic law.

"The false charge is made that prohibition was 'put over' on the country while American soldiers were fighting in France. The truth is that in December, 1914, the question was voted on in congress and received a majority in the lower house, but not the necessary two-thirds required. That fact made it an issue. Then, in the elections of 1916, more than six months before an American soldier had gone overseas, republican and democratic candidates committed to prohibition were elected in many cases by these soldiers to congress.

What Brought Prohibition.

"Prohibition was consummated by the moral element of American citizenship, including the business element, which recognized that alcohol, even when moderately used, lessened efficiency. The railroads were the first to recognize this and as early as 1890 the Reading railroad ordered the dismissal of engineers or firemen who frequented saloons. The Lackawanna and other roads adopted similar restrictions later. Life insurance actuaries in their mortality figures for 'moderate' drinkers clinched the argument for abstinence in the business and commercial world.

"The anti-liquor war in the United States began in 1642 when the Maryland colony passed a law punishing drunkenness by a fine of 100 pounds of tobacco. The long and uphill fight is ended. Ohio is the only state that has in its constitution a provision that the legislature must submit to a referendum ratification of any amendment to the federal constitution. Even if the 'wets' win in Ohio that will not affect the other states in two of which the supreme courts have decided against referendum."

Asked as to how the prohibitionists succeeded in getting New York state, one of the wettest commonwealths in the union, into the "dry" column, Mr. Anderson said the "miracle was accomplished unwittingly by the liquor interests and Tammany." He went on:

"Tammany put into its platform in 1918 an anti-prohibition plank and tried to carry the legislature. The republican candidates, generally, declared for ratification and were elected. Because Tammany had made it a 'party matter' the republicans did likewise. Tammany chiefly was interested in electing a governor and did elect a governor, but the 'drys' won the legislature because they knew ratification would be up to the assembly and that it would not go to the governor for signature. The election gave us four-fifths of the representatives in both houses committed to prohibition. We simply beat the Tammany 'wets' at their own game. Two-thirds of New York state already was 'dry' by local option."

LIQUOR CHOKES WAREHOUSES IN KENTUCKY

Louisville, January 15.—John Barleycorn's knockout, definitely completed tomorrow when he takes the final count with the advent of national prohibition, will be keenly felt in Kentucky, where bonded warehouses bulge with unattainable millions of gallons of prime to ordinary "drinking likker," as Kentucklans commonly express it.

Early in December best estimates were that 35,000,000 gallons with an ordinary wholesale value of about $400,000,000 were under the guardianship of Uncle Sam, being mellowed and awaiting withdrawal from bond. Most of it, whisky men say, is there yet in stout oak barrels subject to slow evaporation—"outage," internal revenue men term it—destruction by the elements and other commercial hazards, including possible theft.

Its vicissitudes form an interesting chapter. Early in 1919 its owners refused to be stampeded by the probable advent of wartime prohibition. When they saw that law become effective July 1 they sat tight and awaited developments. With the constitutionality of the wartime law determined early in December they were shocked into action and vainly tried to export it. No wthey wait, hoping for a miracle that will enable them to convert it from a liability into an asset and turn it into cash.

They had pinned their hopes on executive action in lifting the wartime ban. "Tomorrow," it was whispered, "President Wilson by proclamation will declare demobilization of the army completed and the whisky ban will be off."

"Tomorrow" never came.

Whisky for Export.

Finally came a ruling from the department of internal revenue almost coincident with the supreme court's wartime prohibition decision, that all whisky intended for export must be out of the country by January 16 when constitutional prohibition was to become effective. A scramble ensued for a safe harbor in the prohibition storm. Interests at southern ports with their rail connections suggested Cuba as a convenient place to sequester John Barleycorn. Railroads came forward with offers of cars, port interests and steamship companies bid for the potential business, and the United States shipping board offered to allocate enough ships to move the whisky stocks to the island.

Then the blow fell. Neither Havana, nor any other Cuban port had warehouse facilities sufficient to care for the ocean of liquid which was about to be outlawed. Ingenious minds suggested shipments of collapsible American steel houses along with whisky shipments to be quickly erected in Havana or vicinity. It sounded well until somebody began to figure on the cost. A distiller announced the belief that the project would bankrupt anybody who tried it and the plan was abandoned.

Gradually, it was said, export shipments were centered in the hands of a New York corporation, which began sending them to Hamburg for German sale and consumption and what stocks have left the country largely have been handled in that manner.

DELEGATE ABSENT, WAGE DISCUSSION HELD UP THURSDAY

Negotiation for a 50 per cent increase in wages with time and half time for Sundays, holidays and overtime by the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Employees of America have not been concluded. Absence of one of the delegates held up the proceedings yesterday between the conductors and motormen and the officials of the Gerogia Railway and Power Co., it was stated.

Return of the committeeman of the street railway employees, whose absence was due to the illness of a member of his family, will mark the re-opening of this wrangle of the employers and employed. An immediate settlement of difficulties is hoped for in the near future.

During the controversy, the old contract which ceased to exist on the entrance of the new year will be utilized till a new one can be arranged between the contracting parties. The terms of the old contract call for 40 cents an hour but the carmen want an increase of 50 per cent and the stated extra pay for overtime agreement.

AMERICA URGED TO ARM POLAND

So That Westward Drive by Bolsheviki May Be Stopped—Baker and Bliss Call Poland Storm Center.

Washington, January 15.—Definite plans for furnishing Poland with war materials and food to aid in checking the westward spread of bolshevism are being considered by the United States and by allied governments, Secretary Baker said today before the house ways and means committee, supplementing the declaration of General Tasker H. Bliss that Poland was "the only bulwark against bolshevism."

The committee has before it the proposal of Secretary Glass to authorize $150,000,000 in credits to European countries for the purchase of American food. Supporting that project General Bliss speaking from his experience as American representative on the supreme military council during the war and as a member of the American peace delegation to Paris, declared that if Poland were overrun, general revival of the war might follow.

Poles Only Barrier.

The military aspects of the food situation in Europe are "purely speculative," as to details, but not as to results, General Bliss said. It was the "growing opinion," of military experts, he added, that Russian soviet armies would turn toward the west, where they would outnumber the Polish forces, their only barrier.

General Bliss said that in granting loans the United States should demand of the allies that they provide the Poles with military supplies. It was at this point Secretary Baker told the committee that the allies and the United States were planning to furnish arms to the Poles. Such action was favored by the United States government, he said, and to furnish food relief in Poland would be "protecting civilization" rather than following out a "humanitarian impulse."

The attitude of the Poles, now beyond the eastern frontier tentatively fixed for Poland at Paris, also was cited by General Bliss as a possible cause for western movement by the Russians. Starvation at home, he added, might lead to revolt in Poland and other countries.

Poland Storm Center.

Describing Poland as "the possible storm center" in Europe, General Bliss declared that when "a whole people are brought to starvation" they make war on a neighbor having food and so "renew the conflagration that we had hoped had died out."

The bolsheviki, General Bliss continued, are regaining coal, oil, grain lands in the old Russian empire and will soon "be able to care for themselves regardless of any blockade."

"Military experts are of the growing opinion" that the "Moscow government will turn toward Poland," General Bliss said, adding that the Russians outnumbered the Poles, were well trained, well equipped and well led, while the Poles were "poorly equipped as to everything."

The committee is considering again a proposal by Secretary Glass to advance $150,000,000 to Poland, Austria and other European countries for food relief. If such a loan were made, the allied governments should be required to aid Poland in a military way, General Bliss said.

Bolsheviki to Turn West.

Military men believe the bolsheviki will not try to press eastward beyond Lake Baikal to fight the Japanese, General Bliss said, and that instead of sending armies toward India or Turkey they would attempt "military propaganda" there. This, he pointed out, indicated a westward movement of the bolsheviki armies.

Possibility of Poland pressing against the Russians also was emphasized by General Bliss, who said the peace conference delayed fixing the eastern boundary of Poland until December 2, and then only determined upon a tentative boundary. Polish armies, he added, then were 280 to 280 kilometers east of the eastern boundary of their country.

"The question is," he continued, "whether the policy of Poland will precipitate a situation dangerous to the whole of Europe."

The westward movement of the bolsheviki, however, is not the only factor that might produce "general revival of war," General Bliss said, explaining that conditions within several European countries might cause an upheaval. Europeans, he said, are more prone than Americans to blame their home situation on their government and without food or shelter would turn against what might be the "best government."

Chairman Fordney said the committee would determine Monday its action on the $150,000,000 food credits bill. Both General Bliss and Mr. Baker said official reports indicated that after the next European harvest help from the United States for foodstuffs would not be necessary.

HUNGRY SOLDIERS MUTINY IN FRANCE

Naval Forces at Toulon Join Troops in Revolt. Trouble Is Caused by Insufficiency of Bread.

London, January 15.—A wireless dispatch from Berlin says that riots and mutinies have broken out among the French naval forces and troops at Toulon, the military and naval port of France on the Mediterranean. The uprisings were caused by insufficient bread supplies, the message asserted.

several times felt secure in her leadership, and the people, in their sense of security, have allowed Atlanta to get on the brink of disaster before rallying to her support. The time has passed when we can outstrip our neighbors with such ease.

"Reports which come to me show that the census in Atlanta is lagging behind other southern cities, that the people are not aroused and have shown very little interest. They have not realized that the population which the census shows will be the official population accredited to the city for ten years.

"Atlanta has the people, and it would be a civic shame if they are not enrolled. Every man, woman and child in the city should be enrolled in the next two days, if possible. Each one that is not enrolled will deprive Atlanta of just that much citizenship."

Behind Birmingham.

Although Mr. Marshburn is not permitted to give out any census figures, he asserted Thursday night that over three-fourths of the city has been covered, and indicated very strongly that the results did not compare favorably with that of the Birmingham census.

Joseph A. McCord, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, declared Thursday night that if the reports that the Atlanta census, which, according to the time allotted, is scheduled for completion Saturday night, is lagging, the civic organizations of the city should be urged to secure an extension in time, so as to allow every one to be enrolled.

Upon being told of this statement by Mr. McCord, Mr. Marshburn said he was practically assured that he could have the time extended to any length necessary for the satisfactory completion of the census here.

Mr. Marshburn cited many instances of the difficulties his enumerators have encountered.

Disagreeable Receptions.

"In most instances, the enumerators are met pleasantly, but in a great many cases they are given very disagreeable receptions. It surprises me to see the number of people who apparently never read a newspaper, for there are many who are not aware that the census is being taken. Many people give the information asked for under the impression that it is for the city directory, and upon being asked some of the personal questions contained on the blanks, they cannot understand why it should be wanted.

"Wednesday a boarding house proprietor in West Peachtree street slammed the door in the face of the census taker, after declaring that one of the men of the house had told her not to give any information. The man in question happened to be a prominent business man, and until he was reminded of the $100 fine or a period in the penitentiary, or both, as punishment for such a refusal, he would not grant the information wanted.

"Boarding houses have been the cause of the most annoyance. I and the census inspectors have had to make personal calls on people that refused information. I'm satisfied that my enumerators are going to every house in their districts, but it is clear that everybody is not being included in the official count."

that the last three years were spent in an agitation to this end. Two of the most important of four bills, sponsored by the association and given their aid in forcing them through, were passed. One of these bills called for reorganization of the state highway departments, giving authority to enable them to designate a state system of county seat to county seat roads, to provide for engineering, surveys, estimates of costs and maps. The other bill embodied a provision for funds to aid in building of the state systems as well as the motor vehicle license bill, which will add approximately $2,000,000 to the funds of the federal government, which are allotted to the counties by highway department. This department will supplement the county funds by $4,500,000.

Mr. Winn estimates the available money in Georgia for the development of the highways at $9,000,000, but further adds that large sums are needed to provide a real system of hard surface roads. This will call for a sum of probably $80,000,000 or $90,000,000, he reports. His solution to the problem is the same as has prevailed in many of the states—state bonds. Other states are inaugurating this plan, he asserts, and Georgia should fall in line.

Following the report of the president, Guy Wolfe, chairman of the finance committee, was heard. His report was unanimously adopted. Dr. Craig Arnold, of Lumpkin county, was called on and gave a humorous treatment of the conditions that surrounded Dahlonega. "We have a genuine 'no man's land' in north Georgia," he continued, "and the one in France has nothing on it, either." He predicts much progress when interurban highways are completed.

The Report of Neele.

One of the most interesting features of the report of W. R. Neele, state highway engineer, which contained some vital statistics of projects completed and under construction, was the statement that folders showing road directions will be given to members. This folder will designate surface, paved and impassable roads.

A. S. Hatcher, of Macon, discussed a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Charles Townsend of Michigan. This piece of legislation, known as the Townsend bill, provides for paved roads all over the United States, and right of way 50 feet wide. It contemplates future highways and possibly parallel lines with a wide field of motor truck commerce. A third phase of the bill is national military preparedness.

The president called for a vote on endorsing this bill, after resolutions were offered by Mr. Hatcher. Before the poll was taken its merits and its defects were discussed by engineers in attendance. A heated debate marked the discussion. The vote showed that the bill had been adopted by a majority of 22 to 7, some of the members present not voting.

Several visitors and prominent members were called on by President Winn for speeches. Two resolutions of interest were unanimously adopted.

End Auto Thieving.

The first was introduced by Mr. Webb, who asked the association members to do all in their power to eliminate auto thefts and offer all possible assistance in the apprehension of the perpetrators.

Much interest was displayed over the Townsend bill. Although the cons were in the minority some opposition was raised, but it was the opinion of most of those present that this will be a valuable asset to advocates of paved highways. The Associated Automobile dealers, in support of it, have written to all of the senators and have received favorable responses from many of them. One of those in favor of Senator Townsend's measure is Senator Smith, of Georgia. The Rotary Club of Macon has heartily indorsed it, as have many other organizations.

In the election of officers that followed, Mr. Winn, the president of last year, was unanimously re-elected.

JOHN BARLEYCORN BURNED IN EFFIGY

that was once the center of so many war campaigns were signs that bore tokens of the occasion, signifying the abdication of King Barleycorn and asking that Atlanta join in the effort to perpetuate the enforcement of the amendment that made the nation constitutionally bone dry. Strung across the streets, on every side of Five Points, were large signs that demanded a finishing of the job that the league says is before them in the work that they are now undertaking.

Jammed into every inch of space that the wide expanse of Five Points provides were crowds that had either stayed up to see the performance and to cheer it; other crowds that had chanced to see the cataclysm that J. B. Corn was suffering, and stood by to condole and add their paean of sorrow to the general cry that was set up as soon as the first small flame burst out.

There were those that hailed the event as epochal in a beneficial way, and there were those that used the best array of humor and talk they could muster to let the deposed friend know that they disliked to watch his departure.

Mass Meeting is Held.

Just preceding the formation for the parade, a mass meeting of several hundred Atlantans, interested in the cause of prohibition and stringent enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, was held at the Wesley Memorial church.

The meeting, presided over by Judge Nash R. Broyles, of the court of appeals, and state chairman of the campaign for funds to assist in law enforcement, was featured by addresses by prominent Atlantans, representing the various phases of the city's life and government.

After the opening prayer by Dr. B. F. Fraser, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Judge Broyles made an introductory talk, in which he expressed gratitude at the fact that John Barleycorn, "the greatest criminal of the ages," had at last been brought to justice. "Although it is not in our power to give him the penalty of death," said the speaker, "we have deported him as an undesirable citizen."

Mrs. Dillard Speaks.

Mrs. Leila Dillard, state president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, talked for a few minutes to the meeting on the work of the W. C. T. U., and the part that it had played in preparing the way for the work of the Anti-Saloon league in the present drive.

Representing the evangelical churches of Atlanta, as president of the Evangelical Ministers' Union, Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North avenue Presbyterian church, felicitated the organizations on the success of their work, and voiced a warning against the organized forces that would fight prohibition vigorously, even after its inception as a constitutional amendment.

Mayor Key said that the need for the country in successful law enforcement is an aroused public opinion that will demand strict obedience to the letter of the law.

The district attorney talked to the gathering on the history of prohibition in the state of Georgia, telling of the days when the fight was against open saloons before any organized agitation had been started against the sale of liquor.

Victory will be celebrated by the W. C. T. U. by a union meeting. All white ribboners will meet in a session at the Trinity church this afternoon at 2 o'clock. All local union meetings for this date have been called off. Local president will take part in the union service.

Celebrate Demise Of John Barleycorn By "Sky Funeral"

The much-heralded "sky funeral" of the late John Barleycorn came off as per schedule early Thursday afternoon, with the addition of two more planes to the cortege—the "hearse" being occupied by John Goldstrom and Pilot Oertel, the former strewing Mr. Corn's ashes to the four winds of heaven in the shape of Anti-Saloon league literature.

O. B. Keeler, former newspaper man, now with the movies, rode in the second plane as chief mourner, piloted by Captain W. C. Lambert, R. A. F., a veteran of the air-war in Europe, who is at Candler field forming a flying school and conveying passengers on lively air-jaunts.

The third plane carried as passengers, Buchanan of the Fox film forces here, who made motion pictures of the entire performance, including a very neat loop executed by Captain Lambert to soothe the outburst of grief of the chief mourner.

The ceremonies at the field were simple but impressive. Uncle Sam took a prominent part, emptying bottles of a fluid which may have been corn licker into the tank of the "hearse," while Mr. Goldstrom as chief pall-bearer grinned sardonically and Mr. Keeler and a number of the spectators gave way unrestrainedly to their emotions.

Two or three flights were made by the planes during the day, one plane carrying Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, of the Southern Publicity association, who is one of the few women who hold the distinction of having flown over Atlanta.

DRUGGISTS PREPARE Facts and Figures Are Being Gathered for Meeting.

Facts and figures on drugs are being gathered by the retail druggists of Atlanta for presentation to the Fulton county fair price committee at its meeting on January 20 to fix prices on prescriptive medicines.

An advance in the prices of chemicals and other conditions which exist at present, make profiteering impossible at the present rate of charge to the customers, claim the druggists, and at the meeting of the fair price committee they will present data in an effort to substantiate this contention.

Earl H. Cone was appointed at a recent meeting to confer with other druggists and submit a report to the committee. Marion Jackson, assistant fair price commissioner, said that he was sure the situation could be settled satisfactorily to all.

POMEROY NOW GIVES OUT STARTLING FACTS

Noted Scientist, Who Will Arrive in Atlanta Friday for a Short Visit, Relates His Experiences With Savages.

HAS TRAVELED AROUND THE WORLD FOUR TIMES

Says Natives of Frozen North or Tropics Live Better Than Civilized Americans. Stomach Troubles Practically Unknown to Them.

John Pomeroy, the noted New Zealand scientist, whose unique theory that modern ailments are due largely to weak stomachs, and who will arrive in Atlanta Friday for a brief visit, explained the reason for his statements very forcibly to a few of his friends recently when he said:

"During the many years of my travels throughout the world carrying on my research work, I have been struck forcibly by the wonderful, robust, healthy condition of the different primitive tribes that I have come in contact with: such as the Eskimo, the Indians, the African and especially the South Sea Islanders.

"These people live under very much different conditions to the civilized and modern nations. Their foods are of the purest, although perhaps of a very limited variety, which in itself is a blessing in disguise, because their diets are composed of the simplest and most nutritious foods one could possibly find. They cook these foods under very primitive methods and some of their dishes are very appetizing, but most of them would not suit the palate of a civilized people.

"I have seen Eskimo mothers take a knife and cut off a chunk of blubber from a seal and hand it to their children, who chewed away at it as if it were a big stick of candy. Nevertheless, these people are the picture of health.

"Did you ever hear or read of a native of one of these primitive tribes suffering from stomach troubles, or nervous prostration?" asked Mr. Pomeroy of one of the listeners. "I never did." He continued:

"They get up early and go out into the fresh air to put in a day's work that would lay most civilized people up for a week. I have known one of these men to walk forty miles over the ice and snow in one day and return the next day. These fellows don't need a dinner horn to tell them that meal time is near. Their digestive organs are in such perfect and healthy shape that their stomachs are fairly shouting for food, and you can bet they get it.

"The amount of flesh, fish, soggy bread, cabbage and tarra (which is the native substitute for potatoes) they eat is a sight to see. Right back they go into the fields. More hard work in the fresh air and sunshine. Home again at night with the same enormous appetite. A big supper, and then they sleep as though chloroformed. No restless tossing all night, and awaking with a dull, heavy and tired feeling. No coated tongue with a bad taste in their mouths. They live the life that nature intended for them to live, and their digestion is perfect. That's the secret. Whenever a man is digesting his food, he's a well man. But until the digestive organs are in good condition, good health is absolutely impossible.

"A tired, overworked stomach produced by years of too much hastily eaten and unsuitable food, and little or, no outdoor exercise, causes hydrochloric acid in the stomach which brings on an endless amount of ailments, such as indigestion, headaches, heavy, dull pains in the back, nervousness, sleeplessness, blood disorders and even rheumatism."—(adv.)

NEW MANUFACTURING PLANT FOR ATLANTA

Instant Heat Manufacturing and Electric Company May Locate Branch Here.

The Instant Heat Manufacturing and Electric company, of Columbus, Ohio, may be one of the many large manufacturing plants that will shortly be erected in Atlanta.

Dr. Horace Grant has secured the state rights of their products and is negotiating with the company to make Atlanta their headquarters for the southeast. The company employs a large number of skilled workmen and would not only build a large factory but also homes for their employees.

Besides the "instant heat burner," which generates gas from kerosene oil, they are also the manufacturers of the Carl Brown electric organ, designed especially for churches and moving picture houses.

Dr. Grant, when seen at the Hotel Aragon, stated that he had communicated with several expert organ builders and they are all of the opinion that on account of its location, its close proximity to wood and other materials, Atlanta is an ideal place for an organ factory.

A Winter Romance
By Jean Baird
XII. The Straight Road

"Good morning!" flashed Herb Kendall as he appeared in the dining-room door. "What? Still eating breakfast? I have a proposition—wonder if we couldn't all motor to Miller's Dam. Director's meeting there—we can get back by evening."

"Won't that be wonderful!" Nan was radiant. "Over the mountain and back the river road."

"I'll be here at nine sharp; better bundle up warm," and Herb was off to get ready.

A few minutes before nine, we heard the sound of Herb's car, and, as I started down the steps Nan caught up with me.

"Really, Jean, I am so happy. We couldn't have had a better day. See how right Herb's car is this morning, and doesn't he look splendid."

"Oh, come now, so soon after breakfast," I began. "Why, Nan, by night you will have waxed e'en poetic."

I was right. By night, Nan was a poem. The long ride over the mountain in the sun and wind, instead of roughening Nan's complexion, only intensified the color and healthful glow. I couldn't resist playfully patting her cheek—it felt like silken velvet.

"Hagan's Magnolia Balm again," I said. "I can't be too grateful to you, Nan, for telling me of such a wonderful complexion beautifier."

Truly Magnolia Balm is an ideal liquid face powder, for it stays on without being detected. Free from grease and injurious substances. And it is only 75 cents at dealers or post paid from the Lyon Manufacturing Co., 100 So. Fifth St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Three colors—white, pink and rose red.

Herb, by some strategy, stole Nan away from our party for a short walk after luncheon. Verily, romance is in the air.

DEMOCRATS TIE ON THE ELECTION OF SENATE LEADER

SENATOR HOKE SMITH WITHHELD HIS VOTE

Caucus Agreed to Postpone Final Action Until Carter Glass Takes His Seat in the Senate.

By J. A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, January 15.—Refusal of Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, to vote for either candidate caused a deadlock in the democratic caucus today to select a floor leader to succeed the late Senator Martin, of Virginia.

As indicated in these dispatches, the vote of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, would have given the deciding vote to Senator Underwood, of Alabama, had the Virginian been permitted to vote, but Senator Glass, who is overwhelmed with work as hold-over secretary of the treasury until a new secretary is appointed, has been unable to take his seat in the senate prior to this date as he had expected and hoped. In his inability to do so the caucus would not unanimously agree to permit him to participate, although his credentials had been presented and accepted by the senate.

Glass Declined to Take Part.

The vote on permitting Senator Glass to vote stood 20 to 19 in his favor. The Virginian, however, declined to participate, in view of a partisan feeling to the contrary, and Senator Underwood, as is characteristic of the man, told the conferees that while the Virginian's right to participate was unquestioned, that if he was to be the leader of a party he wanted it to be unanimous in its co-operation, and that he would waive the right that the Virginian had, even by majority vote, as well as all the rules of justice, and not further ask that Mr. Glass be permitted to vote in the caucus. The new Virginia member, therefore, by reason of the opposition to his voting by the Hitchcock supporters, declined to enter the conference.

The roll call follows:

For Hitchcock—Ashurst, Chamberlain, Culberson, Henderson, Kendrick, King, Kirby, Myers, Nugent, Overman, Phelan, Pomerene, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Thomas, Trammell, Walsh (Montana, Walcott—19.

Paired—Beckham for Underwood with Swanson for Hitchcock, and Smith (Arizona) for Underwood with Owen for Hitchcock; Underwood and Hitchcock.

Not voting—Glass, Johnson (South (Dakota).

Present and not voting—Smith, (Georgia).

Three Times Silent.

There were three ballots and each time the senior senator from Georgia sat like a sphinx, declining to break the tie, although in the last few days he had let Senator Underwood and his friends understand that he would support him, although before the Christmas holidays he had openly announced that he would support Hitchcock.

The failure of the Georgian to vote either one way or the other in order to decide the matter is the basis of caustic comment from friends of both factions, the position being that a man who is big enough to be in the United States senate should be big enough to have a conviction, and too big to play petty politics when placed in a position where he has the balance of power.

There are many reasons assigned for the Georgian's action, one of them being that he hoped to maintain a deadlock and finally run himself in as a compromise candidate for leader. This view, however, is too far from any possible fulfillment to be seriously entertained even by Senator Smith. That the Georgian is opposed to Underwood as leader—although within the day expressing his desire to see him chosen to Underwood's friends—because he personally has served in the senate longer than the Alabaman is more probably correct, although it is difficult to understand how a personal prejudice could evolve from so weak a foundation. Whatever may be the senator's reason, however, the fact remains that he attended the caucus and then when finding it a tie between the two candidates, declined to put himself on record in favor of or against either man.

The Next Caucus.

The next caucus will not be held until after Senator Glass, who is favorable to Underwood, takes his seat. As an offset to the Glass vote, however, Senator Johnson, of South Dakota, who was absent and unpaired today, committed himself to Hitchcock before Underwood entered the race, and is known to be now favorable to Underwood. It is nto improbable therefore that he may not be present at the next conference.

"The result of the vote," Senator Underwood stated, "does not interfere in any way with Senator Hitchcock's control or leadership in the treaty fight. He has my loyal support and will continue to have it, and if I had been elected today, or should be elected in the future to the minority leadership, Senator Hitchcock will continue to lead the fight with reference to the treaty conditions, and in the treaty fight will have my hearty concurrence."

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who voted for Senator Hitchcock, also announced after the conference that determination of the question of minority leadership had nothing whatever to do with leadership in the treaty fight.

Hitchcock to Handle Treaty.

"Senator Hitchcock, as ranking minority member of the foreign relations committee, wil remain in charge of that, regardless of whether he is elected minority leader," said Mr. Simmons. "The fight has nothing to do with the treaty, being purely a matter of personal choice."

Senator Simmons continued: "Senator Hoke Smith was present, but did not vote and expressed no preference."

"Then Senator Hoke Smith holds the balance of power" Senator Simmons was asked, and he agreed.

When told that the caucus had failed to agree on the choice of a minority leader in the senate, Secretary Glass said that he would not case a vote in the caucus until he had been relieved of his duties as secretary of the treasury and was actually a member of the senate. The only exception he would make, he indicated, would be in case he was invited to become a member of the caucus by unanimous vote and he had no idea that this would be done.

The Georgia members of the house were practically al hopeful that the Alabamian would be chosen and it is no secret tha tthe action of Senator Smith has created no end of comment and criticism.

There is every indication that Senator Underwood will ultimately be chosen the minority leader.

"ALL O. K. FOR THE BLOOD"

Is What a Citizen of Georgia Says of ZIRON, the New Iron Tonic.

Iron is needed by the blood to keep men and women strong and healthy. Iron is needed by the nerves to keep them toned up. Ziron, the new iron tonic, will put iron into your blood and should help renew your fagged nerve forces in the way it has done for many others.

Read what Mr. J. R. Bell, Rt. 2, Oconee, Ga., says about the effects of Ziron:

"I think Ziron is all O. K. for the blood. That was what I have been taking it for—my blood. I liked Ziron so well that I went back to the store and got two more bottles of it."

Ziron is a combination of a pure medicinal inorganic iron salt, mentioned in the U. S. Pharmacopeia, with the hypophosphites of lime and soda, and other valuable tonic ingredients, endorsed and recommended by the best medical authorities and mentioned in the medical text books.

Great Enthusiasm Is Being Shown In the Banquet of Chamber Tonight

Increased enthusiasm for a greater Atlanta, exhortation for co-operation of all Atlantans and vigorous upursuance of plans that have been broached for this end, will be the features of the great annual meeting and dinner of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce at 7 o'clock this evening, at the Capital City club.

More than 300 guests are anticipated for the big event, the yearly get-together meeting of the chamber, at which impetus is always given to the program of that civic body for the ensuing year. Samuel C. Dobbs, the 1919 president, who piloted the destinies of the organization through the hard year of reconstruction will preside at the meeting, and to the gathering will be introduced Eugene R. Black, who has been elected to head the chamber for 1920.

Anticipation is high for the announcement of the city planning commission, the body of twenty-four representative men and women who are to devise the best means of attacking the large problems that confront Atlanta in attaining the growth in resources and facilities to accommodate the "inevitable Atlanta of 500,000 inhabitants."

While it is not absolutely certain that the names of the members of this body will be made public at the meeting tonight, on account of the minor difficulties that have arisen in their appointment, it is expected that the county, city and chamber of commerce heads will be ready to name the eight that they each are to choose.

The new officers of the organization, recently elected or re-elected, will be introduced to the chamber of commerce members at this meeting, and will be formally installed. These are, besides the president, Mr. Black, E. P. McBurney, vice president, in charge of chamber of commerce affairs; Lee Ashcraft, vice president, in charge of commercial affairs; Robert Troutman, vice president, in charge of civic affairs; Henry W. Davis, treasurer, and Charles E. Robertson, secretary.

A report on the work done by the organization during the past year will be read to the meeting by Mr. Robertson, the secretary. Another feature of the dinner that demands particular interest is the fact that quite a number of women members of the chamber of commerce will attend the meeting.

It is expected that the members will discuss at this gathering the plans for the drive for 4,000 members that will be inaugurated on February 1. The body now has a roster of 1,700 names, and is confident of its ability to reach the goal of 4,000 that has been set for the drive.

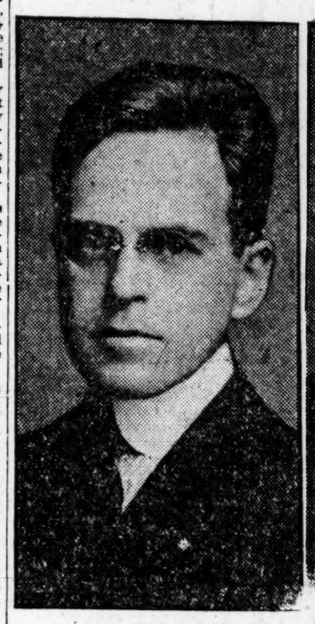

The formal opening of the meeting will be by an invocation offered by Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church.

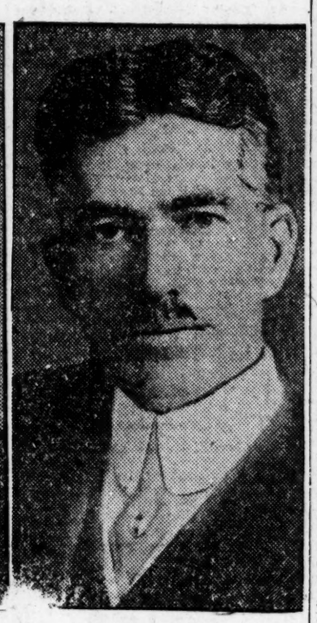

EUGENE R. BLACK, President.

ROBERT TROUTMAN, Vice President.

CHARLES E. ROBERTSON, Secretary.

E. P. McBURNEY, Vice President.

HENRY W. DAVIS, Treasurer.

SILENCE EXPLAINED BY SENATOR SMITH.

By Robert T. Barry.

Washington, January 15.—Whether or not the senate democrats select a leader at the next caucus depends on the ability of Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, to make up his mind in the meantime. The fiasco in the caucus today was due to the indecision of Senator Smith, and that senator's inability to summon the courage to vote against Mr. Hitchcock or Mr. Underwood. Mr. Smith's indecision in the matter of "picking the right horse" led to a "dead heat." Another caucus will be held next Thursday, but another tie will result unless "Silent" Smith, as he came to be known about the senate this afternoon, can make p his mind in the matter.

"I said when I entered the caucus that my associates knew I was accustomed to meeting all votes in senate or in the caucus," Mr. Smith declared. "I explained, however, in this case, my personal relations with and affection forboth Senator Underwood and Senator Hitchcock were such that I wanted to vote for each of them and had not been able to bring myself to vote against either of them.

"The matter was a cause of great embarrassment to me, but under the circumstances I felt I could not vote."

Asked about reports that he would vote at the next caucus over the leadership, Senator Smith said:

"I might or might not."

Senator Smith replied to reports that he would support Senator Underwood at the next caucus, by saying that he had authorized no such announcement.

DARING SNATCH THIEF WORRIES THE POLICE

Several Reports of Operations of Negro Are Made to the Detectives.

Detective authorities Thursday were conducting a search in the vicinity of Windsor and Rawson streets, in an attempt to apprehend a daring snatch-thief who, for the past several weeks, has been operating in that vicinity.

The latest report on the activity of this thief came to the police Wednesday night from Mrs. G. W. Collins, of 312 Rawson street, who was attacked Wednesday night at Windsor aind Rawson streets while she was on her way home. Mrs. Collins stated that when she reached Windsor and Cooper streets, a negro sprang from behind a tree and, seizing her by her wrist, attempted to tear her purse from her hansd. Mrs. Collins held the purse and fought her assailant, at the same time screaming for help.

The woman's screams soon attracted the attention of several neighbors, who hurried to her assistance. The negro was frightened by the screams and left the scene before assistance arrived.

Several robberies by this daring thief have been reported lately. Miss Willie Wood, of 83 Windsor street, was attacked and robbed of her purse at Rawson and Windsor streets Tuesday night, while being escorted to her home by Ben Jerome, of the Kimball house.

The robber suddenly darted from behind a tree and snatched the purse from Miss Wood's hand and disappeared before her escort could interfere. When Jerome gave chase, the thief fired several shots at him.

Recently two similar robberies have taken place in the same locality, one of the victims being Mrs. Morris Macks, of 84 Windsor street, wife of Attorney Morris Macks.

Mrs. Collins' report, with that of all other victims of the highwayman, has stirred the detective department to action. Thursday afternoon Chief of Detectives Lamar Poole detailed a special number of men to patrol that vicinity. So far no clue as to the identity of the negro has been obtaind, but it is thought that with the dragnet thrown around his center of operations the criminal will soon be apprehended.

POLICE ARE PROBING FIRE TRUCK ACCIDENT

Funeral Services for Captain Netherland Will Be Conducted Friday Morning.

Police officials Thursday afternoon were conducting a rigid investigation to ascertain the cause and fix the responsibility for the crash Wednesday afternoon between fire truck No. 10 and an East Hunter trolley car at the corner of Cherokee avenue and Bryan street, which resulted in the death of Captain Robert M. Netherland and injuries to J. R. Morrow, hoseman, No. 10 engine; L. L. Roberts, driver, No. 10, and J. H. Tolbert, hoseman, No. 10 fire station.

The names of several witnesses to the accident and the names and addresses of the motorman and conductor of the West Hunter car were turned in to police station early Thursday afternoon. No cases have yet been made pending the funeral Friday morning of the victim of the collision, Captain Netherland, of company 10.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon at the corner of Cherokee avenue and Bryan street. It is said that engine No. 10, from the Oakland avenue station, was turning into Cherokee avenue from Bryan street, and that the East Hunter car was coming out Cherokee avenue. Eye-witnesses stated that the driver of the truck, L. L. Roberts, when he saw the danger, made every effort to avoid a collision, first attempting to pass on the left-hand side of the car, and seeing that this could not be done, attempted to pass on the right-hand side.

The street car, it is said by witnesses, was going out Cherokee avenue at a high rate of speed, which made it impossible for it to stop before reaching the corner and give the fire engine the right of way.

Three other firemen besides Captain Netherland were injured in the collision. They were J. R. Morrow, hoseman, No. 10, who suffered a fractured leg; Driver L. L. Roberts and Hoseman J. H. Tolbert. Roberts and Tolbert returned to their posts of duty Thursday. Morrow, after he had been treated at Grady, was removed to his home, 187 Oakland avenue.

The conductor of the East Hunter car, L. S. Cannon, was also hurt in the accident, but his injuries were not serious.

The funeral services for Captain Netherland will be held at 11 o'clock Friday morning from the St. Paul Methodist church, with the Rev. R. A. Edmondson officiating. Burial will follow at West View.

BAKER DEFENDS MEDAL AWARDS

While Congressman Gallivan Amplifies Charges Against War Department — Baker Reviews Records of Staff Chiefs.

Washington, January 15.—Controversy over awards of war service decorations by the war department was widened today when Secretary Baker made public a letter to Representative Gallivan, democrat, of Massachusetts, challenging statements recently made by the latter in the house regarding former chiefs of staff, while Gallivan amplified his previous charges in a written statement.

Mr. Baker's letter dealt with the military records and war service of General Tasker H. Bliss and Major Generals Hugh L. Scott and John Biddle, predecessors of General Peyton C. March, in the office of the chief of staff.

Mr. Baker denied emphaticaly Mr. Gallivan's statement that these officers had been removed for inefficiency, and said he made the letter public as the only means the officers assailed had of answering such charges.

What Gallivan Charged.

Representative Gallivan, in his statement, declared only one enlisted man, "apparently by error," had been awarded a distinguished service medal, while 544 officers and 32 civilians had been given this decoration. He quoted figures to awards made, adding that he hid not desire "to anticipate or befuddle the distinguished secretary of war" in preparing the report called for under the Gallivan resolution adopted by the house.

Mr. Baker pointed out in his letter, that from the beginning of the war until General March returned from Paris to take the place there were only three chiefs of staff—General Hugh L. Scott, Tasker H. Bliss and John Biddle and that the latter was designated as acting chief.

General Scott, Mr. Baker said, was retired on September 22, 1917, because he had reached the legal age of retirement and General Bliss was retired for the same reason on December 31, 1917.

The secretary said that on September 10, 1917, before either of these officers reached retirement age he wrote General Pershing suggesting the appointment of General March, then chief of artillery with the American Expeditionary forces, for the place, when General Bliss had retired. General Pershing agreed, he said, and General March was given "immediate and complete opportunity to study the entire situation in France."

Meantime, General Biddle was appointed acting chief of staff to serve until General March arrived from Europe early in 1918.

Records Are Reviewed.

Mr. Baker reviewed the records of Generals Scott, Bliss and Biddle, covering both their services to the nation before the great war and the work they did during that time—General Bliss as American military representative at Paris; General Scott as commander of Camp Dix, New Jersey, and General Biddle as commander of the American troops in England, and added:

"It thus appears that the three officers to whom you referred each performed his duty acceptably and that their separation from the office of the chief of staff in no case involved the slightest reflection upon them, but that in fact all three are officers whose services entitle them to grateful remembrance by their fellow citizens."

"Let it not be forgotten," said Mr. Gallivan's statement, "that the act creating the distinguished service medal abolished the certificate of merit, the oldest decoration of the American army which was for enlisted men only."

"I do not care to comment upon the figures which I append. It certainly is illuminating and it is proof conclusive that the medal has been restricted to a much narrower field than even I announced in my remarks in congress.

What Figures Show.

"The figures quoted showed the following distribution of D. S. medals:

"Generals, three; lieutenant generals, two; major generals, 69; brigadier generals, 12; colonels, 265; lieutenant colonels, 78; majors, 13; captains, two; lieutenants, three; chaplains, 43; sergeants, one; corporals, none; privates, none; civilians, male, 25; civilians, female, eight.

"How carefully our allies awarded this same distinguished decoration," the statement said, "can be noted from the following figures which show the awards of the D. S. M. by countries:

Americans (including seven to foreigners), 595; French, 144; British, 79; Italian, 22; Belgian, 19; Japanese, 4; Rumanian, 1."

AUTO MANUFACTURER DIES OF PNEUMONIA

John Dodge Stricken While Attending Automobile Show.

New York, January 15.—John Dodge, of Detroit, automobile manufacturer, died here Wednesday from pneumonia.

Mr. Dodge, with his brother, Horace, came here to attend the automobile show. Theye were both stricken with influenza, which in each case developed into pneumonia. Horace Dodge is said by his physicians to be out of danger.

The career of John F. Dodge paralleled in many ways that of a majority of Mihigan's leading automobile makers. It began in a small machine shop, included many struggles against poverty and failure and its close found him one of the motor kings of the world, with a fortune estimated at upwards of $50,000,000.

Dodge was born in Niles, Mich., fifty-four years ago. After his public school education he served an apprenticeship in his father's machine shop. In 1886 he moved to Detroit to follow his trade. He was shortly afterward joined by his brother, Horace E. Dodge, and for years the brothers worked together as wage earning machinists. Their first business venture was in 1901 when they opened a shop of their own, employing twelve persons. They built parts for automobile concerns just starting in business.

In 1912 the brothers announced their intention of entering the automobile business on their own account. The enterprise was successful from the beginning and under the impetus of the war it grew until today the Dodge interests employ approximately 18,000 persons.

One of the Dodge brothers' efforts after the United States entered the war was a $10,000,000 ordnance plant which, despite the skepticism of military experts, produced the delicate recoil mechanism of the French 158-millimeter guns.

John Dodge is survived by his widow, a daughter and two sons.

GREAT BRITAIN FACES ANOTHER BIG WAR

Lloyd-George, charging him with responsibility for the weakening of the causes of Denikine and Kolchak by alliance with Prinkipo conference ideas and various bolshevik overtures. These papers also take the line that Germany is behind and in conspiracy with the bolshevik maneuvers.

The other section, representing the policy of non-intervention in Russia, attributes all the trouble to Mr. Churchill, the secretary of war, and military influences. If charges the government with indulging in wholesale propaganda to misrepresent the Russian situation and argues that the government has made a disastrous mistake in refusing to negotiate peace with the soviets.

The Star, commenting on the statement regarding the bolshevik activities, describes it as an ominous hunt indicating that the situation in the middle east may be made an excuse by the British government for new and extensive military adventures.

Bolshevik Sweep Continues.

Within the next three months, says a long semi-official statement dealing with near eastern affairs, Great Britain may be faced with a serious bolshevist situation in the near east, which would mean military commitments, according to expert opinion based on official advices from the theaters of war.

The bolshevist occupation of trans-Caspia may be regarded as virtually complete, which makes the position in the Caucasus most difficult from an anti-red viewpoint. There is little hope of stopping the bolsheviki from overrunning the Caucasus, and if they succeeded they will be able to join Mustapha Kemal Pasha (head of the Turkish nationalists) and other Turks for Mesopotamia aggression.

Likewise red occupation of Transcaspia gives the bolsheviki a base of operations against Persia and extending to India, with the co-operation of Afghanistan. Georgia and Azerbaijan are anti-bolshevist, but they are not strong enough to resist the invasion which threatens them from the north, where General Denikine's right wing is being pressed back, and from across the Caspian, where the bolsheviki seems to be well established. There is a large bolshevist element in Bak, and a red landing there would probably result in the recruitment of these bolsheviki immediately.

Dakhestan is even more helpless than Georgia and Azerbaijan. Numerous Turks are also penetrating into the Caucasus from the south with the object of fomenting trouble.

Difficulties in Mesopotamia.

The difficulties in Mesopotamia appear by no means to be finished. Ramadan Shalash, one of the leaders, continues his efforts to stir up the tribes in the British area and has threatened an attack in case of non-compliance with his demands for evacuation of certain districts. The British general, Macmia, has issued an ultimatum ordering the cessation of this agitation and has attacked and dispersed Ramadan's forces which had crossed into British territory.

The reds are pouring troops into Transcapia by greatly improved railways. They have sent detachments toward Khiva, probably with the object of rounding up the scattered forces of the Siberian army. A party of bolshevist Turks is reported to have arrived at Herat, Afghanistan, with two carts containing airplane parts and wireless installation and to have gone on by way of Kandahar and Kabul escorted by Afghan cavalry.

The reds have opened fifty propaganda schools at Tashkent, where Oriental languages will be taught and from which red agents will be sent to India and China and all the Moslem countries. The Tashkent soviet recently determined to concentrate all its efforts first on India.

From Siberia comes the report that the remnants of the Siberian army numbering 6,000 have laid down their arms. General Semenoff, who was defeated in an attack on Irkutsk, is east of Baikal trying to consolidate his position supported by Japanese.

Vladivostok appears to be quiet, although a general strike is in progress. It was preceded by a violent manifesto in which the allies were bitterly assailed.

In south Russia, the reds are driving on toward Odessa, and the invasion of Crimea is imminent. Possession of Crimea, with Sebastopol, would give the reds free access to the Black sea.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT TO QUIT TERRORISM.

London, January 15.—Sentence of death will be imposed on enemies of the soviet Russian government hereafter only when approved by the all-Russian extraordinary commission, according to a wireless dispatch from Moscow today. The bolshevik announcement asserts that a return to methods of terrorism will be made necessary only by renewal of attempts on the part of the entente to hinder the workers and peasants in establishing a system of socialist economics.

The extraordinary commission, the dispatch said, declares the defeat of Generals Yudenitch and Denekine, and Admiral Kolchak, together with the latter's imprisonment, and the capture of Rostov, Novocherkassk and Krasnoyarsk have created new conditions in the struggle against a counter revolution in Russia.

Destruction of the counter revolution and the annihilation of bandits, the extraordinary commission says, "affords us the possibility of abandoning the extreme measure of punishment, namely, the shooting of enemies of soviet Russia. The revolutionary government is glad to state that the fall of Rostov and the capture of Admiral Kolchak affords it the possibility of putting aside the weapon of terror."

ASSISTANT CASHIER AND $6,000 MISSING

H. A. Tomlinson, of Central Railroad, Is Charged With Embezzlement.

An alleged embezzlement of almost $6,000 and the disappearance of H. A. Tomlinson, assistant cashier of the Central of Georgia railroad, came to light in federal court Thursday, when an indictment charging him with the misappropriation of that amount was issued.

The indictment charges that Tomlinson misused $5,075.99 and that on the night of September 8 entered the safe of the railroad and removed $442.30 in cash. One of the largest amounts said to have been misappriated by Tomlinson consisted of various freight bills paid by the Morrow Transfer and Storage company for several hundred consignees for whom tthe storage company had made freight deliveries. These freight bills totaled $1,129.92. The next largest sum was $1,085.60, being a payment of a freight bill of the Atlanta Gaslight company.

According to railroad officials, Tomlinson, who is 30 years old, is married and is the father of a child. He had been in the employ of the railroad for five years. He is thought to have fled to Canada or South America. He has not been seen since September 8, when he is alleged to have entered the safe of the company. The indictment charging him with the theft was based on the federal railroad control law.

WATERPOWER MEASURE GOES TO CONFERENCE

Washington, January 15.—By a vote of nearly three to one the senate today passed the waterpower development bill, different in some respects from the measure adopted by the house in July, but following in a general way the same bill that has been before congress in one form of another for the last decade.

Five republicans and thirteen democrats voted against it, while Senator Nelson, republican, Minnesota, who was in charge of the fight for passage and who had stood his ground against every effort to defeat it, got 52 votes in its favor. The bill was sent to conference for adjustment of house and senate differences.

Amendment Restored

Just befare the final vote was taken the senate reconsidered its former action and restored an amendment which would limit the government license charge on waterpower projects to 25 cents the horsepower developed. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, who opposed the amendment, declared it was a concession to special interests and expressed the opinion that it was calculated to invite a presidential veto.

A motion by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, to reconsider the vote on an amendment by Senator Nugent, democrat, Idaho, affecting power development on land held by Indians brought about a two-hour discussion. Senator Nugent proposed that no license should be authorized within an Indian reservation except by and with the consent of the council of the tribe.

Senator Walsh, in opposing it, held that the government was the guardian of the Indian.

"Old-time graft charges in the election of United States senators by legislatures of the states," Senator Walsh declared, "would not be a circumstance to what would happen if tribal councils passed on the question of waterpower license."

Senator Walsh explained that in making this statement he meant no reflection on the Indians, but that they would be subject to all sorts of graft invitation by special interests.

What Bill Provides.

The bill as passed by the senate provides for creation of a federal waterpower commission, composed of the secretaries of war, interior and agriculture, which would be authorized, after investigation, to issue license for development of water power projects "for a reasonable annual charge." The licenses would run for fifty years.

The measure further provides that the federal commission shall co-operate with the states and other agencies; that there shall be no charge on state and municipal power projects, and that industrial plants, developing less than 200 horsepower, shall not be required to pay a license. On two years' notice in writing the United States would have the right at the expiration of a license, to take over and operate plants.

Power plants now in operation would not come under provisions of the bill.

At the expiration of the fifty-year license period the government would have three alternatives in dealing with all licensed projects: take over the plants, issue a new license, or have the original licenses continue in operation.

Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, contended that if the government tendered a new license and it was refused the original license could continue operation from year to year, which would give virtually a perpetual franchise. Other senators, however, disagreed with this contention.

INJURED IN WRECK, MAN WILL SURVIVE, SAY GRADY DOCTORS

Grady hospital officials reported Thursday night that the condition of Charles Abelman, 32, of 267 Capitol avenue, the victim of an automobile and street car collision on Confederate avenue, near Boulevard, Thursday afternoon, was slightly improved and that he would probably recover.

Abelman, according to witnesses, was attempting to crank a stalled motor truck on the Fair street car line. While he was cranking the machine an East Fair car ran into the rear of the truck, ushing it over Abelman's body. The street car was in charge of Motorman T. J. Chapman, of 100 Echo street, and Conductor C. F. Meadows, of 908 Vine street.

Immediately after the accident Mr. Abelman was rushed to Grady hospital. An investigation of the accident will be conducted by the police authorities to determine the responsibility.

Committees Named For Fulton County Education Board

The annual meeting of the Fulton county board of education was held Thursday in the office of Superintendent J. W. Simmons, at which time the new committees for 1920 were named and plans for the erection of a model school in Egan park were put under way.

The committee appointed by the chairman, Virlyn B. Moore, to prepare plans for the new school, is composed of Arthur Wrigley and D. N. Williams, Superintendent Simmons and Mr. Moore, who is ex-officio member of all committees.

The following committees were named: Finance, Arthur Wrigley (chairman) and Joseph Humphries; teachers, Joseph Humphries (chairman) and D. N. Williams; buildings and grounds, D. N. Williams (chairman) and T. C. Burford; supplies, T. C. Burford (chairman) and Arthur Wrigley.

John McCrary, of the county police force, was appointed compulsory education officer, and he is empowered to enforce the compulsory education law in the county.

Fitzgerald Primary.

NEW FOUND GUILTY IN SECOND DEGREE

Los Angeles, Cal., January 15.—Harry New was found guilty today of second degree murder for shooting and killing his fiancee, Freda Lesser, in Topango canyon, near here, on the night of last July 4. The jury returned the verdict shortly before noon after having been deadlocked for nearly forty-four hours.

Coupled with the verdict was recommendation that the court order the defendant placed in an institution for a "reasonable length of time for observation as to his mental condition."

Lecompte Davis, leading counsel for the defense, announced a motion for a new trial would be made Monday morning at 10 o'clock, the time set by Judge Craig for pronouncing sentence, and said an appeal to the state supreme court would be taken if the motion was denied.

New, according to testimony introduced at the trial, is a son of Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana.

RED CROSS TO SURVEY TWO GEORGIA COUNTIES

DeKalb county and Brooks county, Georgia, have been chosen by the American Red Cross for social surveys covering such subjects as health, sanitation, education, child welfare, family welfare, recreation and community organization.

The surveys will be under the direction of competent experts, assisted by the students and by local committees interested in the welfare of their communities. Miss Kathryn Farra, a social worker of long experience, will conduct the survey in Decatur, and Miss Marguerite Thompson and Mrs. Julie M. Way, two other well known social workers, will be in charge of the Brooks county survey. A social survey is nothing more than a complete investigation of a community, revealing both its assets and its defects.

Keightly's Plane Crashes in Macon; Rider Uninjured

Macon, Ga., January 15.—(Special.)—An airplane in which Captain George M. Keightly, of Orlando, Fla., had intended to carry Miss Adeline Armstrong, of Albany, back to her home, after making a successful flight to Macon yesterday, was wrecked this afternoon at Central City park, when it crashed into a clump of trees. No one was injured.

Captain Keightly was making a test flight at the time of the accident and had planned to return to the park and take Miss Armstrong aboard. Over a sawmill at the southwest end of the park the motor cut out and the machine began to come down, settling in the tops of the trees. Captain Keightly fell a considerable distance but was uninjured.

CALLAWAY CONSIDERED AS SUCCESSOR TO LANE

Georgian Can Have Appointment If He Will Accept, Says Hollomon.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, January 15.—Fuller E. Callaway, of LaGrange Ga., can be secretary of the interior to succeed Frank K. Lane for the one-year tenure of the Wilson administration, if he will accept it.

It is generally understood that Mr. Callaway will decline, if tendered him, by the reason of his large business interests and the close demands upon his time. However, that is not official. That Mr. Callaway is more seriously considered than any other man in America at this writing is perhaps a white house secret, but no less true. The Georgian is not only a favorite of Mr. Wilson, but of Secretary Lane, whose resignation is pending subject only to the selection of a successor.

Secretary Lane is a Canadian by birth, but a Californian by adoption. He is one of the strongest men in the cabinet. He is particularly popular in the south, having visited the section several times during the years of his administration of the interior.

The appointment of Fuller E. Callaway, whom the president has always admired and who was one of the public group in the president's first industrial conference, would be particularly pleasing to the southeastern states, where he is recognized as one of the leading captains of industry. It must not be assumed, however, that he will be appointed because I publish this piece of gossip "out of school." The president has a way of keeping his own council until he has his schedule arranged and, of course, if Mr. Callaway declines the appointment, there will never be a whisper from the white house that he was even considered. I can say, however, that I know it to be a fact his name is under consideration.

The appointment of a secretary of the treasury to succeed Carter Glass will be made shortly and the one best bet tonight is R. C. Leffingwell, the assistant secretary in charge of fiscal affairs. However, the name of John Skelton Williams, the comptroller of currency, is also before the president with almost an equal chance that he will be appointed. You can never tell what Mr. Wilson will do until he does it.

REPUBLICAN SPLIT ON PACT UNLIKELY

So Says Hiram Johnson in Address at Brooklyn, Declaring That Any Treaty Fight Will Be Within Party's Ranks.

By Robert T. Barry.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, January 15.—Senator Hiram Johnson, running mate of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 and candidate of the progressive wing of the republican party for the presidential nominee this year, has put an end to speculation as to the possibility for such a wide split in the republican party as would lead to a "third party nominee."

Senator Johnson announced formally in his address at Brooklyn last night that whatever fight he and his associates would stage over the treaty issue, would be a fight within the ranks of the republican party. He said the "bitter-enders" in the senate would not go so far as to bolt the Chicago convention and go before the people on a "league or no league" issue.

Political leaders were interested today in Mr. Johnson's Brooklyn speech, chiefly because it represented the opening of the progressives' fight within the republican party for control of the convention, the platform and the nomination. They noted, with unfeigned interest, his statement with respect to accepting President Wilson's challenge to make the treaty an issue, but what they were most concerned over was his reference to the possibility of a split in the republican party over that issue, since 15 of the most prominent republican members of the senate are irreconcilable to "bitter-enders" on the treaty.

Leaders Gratified.

These leaders were, therefore, impressed and gratified over Mr. Johnson's declaration in opposition to any "third party" talk.

"The work and the results of the republican national convention will be by all of us acclaimed and ratified," Mr. Johnson said.

It was apparent to republican leaders that Mr. Johnson bears no more love for the so-called "old guard" leaders than he did when he was the associate of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, but they saw in his determination to confine his fight to the ranks of his own party, without taking the more radical step of risking republican success by splitting the party over the treaty issue, the manifestation of a fighting spirit that could not help but to win him recognition from the party leaders of the east.

The conservative leaders of the republican party entertain no misgivings as to the ability of Senator Johnson to make a real fight against them both with respect to the treaty ratification and the industrial problems, but they recognize in his refutation of any "third party" talk a very broad step on his part, to command support in the east, where his record as governor of California, not so well known, so far has failed to impress political commercial leaders as it has in the west.

Many Fear Issue.

"I am quite aware that politicians on both sides fear this issue," Senator Johnson said in New York with respect to the treaty and the Lodge reservations. "I know that certain pussy-footing gentlemen in Washington are most anxious to avoid it. I do not question men's motives, nor do I question the honesty of their attitude upon one side or the other. The only men I question are those who want to be on both sides."

Senator Johnson will go into every state having a presidential preferential primary law and wage a fight for delegates on what he will term the "acid test" of whether the United States shall go into the league or not go into it.

The Californian will wage his fight over article X. of the league covenant.

"Make no mistake about my position. I am against the present covenant of the league of nations. I believe in our traditional policy—friendship and amity with all nations, entangling alliances with none. I would not, of course, isolate our country, and it never has been isolated. The lurid painting of advocates of the league has been wholly unjustifiable. We never have been isolated, commercially, financially, socially or otherwise, and we never will be isolated from the rest of the world. We have played our high part in the past, and, just as we have done in the past, we will do in the future. Whenever there comes to us the cry of humanity or the anguished appeal of civilization, we will respond, but I insist that the people of the United States, represented by the congress acting under the constitution, shall be the ones to determine when we respond and how we respond."

SPECIAL SHOW TAX WILL NOT AFFECT GRAND OPERA HERE

In view of the new ruling of the finance committee of the city council, providing for a tax of 25 per cent on all entertainments, except public ones, given in the Auditorium, Atlanta people have wondered whether or not the annual grand opera would come under this provision.

It was stated Thursday by members of the board of directors of the Atlanta Musical Festival association, which brings the grand opera to Atlanta, that it is a public enterprise, and, therefore, would not be subject to the tax. All proceeds from the course go toward the upkeep and improvement of the Auditorium. During the nine years of the existence of the association the proceeds from the grand opera courses have bought and paid for the $50,000 pipe organ in the Auditorium, which is the largest organ in the south.

The salary of $5,000 annually for the services of the municipal organist has also come from this fund.

Scenery, equipment and electrical effects, totaling $15,000, have been purchased for the Auditorium.

These are among the things which have been done in the past. Improvements along this line, and the organist's salary will, of course, be continued each year. In addition, the $50,000 necessary to make the Auditorium fireproof will come out of the fund secured from the grand opera courses.

ATLANTA'S COUNT.

According to all reports, the process of census-taking in Atlanta is lagging!

Atlanta will have to stand before the world for ten years upon the population rating which the 1920 census gives it.

It is to our advantage, therefore, for the census rating to be as high as conditions warrant.

Atlanta wants to have all that it is entitled to—nothing more, and not a numeral less!

It wants, and is entitled to have, every resident within its borders counted and recorded as a unit of Atlanta's population.

We cannot afford for one man, woman or child to be overlooked or by any chance left out of the count!

To that end every business man, every hotel proprietor, every keeper of a rooming or apartment house, every private householder, every citizen, owes it to the city to see to it that the name of every person in his employ or domiciled in his premises, is duly listed upon Uncle Sam's record books as a resident of Atlanta.

Every citizen should co-operate with the federal census takers and assist in every possible manner to the end that when the official count is completed it will be full and accurate.

The enumeration period ends Saturday night.

At that time the government's books close; and on the showing made Atlanta must stand for ten years.

If there ever was an occasion for public-spirited citizens to bestir themselves in Atlanta's behalf this is one; and the time to get busy is right now!

THRIFT WEEK.

National Thrift Week, which begins tomorrow to extend through eight days, should be productive of much good of a permanent nature.

The idea of observing a "thrift week" originated with, and is being promoted under the auspices of, the Young Men's Christian association; and, very appropriately, the birthday anniversary of Benjamin Franklin—to whom the world is indebted for "Plow deep while sluggards sleep," and many other thrift slogans to a similar point—was selected as its opening day.

While the occasion is sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., its success depends upon nation-wide observance by all elements of the people, and upon the co-operation of the citizenship of the country generally.

The scope of the movement is indicated by the "ten commandments of thrift," upon which it is predicated.

These are:

1. Work and earn.
2. Make a budget.
3. Keep a record of expenditures.
4. Have a bank account.
5. Carry life insurance.
6. Make a will.
7. Own your home.
8. Pay your bills promptly.
9. Invest in government securities.
10. Share with others.

"This campaign, which is not for funds," said Robert F. Maddox, former president of the American Bankers' association, and one of Atlanta's leading citizens, in a recent public address in which he explained the meaning of "National Thrift Week," and urged the people of Atlanta to take its purposes to heart—

"is intended to educate the people of Atlanta—as a part of the national plan—in the factors that go to make up thrift, and to show them the advantages to be gained by such a program."

The "ten commandments" that form the basic structure of the movement are largely dependent one upon another.

If, for instance, a man works and earns and then practices extravagance and waste he will not get the maximum of good results from his labor; or, if he makes a budget, and then does not keep a record of his expenditures, his budget making will be largely wasted effort. Or, if he saves his money, but, by reason of his failure to make a will, involves his heirs in embarrassing legal entanglements after his death, the fruits of his thrift may be largely dissipated.

The wise thing for the public to do is to take each of these splendid and constructive "commandments" seriously to heart, and put all of them into effect collectively.

And if the observance of "Thrift Week" has the effect of educating the masses up to a point of doing that, and inspiring them with a full sense of their duty in that direction, the movement will have more than justified itself.

BONE-DRY.

Tomorrow will live in history as "Bone-dry Saturday"—the first day of nation-wide prohibition by constitutional law.

At 12 o'clock tonight the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution, putting an end to the liquor traffic in this country, so far as it is possible for law to put an end to it, becomes effective.

Prohibition will then be a provision of the fundamental law of the land; so it is probably here to stay, for the only means by which alcohol for beverage use can be reinstated is by the enactment and ratification of another amendment to the constitution permitting it—which, after a trial of real constitutional prohibition would probably be as difficult to do as to nullify the fifteenth amendment, that prohibits human slavery.

Many of our citizens seem to have the impression that the application of the eighteenth amendment will have little effect in states, which, like Georgia, are already "bone-dry" by legislative enactment; but they are mistaken.

There is considerable difference between a state law and a national constitutional provision to the same point. A state law is one thing; a national law by act of congress is another; and a provision of the fundamental law of the land—the federal constitution—is a different proposition from either.

Law enforcement authorities may wink at a mere statutory law; citizens may disregard it and make it a dead letter if public sentiment is either against or passive toward the particular law.

But the constitution of the United States is not to be trifled with!

It must be enforced in letter and in spirit; for if it is not there is no meaning to the republican form of government.

Prohibition is now a part of the fundamental law of the country; and the moonshiners and bootleggers and blind tigers will save themselves some mighty serious trouble if they read history and profit by its lesson.

THE PEOPLE'S WILL.

With twenty-five national organizations of American men and women, comprising a membership of 20,000,000 citizens, formally and expressly demanding in unison that the peace treaty, with the league of nations covenant, be ratified without delay, and in the face of the remarkable "straw" vote of the students and faculties of colleges and universities in all parts of the country overwhelmingly in favor of ratification, it is inconceivable that the senate can longer defer definite action.

The demand of the nation-wide commercial, industrial and social organizations served upon the senate is for ratification by compromise, upon the best possible basis obtainable; and the returns from the "straw" vote of the personnel of the American higher educational institutions is preponderantly expressive of the same desire, the number of votes against ratification being negligible.

This represents the voice and the will of the people of America.

It is high time that the senate were awakening to the fact that the American masses are interested in this thing, and that their welfare is at stake. And the sooner it gets down to business and ratifies the treaty, either with or without reservations, the better it will be all round.

The present traveling program includes "See Cuba First."

It isn't the fault of the dollar that it "doesn't go far," for it certainly keeps a-going.

At least, that bunch of earthquakes saved Mexico from hunting trouble.

He is indeed an optimist who can sing in this strain: "Keepin' up the fire just any place and time, and prices, climbing higher, show a fellow how to climb!"

A Boy Again Just For Tonight

(For The Constitution.)

I'm a little boy again at play; I've turned the hands of Old Time back,
I'm rolling and tossing in new mown hay, and climbing a fodder stack.
Into the barn I have prowled about, in search of new-laid eggs;
I've felt the sting of blackjack sprouts about my little bare legs.
I've sung the songs that I used to sing, and I've taken the corn to mill;
I've drank cool water from the little spring that flows from under the hill.
I've rocked Ma's seventh babe to sleep just as I rocked it then,
I feel the "butt" of our old black sheep, the "peck" of the little blue hen.
I've ridden on Daddie's bare back mule, after plowing her hard all day—
To a "candy pulling" at the "deestrick school," and danced the night away.
I've been to our old swimmin' hole, and plunged and splashed about,
And I've tasted the jam I used to steal from Ma when she would go out.
I've made a little redbird trap, and set it with big four triggers,
And I've had a "fist and skull" mixup with my Dad's little ragged niggers.
I've played the game of "roly hole," and the game of mumble peg,
And I've played the game of hop, hop, scot, while balanced on one leg.
I've helped big Sis to wash the dishes; I've held off the calf for Kate,
And I've tried to make some funny folks on my little frameless slate.
I've felt the pain of a bad stone-bruise, as I once felt on my heel,
And I've held a hank of thread for Ma, while she wound it on her reel.
I've seen my gran'ma weaving cloth on an old-fashioned screeky loom,
And I've been out a-wringing broomstraw to make my Ma a broom.
I've had a rough and tumble scrap with my big brother Will,
And I've taken a ride upon my sled way down the old back lot hill.
I have touched the fuzzy, bizzy end of a drowsy bumble bee,
And I've twisted old Bre'r Rabbit out of a hollow blackgum tree.
I've rolled my copperas breeches up and I've waded in the brook,
And tried to catch little minnows with a bended pin for a hook.
I've roamed the woods with Ma and Dad in quest of the chinquapin,
And I've sat upon the steps at sunrise to watch a new day begin.
I've taken my gun and called my dog, and off we've gone to the woods.
I heard him bark, and the way I ran, for I knew he had treed "the goods."
I've slipped around the hickory tree, my head and heart in a whirl;
I placed my gun and took good aim, and down dropped a little squirrel.
I've traveled again the little white path that led to the country school,
And I've talked once more with the teacher dear, that taught me the Golden Rule.
I've listened to my mother sing again a sweet little lullaby song,
And I've heard her gently call me back when she saw I was going wrong.
I am kneeling tonight at mother's knee as I did when I was young,
Listening to her simple prayer again, and the beautiful songs she sung.
Oh, there are many, many pleasant scenes I remember when a little boy,
And I've wandered back to them tonight, with a heart o'erflowing with joy.
Yes, I've turned the hands backward, far backward tonight,
And became a little boy again, with heart young and light.
I'm now watching the curtain of memory drop on scenes that once were young,
And listening to the softly falling echoes of the childish songs I sung.

"In the Day's News."

Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, U. S. N., retired, who commanded the battleship Maine when that vessel was destroyed in Havana harbor, celebrates his seventy-fifth birthday today, having been born at Albany, N. Y., January 16, 1845. He was appointed to the naval academy in 1859, and graduated in time to participate in some of the memorable naval conflicts that marked the closing years of the civil war. After the war he rendered distinguished service in deep-sea exploration. In 1897 he had advanced to the rank of captain. In the spring of the following year the Maine disaster made him for the time being the most talked about officer in the navy. After the Spanish war Admiral Sigsbee commanded the battleship Texas. In 1907 he was placed on the retired list after forty-five years of active service.

Ancient Bible Language Returning With Jews to Modern Palestine

By William T. Ellis.

Much that is theoretical and purely prospective attaches to Zionism, but the visitor to Jerusalem today may find many evidences of the revived spirit of nationalism among the Jews, such as colonies, schools, hospitals and social service schemes.

Of unique interest is the movement for the restoration of the ancient Hebrew language. This has already attained such firm foundation that there are today in Palestine Jewish children who know no other language than that of "the sweet singer of Israel."

So far as the Jews of the world have a distinctive speech today it is Yiddish. Virtually there is no other of corrupted Hebrew. Yiddish is the language of the ghettoes of Russia and eastern Europe. Since the Jews of America are mostly immigrants from these regions, they also speak Yiddish, Virtually there is no other Jewish language in common use.

A Dream of a Zionist.

However widely dispersed the Jews have never ceased to dream the great dream of a return to their own land. One man who went back to Jerusalem and remained an irrepressible Zionist in spite of all obstacles saw that his people must have back their own language if they ever hoped to claim their own land. So he began a propaganda for the revival of Old Testament Hebrew. He launched a little paper in Jerusalem and a school and, most practical of all, he began work on a modern Hebrew dictionary.

That man is still in Jerusalem and as full of fire and enthusiasm as ever and by no means superannuated. His son, "Ben Avi," is also back in Jerusalem with him after having become a well-known Zionist speaker in America. The son introduced me to the father and thus I was set to looking into the present use of ancient Hebrew in Palestine.

All classes of Jews, the modern Zionist as well as the bigoted ecclesiastics from Spain and Europe, found themselves in agreement upon the proposition that the children of Abraham should have back their own tongue, the common heritage and glory of all of them, in whatever direction they had been scattered. Reasons of national pride, of racial solidarity and of religious loyalty all urged the revival of Biblical Hebrew as a spoken speech.

Bringing Hebrew Down to Date.

Since the time when the language of the Old Testament ceased to be a living tongue, great changes have come over the speech of mankind. The progress of civilization has created thousands of new objects, uses, customs and needs, and each has had to have a set of words coined for it. All dictionaries have to be revised regularly. Nothing less than tremendous changes are necessary to make the tongue that passed current in Palestine three thousand years ago fit for the needs of today. David never talked about an automobile or train or a steamship or an airplane or a whole category of modern science, discovery and education.

Zionism's dictionary maker is having the fun of creating Hebrew words to fit all of these thousands of articles and expressions. He does not want to take over bodily the foreign words and phrases, for the new-old Hebrew language should be consistent in type and usage. Therefore he is adapting largely the Arabic translations for the words missing from King David's vocabulary modifying them as there is need. Arabic and Hebrew are closely related languages, so this makes the lexicographer's task comparatively easy. The new Hebrew dictionary is well on the way toward publication.

David's Tongue in David's City.

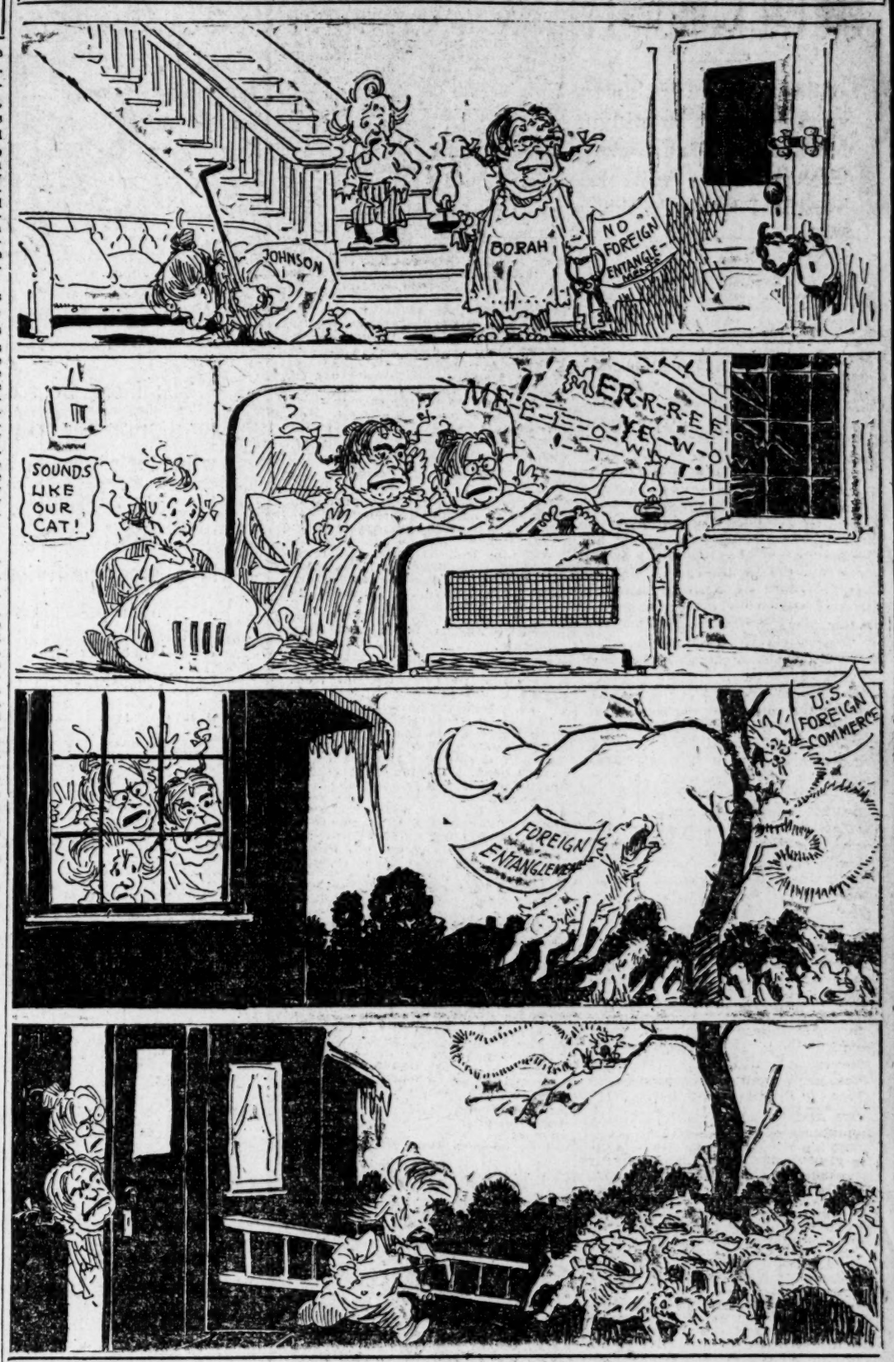

Despite the prevalence of Yiddish, the speech of Jewish immigrants to Palestine from all sections of the earth differs widely. Therefore they are the readier to make the original Hebrew, brought down to date, their common tongue. So schools are in active operation in Jerusalem today, where all subjects are taught in Biblical Hebrew.

Riding from Jerusalem to Haifa in a railway train one day I had for companions an English-speaking Zionist and his little son. The child prattled away in what I took to be Arabic, but the father proudly told me that the son spoke only Hebrew. I recognized many of his words as almost the equivalent of Arabic, but the father explained the slight differences. He further said that so many of the child's playmates spoke Hebrew only that he had no lack of companionship.

So great has been the progress of the movement for the restoration of the Hebrew speech to the Hebrew people that one may go into any of the bazars in Jerusalem commonly patronized by the Jews and by speaking only Hebrew one may be able to transact ordinary business. When the Hebrew-speaking fashion becomes universal it will be a new bond of solidarity for the chosen people.

When We Lock Up Are We Going to Bring the Cat In, Too?

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, January 15.—Thoughts while strolling around Manhattan: There's a touch of gloom about Second avenue. Little patches of parks for the children. Most of them from northeastern Europe. Illyrian atmosphere. There St. Mark's. Has an incandescent cross at night. Stoops crowded with wide-faced Swedish women with jagged teeth. Mumble as you pass. Makes me creepy. Paper flowers in the flat windows.

Polish girls with full busts and slender thighs wear imitations of Fifth avenue styles. Row of hunchbacks in front of an orthepedic home. Women pushing baby cabs look young. Husbands drag along puffing cigarettes. Someone called them the baby-a-year mothers. Little cheap shops noisy with Slavic gutterals. Little cafes have multigraphed handwritten menus pasted in the window. Queer greasy dishes.

A bald-headed ladies' tailor sewing in his window and puffing away at a narghile. Looks happy and contented. Glad Christmas is over. Everybody fears they will get some of that queer liquor. Fifty years hence the victims may be on tablets as martyrs to fanaticism. Who knows? Rich people are leaving their fortunes to servants.

Girl schools ought to turn out first-class lady's maids. There's a real career for any girl. Fifth avenue mistresses paying some of them $40 a week and board—and cast-off clothes. And the last item means something these perilous days. Ruddy-faced man bossing a gang of workmen looks like a preacher. Maybe he is. Lot of them going into the trades.

Still have the movie thrillers over here. Dirk and pistol. Gagged women. Silken mustached villains. I like villains myself. Think I'll be one. Still I don't believe my wife would let me. Push cart peddlers huddle over little charcoal fires. Never seem to smile. Think I'll go up on Broadway where there's life and laughter.

A crap game was one of the exciting episodes in a newly-launched play on Broadway. The critics had unfortunately gone to the smoking room for a few drags at their cigarettes and missed it. But the second night critics—the magazine men—declared it was the most exciting bit of drama seen this year. Women in evening gowns in the boxes applauded enthusiastically.

It was a thirsty crowd of Americans who left New York on a big French liner a week ago. When they got out far enough for the bar to open champagne popped and ice tinkled merrily in highball glasses. As a result the third day out they had drunk the ship dry and only those who had brought their flasks could get a single drop. Bartenders at the high-class hotels who made $60 a week and about $40 more in tips are said to be making $2,000 a week on liners leaving this port.

An old-time theatrical man of the Rialto declares that commercialization of the stage has stripped it of its ancient superstitions. It used to be that to whistle the music from "Macbeth" meant certain disaster and the profession was filled with "jonahs" and mascots," fortunate for some and unfortunate for others. A well-known American actress had to give up the stage because she had been through two or three disastrous fires. The "mascot" was never out of a job and, as a rule, he had no ability. Even Harrigan and Hart had a mascot, and they would not risk an engagement without him. About the only superstition left is the refusal of almost every member of the stage to accept $2 bills.

Men and Business

BY RICHARD SPILLANE

C. F. Higham, M. P., is quoted in a report of a speech he made to the Efficiency club, of London, as saying that if you want to command a big salary or income—say $50,000 a year—the way to do it is not to wait for opportunity, but make it. Get others to work out your ideas, have the courage of your convictions, say "yes" or "no" on the instant and stick to your decision.

Few $50,000-a-year men are really happy, he says. They have that terrible discontent that never is satisfied.

"The man who thinks he can earn $50,000 a year should decide whether he really wants it." Mr. Higham says. "He will not get it if he does not make up his mind, and one day, when he gets it, he will probably regret it. A man should never envy the successful; but emulate them. He should show to his employers an infinite capacity for taking pains and be ready for any question or emergency.

"Be careful of your personal appearance," he proceeded, "look prosperous, act prosperous, be an optimist. Pessimists never get far. Be kind; that is a great virtue. Be courteous; it is the cheapest thing in the world, and being so easy to do most people don't do it. Never break your word. The business world is ever on the lookout for reliable men.

"Sack yourself from the job that does not make you happy to perform it. No man ever got on if he bemoaned the fate that placed him in 'that business.' You must take chances if you want big prizes. Have faith in yourself or no one else will. The world judges you by what you can and do do—not by what you say you can do."

Despite what Mr. Higham says about $50,000-a-year men rarely being happy, not a few persons would risk unhappiness at that price.

What he might have said is that $50,000-a-year jobs are more plentiful than $50,000 men. Years ago, when $20,000 a year meant about as much as $40,000 does today, a New York banker said to the present writer that he always had a place for a $20,000-a-year man and was looking for five of that caliber at that time.

It is questionable whether Mr. Higham is correct in regard to the virtue of saying "yes" or "no" on the instant and sticking to it.

Fred D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, tells a story of a man who once occupied a conspicuous position in the railroad world. He was made president of a big system. Shortly after this man had assumed office one of the directors came to Mr. Underwood.

"Well," he said, "at last we have a real president. I've just been up to So-and-So's office. You know how Thing-in-a-bob used to have his desk piled up with papers? Well, you should see So-and-So. Not a paper of any kind on that great glass-topped desk of his. There he sat, as serene as could be. Men came in and asked questions or submitted matters for decision. He never had to hesitate. To any question he gave an immediate 'yes' or 'no.' In every matter for decision he gave his decision. That's the man we've been looking for these many years. No more shilly-shallying."

"Yes," Mr. Underwood says, in telling his story, "So-and-So was a great man on the trigger. He never hesitated. He would say 'yes' or 'no' right off the bat. And, you may not believe it, but he was right in his decisions in about half of the cases."

There's a moral to this story.

The railroad that had the "yes" or "no" president was one of the richest and soundest in America when he took control of its affairs. Today it is near bankruptcy, while some of its competitors which were not so sound at that time have done remarkably well, all things considered.

Retailers particularly in industrial centers, are facing a crisis. In Lawrence, Mass., they have been put on notice by William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, that they must cut prices and reduce their profits or he will supply his 15,000 employees at that point at cost.

The Carnegie Steel company is selling foodstuffs to its 12,500 employees at cost. Retail merchants at Homestead and other mill towns thought the Carnegie people did not mean it when they appealed to them to cut prices and threatened, if the appeal was unheeded, to start groceries to supply their workers.

Now various of the retailers are without cutsomers and are threatened with bankruptcy.

Not a few cities are establishing municipal stores.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Where to Get Iron.

According to the latest physiological studies there is present in the entire blood of a man of average size about 590 grams (20 ounces) of hemoglobin. This is a very complex proteid, tht is a substance consisting of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur and in addition hemoglobin contains a minute quantity of iron. The iron amounts to considerably less than the sulphur in the hemoglobin of the blood. The iron in the entire mass of blood amounts to about half a teaspoonful, according to the latest physiological investigations.

The hemoglobin is contained in the red blood corpuscles. In each teaspoonful of blood there are over sixteen hundred millions of red corpuscles, and to state it in Sunday edition style, the total surface area of all the red corpuscles of the entire blood (25 trillions of corpuscles, if you know what I mean) amounts to just one and three-fourths square miles. I give these figures, not to fill space (for my job here depends on saving space), but to emphasize the very great surface of red corpuscles available for absorption of oxygen from the air in the lungs. You see, every single red corpuscle passes in single file through some ultimate capillary in the lungs where it gives off its carbon dioxide and takes on its load of oxygen. The blood corpuscles are tireless carriers.

The physiologists estimate that something less than one-fifth of a grain of iron is excreted from the body daily, and this amount of iron must be supplied to the blood daily in one form or another. Don't worry about it. It is easy to eat a fifth of a grain of iron a day. Each of these foods supplies in the most available form for the blood the amount of iron required each day:

Green cabbage leaves	.3 ounces
Apples	2½ ounces
Spinach	1½ ounces
Cow's milk	1½ pints
Potatoes	1 ounce
Carrots	1 ounces
Lettuce	2 ounces
Prunes	4 ounces
Egg yolk	3 ounces
Oatmeal	2½ ounces
Beef	4 ounces
Almonds	3 ounces
Peas	4 ounces

In fact it is difficult for an adult to select a diet which does not furnish all the iron the blood can utilize unless perchance the food is too much refined or demineralized in preparation.

It is true that anemia or a diminution in the number of red corpuscles or in the amount of hemoglobin (iron) in the blood is about the commonest of ailments, or rather a symptom of a thousand every day ailments. But to take iron-containing medicines in the hope of "building up the blood" is about the most futile thing imaginable in the way of a remedy for such ailments. The blood is weakened as a result, not as a cause, of the disease. Let the disease be properly treated and the blood will take care of itself, never fear. I doubt if all the iron ever administered medicinally has added one grain of iron to the blood, save when food has been taken in insufficient quantity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Quinine, Real and Imaginary.

If a person takes two or three tablets said to be good for grippe and they make his ears ring, doesn't that prove they contain quinine? (P. L. W.)

ANSWER—No. Acetanilide, phenacetine, antipyrin, acetyl-salicylic acid (so-called "aspirin") and salicylate of soda are drugs which often make the ears ring. Most of the various "cold and grippe" remedies on the market depend chiefly upon acetanilide or phenacetine for the pain-killing, head-ringing effects.

Last Night's Dreams; What They Mean

Did You Dream of Figures?

Not infrequently our dream consciousness gets in a mathematical vein and amuses itself with figures. In the bad old days of high-balls and "policy" dreaming numbers and playing them the next day as a "gig" were among the diversions of the unregenerate. Dream mathematics have long been given much attention by the mystics and the modern scientists who apply the psycho-analytic tests to dreams have likewise considered them, obtaining thereby results as interesting as their processes are ingenious.

The amount of natural depravity which men like Freud and Jones can discover in the multiplication table is astonishing. The mystics say that to dream of numbers and be able to recollect them upon awakening is a most favorable omen for your business; while if you can not recollect them some anxiety and trouble with regard to your affairs is portended, probably caused by some one trying to overreach you in a business deal. Or perhaps it means simply that your anxiety with regard to your affairs will be caused solely by their unsettled condition. Another signification of numbers seen in a dream is that you will soon hear good news.

If you dream that you are in a company and that you count the number of people present, achieved ambition and great success will be yours. Some mystics say that all numbers above 78 mean uncertainty and all below success, while others say below 90 means uncertainty and above success. The mystics do not approve of solving a mathematical problem in a dream which is strange, for one of the most remarkable dreams on record is that of the Marquis de Condorcet, the celebrated French philosopher and mathematician, who solved in a dream a complicated mathematical problem which had altogether baffled him in his waking hours and thereby added greatly to his fame.

Short Talks on Psychology

By PROF. CHARLES GRAY SHAW, Ph. D.
New York University

Feeling Your Way

If it is a fair question, did you not often feel that you were by the side of Marshal Foch, whom you advised as to certain points of strategy during his defensive drives of months ago? Were you not in the trenches, and did you not say, "Come on, fellows!" as the doughboys went over the top? How about the recent world series; did you not take your turn in the box or at the bat when one of the crucial moments came?

If you did not do any such things, if you have not the habit of so feeling your way that you put yourself into life and its various situations, you will hardly understand what psychology calls empathism, a tendency on the part of the individual to put himself into life here and there as his wrought-up fancy pleases. Most travelers are willing to confess that upon visiting a strange land they have wondered how the cities could have been put there without their own aid. Think it over, and find out how empathic you are.

We counsel a man to be fair when we say "put yourself in his place." But this is just what we do all the time, only we are more likely to introduce our personalities into scenes than other peoples' skins. We are all empathic, egotistic, self-centered, and that is why we wish we could have been at Versailles, where our brains are so sorely needed.

This habit of feeling one's way into life is a good thing until the percentage of the fancy becomes too high. It is the first step toward sympathy; it makes one believe that he is one with the whole world. It can become a bad habit when it is taken too literally, as in the case of King George IX., who kept asserting that he had been at the battle of Waterloo, until finally he came to believe it himself. Beware of such Waterloos.

You must feel your way as well as will and think your way about in the world. Your empathic tendency will help you in becoming a teacher, a salesman, engineer. You may start out by feeling that you have been this already, and some one may try to palm off ideas of previous existence. At any rate, you have the right to feel that you have been almost in this or that position which you try to fill; then you will succeed all the more easily.

You are not needed in the senate or on the big league team, but you are needed elsewhere, so that you do well to feel your way, to feel that you have arrived.

Today's Birthdays.

Right Hon. Ivor Churchill Guest, second Baron Winborne, former lord lieutenant of Ireland, born forty-six years ago today.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, one of the foremost actors of the English-speaking stage, born in London sixty-seven years ago today.

Tabernacle Congregation Thanks The Constitution For Aid in Raising Debt

The congregation of the Tabernacle Baptist church, by unanimous vote, passed the following resolutions, thanking The Constitution for its aid in the church's long fight to liquidate its indebtedness of $111,000:

"The Tabernacle congregation desires to express thanks of its entire congregation for the unstinted support of The Atlanta Constitution, both in its editorials and news columns, in helping to liquidate the indebtedness of $111,000.

"As a congregation, we shall ever feel a debt of gratitude for the invaluable assistance rendered by one of the foremost dailies of the nation. Without newspaper support, we would not have succeeded. We shall treasure many of the editorials in the archives of church history and publish same in the memorial volume now being prepared.

'As a congregation we stand unqualifiedly with a good-will and suport of your great institution.

RAILROADS' WANTS OUTLINED IN BRIEF

Though Insistent Upon Generous Financing, They Are Apparently Anxious for Principles of Government Ownership.

By Frederic W. Wile.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, January 15.—What the railroads of the United States want in the way of government aid and regulation is set forth in a remarkable "brief" just submitted on their behalf to the house and senate conferees on the Esch-Cummins bills. The Constitution correspondent had access to this document today. It was prepared for a majority of the railway executives by their general counsel, was approved by them, and is now under discussion among the house and senate conference committeemen. The "brief" outlines what the leading railroad magnates consider to be the legislation essential to resumption of private ownership.

The document goes over virtually all the ground in controversy, including points in dispute between the railway executives themselves, as developed in their conference at Washington last week. One of these groups is headed by Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Judge Robert S. Lovett, of the Southern Pacific, and T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the railway executives committee. The other group is led by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and Howard Elliott, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Want Profitable Provisions.

First and foremost among the points made by the railway executives is their acceptance in principle of government regulation. They are apparently even anxious for it. But they insist that government control must be accompanied by finding provisions for generous financing of railway properties, for their profitable operation, for future money needs, and for the liquidation of existing obligations.

Of hardly secondary importance in the "brief" is the demand for a government guarantee of income. The executives are opposed, however, to the so-called "equalization" of revenue whereby unprofitable roads would be indirectly financed by the richer lines.

On the critical question of the participation of labor in the management of the roads, the executives take strong ground. They want all labor disputes arbitrated on a compulsory basis as provided in the senate bill. They renew their hostility to the inclusion of representatives of labor and the public in railway boards of directors. "It is exceedingly doubtful," the brief states, "whether labor desires such representation. Even if it does, the proposed provision would relieve the boards of directors a portion of the responsibility to the public for the performance of the duty of the carrier and would impose a part of that responsibility upon labor and the public itself."

Functions Defined.

The functions of government regulation are defined by the executives in two terse paragraphs:

"The governmental authority (meaning the interstate commerce commission) should be discharged with the definite duty:

"1. One of keeping itself informed as to the facilities and service which are furnished and those which the commerce of the country requires, and as to the credit of the carriers and the amount of revenues necessary to enable them to provide the facilities and service that are needed; and

"2. Of fixing rates which will produce revenues sufficient to pay the expenses of operation, including labor and taxes; a fair return on the property held or used in the public service and an amount in addition sufficient, as a basis of credit, to enable the carriers, comprehensively considered in the various sections of the country, to obtain the capital necessary to enable them to furnish the facilities and the service which the public need."

The much-discussed section 6 or Underwood amendment to the Cummins bills finds no favor at the executives' hands. This section aims to "equalize" the value of railroad properties irrespective of their size, in importance or locality. The less profitable lines support section 6, inasmuch as it fixes a return on their investment, while guaranteeing adequate operating revenue. The richer companies oppose the section on the general ground that it will debar them from utilizing excess earnings for their own purposes. Under section 6, as it now stands, these excess earnings would go back to the government treasury.

Interesting Case.

The executives put forward an interesting case for their immediate financial needs. They contend that the government ought to provide for an additional loan of at least $500,000,000 for the use of the railroads under private management. The house bill offers $250,000,000 and the senate bill a loan of $500,000,000. It is declared that half a billion dollars is the irreducible minimum with which the railroads can afford to be content. Even with this federal grant in aid, the companies, it is claimed, will require to appropriate not less than one billion dollars for extension and improvement of equipment and other purposes during 1920. In this connection, the railroads strongly urge reconsideration of that section of the house bill which requires the president to set off the current indebtedness of the government to a carrier against the carrier's capital. "If the indebtedness of the carriers to the government remains unfunded," say the executives, "and must be provided for elsewhere, the amount which the roads will go into the market to secure will be that much larger and will become absolutely prohibitory."

The executives brand as insufficient the proposed six months period in which the government is to continue to guarantee a fixed return to the invester. It is represented that reorganization and refinancing will require the lion's share of a year. Government guarantees on the present basis, it is felt, should be extended for at least eight or ten months.

Object To Provision.

Objection is taken by the executives to the senate bill's provision preventing a land carrier from increasing any rates reduced to meet water competition unless after a hearing by the interstate commerce commission it shall be found that each proposed increase rests on a cause rather than elimination of water competition.

"This provision," it is declared, "would prevent the commission from permitting an increase of a rate thus lowered, even as a part of a general increase of rates and even if such increase is necessary to establish a harmonious rate system and to prevent discrimination. It seems to us that the discretion of the commission should be enlarged in this connection and that an increase of a rate heretofore reduced for the reason mentioned, might be not only justified but required in the house."

The executives also object seriously to the old system of state control of interstate rates on interstate lines. "We again call attention," they say, "to the fact that it is impossible to maintain a structure of interstate rates without corresponding changes in state rates, and that if the state rates are left to be finally determined by the states, it amounts to surrender by the federal government of the power to regulate rates on interstate commerce.

The executives discuss at considerable length such questions as the burden of proof on applications for increase of rates; the division of the interstate commerce commission to consider questions of valuation; regulations of the issues of securities; limitation of passes in favor of physicians, surgeons and attorneys, long and short haul clause, common directors and automatic train stops.

WILSON OFFERED THE PRESIDENCY OF PAN-PACIFIC UNION

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, January 15.—President Wilson was today asked to become the next president of the Pan-Pacific union, an international organization of nations bordering on the Pacific ocean and having its headquarters in Honolulu, Hawaii. He has been honorary president of the organization for several years, and is now being asked to assume active leadership when he leaves the white house.

Alexander Humeford, of Honolulu, secretary of the union, personally brought the invitation from the Hawaiin Islands. He likewise offered Secretary Lane a salaried position in the organization. He declared that the purpose of the organization is to foster good will among the nations bordering on the Pacific ocean.

Sixty-Gallon Still Captured at Conley By Revenue Officers

Revenue Officers Kirkland, McKinney and Sowell, operating in Clayton county, captured a complete 60-gallon distilling outfit early Thursday morning, about two miles west of Conley, Ga.

The outfit included a 60-gallon still, five fermenters, a furnace, a thumper-keg and flake stand, pipe connections, and a number of tools. More than 200 gallons of beer was also confiscated. The information was contained in a report received in Atlanta Thursday by Internal Revenue Agent D. J. Gantt.

Stillmore, Ga., January 15.—(Special.)—Dr. J. R. Warren was elected mayor of this place at the recent election to succeed himself for a third term. His plans are to install a municipal light plant and a system of waterworks this year, it being understood the present owners of the privately-owned light plant are willing to dispose of their plant.

Mayor Warren will have associated with him a board of councilmen who are well-known business men, consisting of R. W. Harper, E. H. Heath, H. T. Gaines and E. A. Edenfield.

One Badly Burned, Auto Is Destroyed In Gasoline Blaze

Thousands of Gallons of Gas Wasted When Small Negro Applies Match to Stream From Tank Car Being Unloaded.

Macon, Ga., January 15—(Special.)—Harry C. Stewart, manager of the Stewart Oil company, was seriously burned, several thousand gallons of gasoline went to waste and an automobile belonging to T. J. Stewart was destroyed here today when a little negro boy a block away touched a match to a stream of gasoline which was flowing from a tank car at Seventh and Walnut streets, while a number of workmen were making a futile effort to connect up transfer pipes to a storage tank in order to transfer the gasoline.

By its own weight the gasoline was forced from the tank in a great stream, drenching the clothing of the workmen and Harry Stewart, who was directing them in their operations. A block away several persons saw a small negro boy apply a match to the stream of gasoline and in a flash the flames were shooting toward the tank car. T. J. Stewart's automobile was directly in the path, and Harry C. Stewart ran to it in an effort to save it.

He got in the car but before he could start it his clothing became ignited. He jumped to the ground and ran nearly a block on Walnut street near Central City park, before he plunged into a pool of water at the side of the street. The plunge saved his life, for it extinguished the flames.

He was hurried to the Williams Sanitarium by an automobile, where he is reported tonight to be in a serious condition, his arms, legs, hands and face being badly burned. Firemen responded quickly to an alarm and kept the flames away from the tank car until the flow of the liquid had been stopped.

POLAND MUST RECKON ALONE AGAINST REDS

Uncertain Yet Whether Bolshevists Will Attack Poles.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Warsaw, January 15.—The complete annihilation of General Denikine's army makes an immense change in the military situation affecting Poland. Only a few weeks ago, the possibility of offensive operations in co-operation with General Denikine were being discussed on the assumption that the Russian volunteer army would be in touch with the Poles in the spring on the Dnieper.

Now that the army can hardly be said to exist, the Poles must reckon with the probability of facing alone an attack by united bolshevist forces, and the red troops available to move against the Poles would not only be infinitely more numerous than before, but will be better equipped and more mobile, owing to captures of military stores and rolling stock from General Denikine.

Will Bolshevists Attack?

Will the bolshevists attack Poland? They hardly can remain on the defensive, and Poland is their most formidable enemy. The Polish front, however, is strategically very strong, and the bolshevists' flanks would be exposed to attack on the north by the Letts and on the south by the Rumanians. Besides, the reds would have to go a long way before they could reach anything worth taking. Victory would have very little value, either material or moral, until they reached Vilna, which is about 150 miles behind the front.

However, there is reason to believe an offensive against the Poles would be very popular with the officers of the red army. Trotzky himself, it is said, favors it. In a general way, it is to be regarded as certain that if they are forestalled, the bolshevists will attack the Baltic states or Poland, or both. It is hardly likely, however, that the attack will begin before the end of April. It will take them at least two months to recover from their efforts against General Denekine and concentrate materials on the western front.

Subject of Discussion.

These questions will form the subjects of discussions in Paris between Premier Clemenceau and Lloyd-George and M. Patek, Polish foreign minister, as well as of the conference of representatives of the Baltic states in Helsingfors, where M. Wassilewski, one-time foreign minister, is taking part as the representative of Poland. M. Wassilewski, who is accompanied by a military representative of the Poles, would like to extend the present military convention with the Letts into an arrangement whereby united Esthonian and Lettish and Polish forces form a single front, under Polish command.

Poland can afford even less than Finland, Lettvia and Esthonia to make peace with Russia in its present state. It would be hypocrisy to say Russia does not want peace, and in that respect Tchinerine's radio message, inviting pourparlers, speaks nothing less than the truth.

So far the Polish government has made no reply to the invitation, and there is doubt what the reply will be. But Poland is entirely dependent on the allies since the result of the Helsingfors conference and the return of M. Patek from Paris is being awaited eagerly.

FIRST MEETING OF REALTY BOARD THURSDAY, JAN. 22

The first meeting of the year of the Atlanta real estate board wil be held Thursday, January 22, at the Piedmont hotel, according to an announcement made yesterday by Benjamin D. Watkins, president of the board. Mr. Watkins will arrange a program this week with the aid of the other officers of the board.

The real estate board will in 1920 enter into many of the big city movements. Among other things, Mr. Watkins will indorse the movement of the chamber of commerce in creating a city planning commission in his inaugural address.

At a meeting of the board last December, Mr. Watkins was elected president of the board to succeed Charles H. Black.

VOLUNTEERS WANT RIGHT TO ASK ALMS

A plea from the Volunteers of America will be heard at the next session of the police committee for renewed permission to solicit alms. The authority to solicit was revoked four months ago by the city council, following complaints made by persons living near the Volunteer home.

Unless the Volunteers have cleaned house thoroughly, Chairman Al H. Martin and others of the committee declared, the authority would not be granted.

JOHNSON RESIGNS MILL PRESIDENCY

Allen F. Johnson, President Exposition Cotton Mills, to Accept Position With Large Corporation.

President Allen F. Johnson, of the Exposition Cotton Mills, tendered his resignation to the directors at their regular monthly meeting yesteday. It was accepted, to take effect February 15..

Other business engagements was the reason given by President Johnson for resigning, but just what these were he said he was not at liberty to state for the present. It was learned, however, that Mr. Johnson has accepted an important and responsible position with a large manufacturing corporation which owns a number of mills in the south, regarding which a more detailed announcement will be made in the near future.

ALLEN F. JOHNSON,
Who Yesterday Resigned from Exposition Cotton Mills Presidency.

Directors of the Exposition Mills expressed deep regret over Mr. Johnson's resignation, both personally and because of the splendid service he has rendered the property.

The Exposition Cotton Mills have been built up under his management into an institution that is now bringing splendid returns to the stockholders.

First Mill Training.

Mr. Johnson, who is from West Point, received his first mill training with the West Point Manufacturing Co., of that city, and after eight years' service there went with the Milstead Manufacturing Co., at Conyers, one of the Calloway group of mills, as secretary and manager. After eight years there he was tendered the position of president and manager of the Exposition Mills in 1912, and has been with this institution for a period of eight years.

While no additional spindles have been added, the production of the mills has been increased about 75 per cent under President Johnson's management: and the operation has been so profitable that whereas the stock sold around 125 in 1912, it is today quoted at 350, and cannot be bought even at that figure. While the United States was at war with Germany, about 80 per cent of the mill's products were sold direct to the government.

Served With Government.

Mr. Johnson served on the government cotton goods price fixing committee during the war as a representative of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, and gave a good deal of time and attention to this work in Washington. He has served two terms as president of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia and is now vice president of The American Cotton Manufacturers' association.

President Johnson said that his particular regret at this time was that his new engagement might necessitate his leaving Atlanta, though he still hoped to be able to continue to make his home here.

RED CROSS NAMES LOGAN ASSISTANT DIVISION MANAGER

Joseph C. Logan, director of civilian relief for the southern division of the American Red Cross, has been appointed assistant division manager, it was announced yesterday, acting jointing in this position with Legare Davis, whose appointment as assistant division manager was recently announced.

Mr. Logan's appointment will be of interest throughout the south as well as in Atlanta, for he had been prominently identified for many years in the leadership of social and civic progress in this section.

A native of Atlanta and a graduate of the Atlanta public schools, Mr. Logan studied for the bar, taking degrees at Roanoke college and Columbia university and practicing law in Virginia and Georgia until 1905, when he was made general secretary of the Associated Charities of Atlanta, in which capacity he served for twelve years, aiding in the initiation and development of many progressive enterprises for the welfare of the city and the state. During part of this time he represented the Red Cross on a number of occasions, such as the admnistration of disaster relief after the Key West storm of 1910, and at the Briceville, Tenn., and Palos, Ala., mine explosions, and the Atlanta fire of 1917.

POST TOASTIES

Russian Symphony Orchestra At the Auditorium Tonight

Modest Altschuler and his Russian symphony orchestra of fifty players, together with Miss Helen Desmond, piano soloist, will arrive in the city Friday at noon from Savannah for their concert at the Auditorium Friday night. They will give only one performance in Atlanta this time and judging from the advance sale of tickets, the Auditorium will be comfortably filled to greet this wonderful orchestra. The concert will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock, so everybody should be in their seats before this time. It takes thirty minutes to play the first number and no one will be seated until this number is finished.

All Alkahest lyceum patrons who held season tickets to the 1918-1919 series are entitled to admission to this concert on these tickets but in order to secure same it will be necessary for them to exchange these old tickets for coupons at the Cable Piano company by Friday evening. In case their old tickets have been lost, they can call at the Alkahest office in the Healey building, where duplicates can be furnished. It is hoped that none of the old patrons will miss this number, which was postponed from last season.

The program selected for the Atlanta concert is an exceedingly popular one and in addition to the regular announced numbers several charming lighter pieces which find such favor with audiences everywhere will be played, as Mr. Altschuler, the conductor, has orchestrated many compositions originally written for the piano, the violin, or the cello, such as the famous Beethoven "Minuet," the preludes of Rachmaninoff, some of the Rubinstein Etudes, selections from John Powell's piano suite entitled "At the Fair," the Russian "Soldiers' Song," and several of Scriabine's piano concerti.

A great number of students from the various colleges in and around Atlanta have secured seats to the concert this evening but there are plenty of good seats yet available and will be on sale at the Cable Piano company throughout the day. After 6 o'clock this evening tickets may be secured at the box office of the Auditorium at popular prices, ranging from 50 cents to $1.50.

GRANVILLE BARKER TO LECTURE HERE ON TUESDAY NIGHT

The coming of Granville Barker, famous British dramatist, to Atlanta next week as the first of three leading British writers who will lecture in Atlanta under auspices of the Atlanta center of the Drama League of America, is being eagerly awaited, not only by members of the Drama league, but by hundreds of other Atlantans who anticipate that his lecture, and the others to follow, will be one of the most interesting series Atlanta has had in years.

This is indicated by the sale of tickets now going on at the Cable Piano company and the Cole Book company. The tickets are being sold at $3 for the series, with a special rate of $2.25 to students and of $2 to members of the Drama league. No tickets will be sold to individual lectures, it is stated, and thus it is desirable for purchasers to buy now for the series.

Granville Barker, who will speak at Egleston hall at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of January 20, is one of the most famous playwrights produced by England in the last half century, ranking in fame along with Galsworthy, Barrie, Shaw and others. His Atlanta subject will be "The Only Possible Theater," which he is certain to discuss in an interesting way.

The second lecture will be March 1 by Hugh Walpole, the novelist, and the third by William Butler Yeats. All proceeds of the lecture will go toward building a recreation hall and girls' gymnasium at the Martha Berry school at Rome. The Atlanta Martha Berry circle is co-operating with the Drama league in giving the lectures.

RALPH A. TRACY IS NEW SUPERVISOR FOR PHOENIX LIFE

A recent change in the management of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance agency in Atlanta has been announced by President John M. Holcombe, from the home office of the company at Hartford, Conn., in which Ralph A. Tracy, connected with the Atlanta agency for the past year, has become supervisor for the state of Georgia.

Mr. Tracy was engaged in the insurance business in Hartford, prior to the war, and upon America's entry into the war he went into Y. M. C. A. work—he having been engaged as a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Hartford before taking up insurance work—and was made general secretary at Camp Hancock at Augusta. Mr. Tracy desired to remain in the south, and when his service at Camp Hancock was ended, he connected with the Atlanta agency. Upon the transfer of George L. Hunt to Cleveland, Mr. Tracy was made supervisor at Atlanta.

Mr. Hunt, former Atlanta supervisor, will be remembered as the president of the Atlanta Kiwanis club, and a live wire in all civic matters in the city. Mr. Tracy spent ten days in Hartford recently where he attended a manager's school of the company, returning to Atlanta in full charge of the company's business in Georgia.

"One of the biggest forward steps that has ever been taken by any company was announced by Vice President and Agency Manager Winslow Russell, of the Phoenix Mutual, on January 1," stated Mr. Tracy upon his return to Atlanta. "On January 1, the company canceled all contracts with agents devoting only part time to the work of writing life insurance. They have also established schools in the home office for training salesmen, the course being six weeks, and no agent will be given a contract with the company in the future who has not first completed this course at Hartford."

LIQUOR-MAKING BOOKS BARRED BY LIBRARY

Springfield, Mass., January 15.—The city library announced today it had removed from its shelves all volumes dealing with the manufacture of alcoholic liquors. The librarian believes this action is in keeping with the spirit of the prohibition amendment by tending to prevent manufacture.

MRS. THOMAS GOES TO KNOXVILLE ON MARKET QUESTION

With the idea of establishing a city market in Atlanta, Mrs. Irving Thomas, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, and Mrs. Norman Sharp, chairman of the market committee, leave this morning for Knoxville, with a view of examining the city market in that city, and of getting any information that might be of assistant in their work here.

Irving Thomas has already left on an extended trip to Baltimorme, Washington, New York and all the other large cities of the east for the purpose of getting photographs and valuable data of the large eastern markets, the cost of operating and the revenue.

The Council of Jewish Women met this week and expressed themselves as being in hearty co-operation with the plans of the Woman's club in getting a city market for Atlanta. In the council there are about 500 women, Mrs. Harry Schlessinger being its president.

Under the leadership of Mrs. A. P. Coles, the City Federation of Women's Clubs, will meet Friday morning and resolutions will be offered indorsing the market plan.

The trip of Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Sharp will extend over several days, and on their return they will present a report at the next meeting of the Woman's club in the new home of the club on Peachtree street.

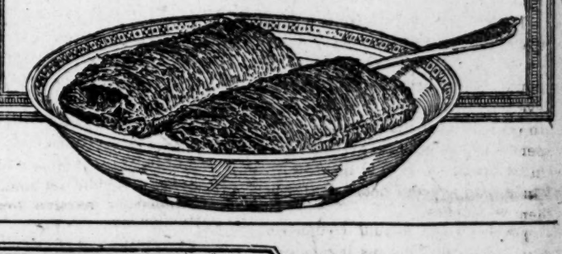

At th same time, Mr. Thomas will also have a report ready covering his trip to the eastern markets.

Charity Ball Tonight At Camp Gordon

One of the most brilliant social events of the season will be the charity ball for the benefit of the Armenians to be held at the Army Service Hostess House at Camp Gordon tonight.

An appeal was sent to the officers' wives at Camp Gordon from the headquarters of the Near East Relief association, New York city, which is headed by such representative men as Wm. H. Taft, Henry Morganthau, and Alexander J. Hemphill. This call was immediately responded to with a great amount of enthusiasm, the women realizing what a worthy cause it was. The result of their interest will be one of the greatest social events in the history of Camp Gordon.

There will be a reception from 8:30 until 9:00, and some of Atlanta's most prominent women have asked to act as patronesses, besides a number of distinguished women of the army contingent; these will include Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Mrs. Richard W. Johnston, Mrs. Mell Wilkinson, Mrs. E. T. McBurney, Mrs. J. M. VanHoelinger, Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, Miss Isma Dooly, Mrs. Ulric Atkinson; the wives of Colonel Bratton, of Ft. McPherson, Colonel Coyle, Camp Jesup, and Colonel Charles R. Noyes, Colonel Nelson, Colonel W. D. A. Anderson, James H. Bradford, John R. Lee, Colonel G. L. Townsend, Colonel R. H. Peck, Colonel W. R. Davis, Colonel L. A. McClure, Colonel F. H. Campbell, all of Camp Gordon.

The entire Fifth division band will furnish the music, it being divided into two sections so that dancing may be continuous throughout the evening.

The two spacious rooms of the Hostess House will be thrown together, and elaborately decorated with the Armenian colors and greens.

Refreshments will be served throughout the evening. Mrs. T. M. Galbreath, as chairman of this committee, has the following assistants: Mrs. R. H. Peck, Mrs. W. J. O'Loughlin, Mrs. J. C. Reed, Mrs. A. E. Rothermich, Mrs. Alfred Zuern.

There will be many side attractions, one, a roulette wheel, where prizes will be won. There will be chances on two beautiful boxes of chocolates which have been donated to the cause by the Norris Candy company, as well as chances on cartons of cigarettes and boxes of cigars. In charge of these will be six very charming matrons, Mrs. James Blyth, Mrs. Lowe A. McClure, Mrs. Walter F. Mullins, Mrs. Lloyd D. Brown, Mrs. J. A. Watson and Mrs. E. C. Allworth. One quiet room will be devoted to card playing where one may rest during an optional intermission between dances.

Mrs. J. E. Haygood and Mrs. A. L. Brodie are seeing to it that Mr. John Barleycorn will be present in person and last ceremonies will be paid him at 12:00 o'clock, when national prohibition goes into effect.

There promises to be a large attendance of society people of Atlanta as well as army people of Fort McPherson, Camp Jesup, and Camp Gordon. There will be automobiles to meet all street cars arriving at Camp Gordon from 8:20 to 9:20 inclusive; also from the Hostess House for the 11:00, 12:00 and 1:00 o'clock street cars.

For Mr. and Mrs. Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carroll, who have recently returned to Atlanta for residence, will be guests or honor at a dinner at which Mr. Van Astor Batchelor will entertain Saturday evening, at the Piedmont Driving club.

Mrs. Little, Hostess.

Mrs. John D. Little will entertain at a luncheon Sunday in honor of her sister, Mrs. Louis Stevens, of Macon, who is her guest this week.

The Further Adventures of Jimmie Dale

CHAPTER XXII.

The Tocsin's Story.

It was a whimsical movement, a whimsical trick of Jimmie Dale's—that outward thrust of his hand that he might study it in a curiously impersonal, yet mercilessly critical way. He laughed a little harshly, as he allowed his hand to drop again to the arm of his chair. No, there was no tremor there—mentally he might be near the breaking point, his nerves raw and on edge; but physically, outwardly, he gave no sign of the strain that, cumulative in its anxiety, had increased hourly, it seemed, in the three days that had passed since the night he had so narrowly escaped the trap laid by that unknown master criminal, whose cunning, power and malignant genius was dominating and making itself felt in every den and dive of the underworld, and for whom the Pippin and the Mole that night had been but blind tools, pawns moved at the will of this unseen, evil strategist upon a chessboard of inhuman deviltry.

An evening newspaper lay open on the table. Jimmie Dale's eyes fixed for an instant on a glaring headline, then travelled slowly around the little room—one of the St. James' Club's private writing rooms—and came back to the paper again. The failure of that night, the Pippin's death, the stir and publicity, the stimulus given to police activity, had, it seemed, in no way acted as a deterrent upon the sinister ingenuity which, he made no doubt, was likewise the author of the mysterious crime that tonight was upon every tongue in the city—the murder of one of New York's most prominent bankers under almost incredible circumstances, and the coincident disappearance of a number of documents which were vaguely hinted at as being of international importance and priceless worth. The crime had been committed in broad daylight, in mid-afternoon, in the banker's private office, and within call of the entire staff of the bank. No one had been seen either to enter or leave the office during an interval of some fifteen to twenty minutes, previous to which time it had been established by one of the staff that the banker was engaged in his usual occupation at his desk, and at the expiration of which he had been discovered by the cashier lying dead upon the floor, his skull fractured by a blow that had evidently been dealt him from behind, the desk in disorder as though it had been hurriedly searched, and the papers, known to have been in the banker's possession at that time, gone.

Jimmie Dale brushed his hand across his eyes in a dazed way. No, of course, he did not know, he could not actually know it was the same guiding evil genius at work here that had murdered both Forrester and old Melinoff, but something beyond actual proof, a sense of intuition, made of it a certainty in his own mind, at least, which left no room for argument. There had been viciously clever work here, as daring and crafty as it was remorseless in its brutality, and—he laughed suddenly, harshly as before, and, rising abruptly from his chair, stepped to the window, pushed aside the portieres, and stood staring down Fifth avenue, whose great, wide-lighted thoroughfare seemed a curiously and incongruously lonely spot in its evening quiet and emptiness.

Suppose it was so! Granted that his intuition was in no way astray! What did it matter? It was a thing extraneous, of no personal significance to him! It was even strange that it had succeeded in intruding itself upon his thoughts at all, when mind and soul in these last few days had fought and groped and stumbled against the sickness of a fear that, growing upon him, had blotted out all other things from his consciousness. The Tocsin! Where was she? What had happened? Had she—no, he dared not let himself believe what a brutal logic told him now he should believe. He would not! He could not! And yet since that night when her note had come, the note that had been so full of a glad spontaneity, so full of victory—"It is the beginning of the end . . . The way is clearing . . . I am very happy tonight, and I wanted to tell you so"—since that night there had been no word from her.

No, that was not literally true. there had been no word from her, rather than having brought hope and reassurance to him, it had only increased his fear and anxiety. That night, after a return to the Sanctuary, where, in lieu of the character of Larry the Bat, he had resumed his own personality again, he had hurried to his home to await the expected word from her that would tell him her success, which her note had indicated was to be looked for at any moment, had been achieved. The night, however, had brought forth nothing; but in the morning, amongst the mail which old Jason, his butler, had handed him, had been a letter from her. It had been written evidently in leisure, and evidently prior to the hurried little note that happiness, a surge of joy, a gladness and a hope whose share she could not hold back from him, had undoubtedly prompted her to write; it had been born out of impulse, that note, an impulse due, apparently to a sudden turn in the brave fight she was waging which seemed to place the final victory almost within her grasp. The letter was not erat all like that; it struck a far sterner not—the possibility of defeat—not in despair, not in a tone of failing courage, but as one who weighing the chances, was not blind to an opponent's strength, but who, even in one's defeat, still sought to snatch final victory evnn after death.

The apartment had tasteful decorations in palms and ferns with pink and white carnations. The center table in the dining room had as its centerpiece a tall vase of carnations, and all the color details were pink and white.

Mrs. Lowry wore a handsome toilette of black Georgette crepe over silver cloth. Mrs. Warwick's becoming gown was of black net embroidered in jet beads and trimmed with monkey fur.

MOVIE CAMERA RECORDS ZUKOR-LOEW MARRIAGE

With a motion picture camera recording the ceremony, Miss Mildred Harriet Zukor, daughter of Mr. Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, was married to Mr. Arthur Marcus Loew, son of Mr. Marcus Loew, president of the Marcus Loew circuit of theaters, in the crystal room of the Ritz-Carlton hotel in New York last night. Pictures were taken also of the bridal party and the 350 guests at a reception and dance which followed the ceremony. This was performed by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

The camera started clicking when Miss Lucille Goldstein, flower girl, led the bridal procession down the steps of the crystal room, strewing rose leaves in the path of the party until she reached the canopy of the pink and white lilies, under which the marriage was solemnized.

The bride was given away by her father. Her attendants were Misses Frances Kaufman, Myrtle Deutsch, Beulah Kohn, Sylvia Cahn, Rose Blum and Corinne Rosenheim. Mr. Eugene Zukor was best man for the bridegroom, his brother, and was master of ceremonies at the reception and supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Zukor and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Loew received the guests with the bride and bridegroom.

The pictures will be put into album form so they may be preserved for future generations of the families.

Among the guests were Mr. Daniel Frohman, Mr. Lee Shubert, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Schenck, the latter of whom is Miss Norma Talmadge; the Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Miss Cora Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Elek J. Ludvigh, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lichtman, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Shauer, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Flinn, Mr. Richard A. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Morris A. AS THE HOURS PASS
THE COMING OF BABY
DRAWS NEARER—
ARE YOU PREPARED?

IT is natural to think of the expectant mother's influence upon the unborn babe. Her food, her habits, her hygiene, and even the condition of her mind, all have a part in determining the well-being or ill-being of her infant before birth.

No one can be in doubt that the months which precede birth are of vast importance for the future of the child. It is therefore necessary that the expectant mother prepare herself. Mother's Friend gives comfort to expectant mothers by softening and making elastic the muscles during the anxious months before maternity.

of mothers record the virtue of Mother's Friend for not only allaying distress in advance, but for assisting nature in assuring a speedy recovery for the mother. It renders the abdominal muscles pliant as they readily yield to nature's demand for expansion. As a result, the nerves should not be drawn upon with that peculiar wrenching strain.

BACKACHE AND HEAVY FEELING

Weak, Nervous, Restless Woman in Arkansas Hears of Cardui, Tries It and Is Greatly Benefited—Now Recommends It to Others.

Peach Orchard, Ark.—Mrs. Nonie High, who lives near here, states: "Some time ago I began to have trouble with my back. I would ache and I could hardly get up when down. I was so weak I would just drag around and did not feel like doing anything at all. I was so nervous I felt I could scream, and . . . such a heavy feeling I could not rest at all. It looked like I was going to get down in bed. . . .

I heard of Cardui and thought I would try it and see what it would do for my case. After taking a few bottles I grew stronger . . . The bloated, heavy feeling left me. I wasn't so nervous; in fact, felt better all over. I took twelve bottles and certainly was greatly benefited and can recommend it to any one as a tonic or builder. I often tell others how it helped and strengthened me."

Cardui is a mild vegetable tonic, with no bad after-effects. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution.

Ask your druggist. He knows about Cardui. Some druggists have sold it for forty years.—(adv.)

Miss Callaway Weds Mr. Sanders

A pretty wedding yesterday was that of Miss Marcella Callaway and Mr. Clifford Boyce Sanders, of Penfield, Ga., which took place in the afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Callawy in the Colonnades.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Ashby Jones, and there were present only the two families.

The bride wore her going away costume, a becoming tailored gown in blue tricotine trimmed with beavery with straw hat, and her flowers were orchids and Roman hyacinths.

The apartment was tastefully decorated in deep pink roses. After the ceremony the bridal party was entertained at dinner at the Captial City club.

Covers were laid for fifteen, and the handsomely appointed table was decorated in pink roses and Roman hyacinths, the centerpiece a silver basket of the flowers. The places of the bride and groom were marked by a kewpie bride and groom, and favors at each place were boutonnieres for the gentlemen and corsage flowers for the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders wil spend their honeymoon on the East Coast of Florida, and they will make their home in Penfield.

Mrs. Hayes Entertained At Luncheon.

Mrs. James E. Hayes, of Montezuma, was the guest of honor at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Bolling Jones at the Piedmont Driving club, the party being invited at 1 o'clock. Luncheon was served in one of the private dining rooms, and the decorations were in rose color, reflecting the blooms of the pink begonia in the center of the table.

Mrs. Jones wore a becoming costume in dark blue cloth embroidered, with toque to match.

Mrs. Hayes wore black velvet, her small hat to match trimmed in plumes.

Mrs. Hayes has just returned from a visit to the southern part of the state, where she has visited several club centers, and she reports with enthusiasm the active work of club women on the reconstruction program presented to them at the Columbus convention.

Mrs. Hayes returns to Atlanta for the meeting of the executive board January 22. After the board meeting she will go to Rome as the guest of the Rome Woman's club, and several visits are planned in the federation interests this month.

Honoring Mrs. Stevens.

Mrs. John D. Little entertained at an elegantly appointed dinner last evening at her home on Peachtree street, complimenting her sister, Mrs. Louis Stevens, who is her guest.

The dining room was decorated with palms and vases filled with cut flowers. The table was covered with a damask cloth, with entre deux filet lace, and adorning the center was a silver urn filed with crimson carnations and narcissi. The silver candlesticks encircling the colorful central decoration were shaded with exquisite shades of filet lace.

Mrs. Stevens was handsomely gowned in champagne-colored satin, fashioned with a modish overdrapery of satin, edged with broad point lace, while an introduction of point lace trimmed the corsage.

Mrs. Little's gown was of jetted place, draped over royal-blue satin, and the bodice trimmed with jet.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Little, Colonel and Mrs. Kelly Evans, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Judge and Mrs. Price Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Slaton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Smythe and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Ottley.

"Cinderella's Daughter"

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

SYNOPSIS.

Virginia West enters boarding school and is strangely drawn toward Kathleen Foster, the school's leader. The two become friends, but when Kathleen discovers that Virginia is not willing to be led as the other girls are she is astounded.

CHAPTER V.

Virginia Unearths a Talent.

The school was to give a little musical play, a lilting thing set in the time of Napoleon in a girls' convent. Kathleen, secure in being asked to take a leading part, was not disappointed, for on the day when the play was discussed and the parts given out she was selected to play the leading male part—that of a young soldier fighting under Napoleon.

Kathleen skimmed the part and found it to her liking. She sat apart from the others, humming under her breath the principal song which she was to sing, and the idea of herself in a swagger uniform making love to Bunny Heron, who was to play Jacqueline, appealed very strongly to her. Suddenly, as she was reading, a remark from some one in the chattering group caught her attention. It was Miss Meeker one of the faculty, who spoke, and what she said was:

"It's really the big part of the play and much the hardest to fill."

Kathleen was listening now, her quick eyes skimming over the cast eagerly.

"I dont' know who could take it," some one else was saying.

"What part is that?" Kathleen asked suddenly, strolling up to the others.

"The rouge," Miss Meeker explained. "It will take a small girl and one with lots of charm. You see, this humbug song is the big thing in the play."

"I know who could play it," some one said suddenly. "Virginia West."

Every one stared at Virginia, and she expostulated laughingly.

"Why, I couldn't. I've never been in a play, let alone taking a part like that."

Miss Meeker was studying Virginia thoughtfully. Her vivid dark face, the passionate black eyes, the firm lips, a thread of scarlet in her face and her fluffy hair. There were possibilities here. Certainly Virginia could be made to look the part. However, the main thing was to forget herself in the role, to be bewitching, a little bit naughty. Miss Meeker had always thought of Virginia as a quiet kind of a girl.

"Can you sing?" she asked suddenly.

Virginia flushed. "Why, no, Miss Meeker. Of course, I've always done it more or less at home for my own amusement."

"I dont' mean have you a big voice. This song can be talked, but it must be done with charm. Suppose you try it. I'll play the accompaniment."

Virginia protested, but the others insisted laughingly, and Miss Meeker went to the piano. Virginia, with the book in her hand, was skimming lightly over the humbug song. It was a simple thing, with charming words—unusually clever words. The main thing was to get these words across. Miss Meeker struck the opening note and Virginia began to sing. Almost instantly she forgot herself in the part. For the time she was the gay vagabond mocking her audience:

"Humbug, humbug, every mind has some bug,
Every bonnet has its bee, and every head's a hive;
To some it is a money bug, to some it is a funny bug,
It's humbug, humbug, humbug, humbug, keeps the world alive."

She was adorable, whimsical, arching her eyebrows, using little tricks that the others had not thought her capable of. There was a shout of delight from the girls as she finished, but Virginia was conscious suddenly of a cold look in Kathleen's eyes—Kathleen, to whom the girl turned first for approbation. It took all the joy of conquest away from her, but she was so quickly surrounded by the others that she hadn't time to think much about it just then. They flattered her, schoolgirl fashion.

"Why didnt' you tell us you could act like that? Won't she be sweet, Miss Meeker, in that ragged suit of the peddler's? You'll be the hit of the play, Virginia," and other remarks of the kind.

Afterward she went over to Kathleen and slipped a hand into hers. She was eager for Kathleen's praise; she wanted it more than she had wanted all the flattery from the others, but Kathleen did not give it.

It was on the tip of Virginia's tongue to say, "Did you like it?" But she bit the words back, and from that time on all through the rehearsals Kathleen gave no word of praise to Virginia. It took the pleasure of it out of the younger girl, but it did not lessen her love and admiration. Kathleen was still the most wonderful girl in the world, but each time after the play was rehearsed Kathleen was cold and distant to Virginia; she held herself aloof and made no effort to be charming. Once during the play Miss Meeker told her she was still in the love scene. Kathleen took it out on Virginia later because Virginia had never received anything but praise.

(Tomorrow—The night of the play.)

Mrs. Slicer Entertains.

Mrs. J. Samuel Slicer gave a pretty luncheon yesterday at the Piedmont Driving club, where her guest of honor was Mrs. Richard Wilmer, of Washington.

The luncheon table was decorated with pink and white gladioli, the place cards were hand-painted figures of spring time girls, their costumes in the tints of spring flowers, and every detail of appointment was harmonious.

Mrs. Slicer wore a smart blue taffeta gown and her hat was a becoming model in black straw.

6. What is the name of the only organization in the United States whose members are engaged in the exclusive study of food, clothing and textiles and are always ready to give information to the homemaker?
7. From what part of the animal does the best soup meat come?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions

1. Some gold fish, a canary, or parrot may be added for real "live" color to any home. If there are elderly people in it they are entertained by the birds more than the fish, and when trained very young they become great pets and may be given much freedom from the cage.
2. There are five safe fuels for kitchen use: wood, coal, gas kerosene and electricity.
3. To care for pumps and evening slippers so they will not rub against each other, nail a narrow strip of wood such as picture molding, between deep shelves in a cupboard or closet wall. Wrap the shoes in tissue paper, or make separate pockets for them, fastening with snaps, and hang them by the heels.
4. When ironing a dinner napkin, fold over once with the corners and edges even; press well and fold again, which will form an oblong. Then fold end to end and then again. This manner of folding lends itself very easily to opening with quiet ease at the table.
5. The napkin is always placed to the left of the fork and parallel with it.
6. The most convenient and cheapest soap dish (10c) is made of wire and hangs suspended between the kitchen sink faucets. Many motions are saved in a week by this convenience.
7. The ingredients and proportions of French dressing are three tablespoonfuls of oil, made from olives, corn or peanuts, and one of vinegar or lemon juice and one-fourth teaspoon of salt and dash of pepper or paprika. Beat well.

ADENOIDS AND ENLARGED TONSILS DUE TO NEGLECT

Timely Attention Would Avoid Much Trouble and Danger.

If mothers and nurses would only learn that children's colds and sore throats are "acute catarrh" and lead to chronic catarrh, which in turn leads to adenoids and enlarged tonsils, many surgical operations would be spared their children.

Mothers should know, if they would only think that infants and young children do not and cannot clear the phlegm from their air passages. The secretions accumulate, harden, become impure, unsanitary and irritating. Chronic inflammation (catarrh) ensues and produces adenoids, enlarged tonsils, pigeon chest (weak lungs) and predisposes to pneumonia and tuberculosis.

With a little attention all of this may be avoided, for the mother's problem of keeping the child's nose and throat in a sanitary condition and free from germs is now perfectly solved. Simply telephone the drug store for a family jar of Eucapine Salve, costing fifty cents, enough for a winter's supply. Eucapina is a mild and most agreeable salve, especially prepared to keep the child's nose and throat in a sanitary condition and free from germs and secretions. Your druggist is familiar with the prescription, which consists of eucalyptus, wintergreen, menthol, camphor and pinus sylvestris, made into a soothing, cleansing, healing, and antiseptic salve which even the babies find most agreeable.

Rub Eucapine Salve up the nostrils for colds, and if the throat and tonsils are inflamed put a little of it on the back of the tongue from which it will spread to the tonsils and throat. Eucapine relieves croup in a few moments and is an indispensable aid to every intelligent mother. Even the little tots soon learn to use it for themselves and to ask for it when their air passages are irritated. The grown-ups find it equally agreeable and effective in all catarrhal troubles of the nose and throat. Eucapine Salve may be had at any drug store. —(adv.)

BLACK AND WHITE OINTMENT

Your Home and You

BY HELEN KENDALL

The Placing of the Table

Gone forever, we solemnly hope, is the one-time "center table"—that island in the midst of the small family lake around which every one had to steer in search of a chair or to get out of the room. It stood in the exact center of the floor space, decreasing the apparent size of the place by one-half and providing a proverbial stumbling block.

With the disappearance of the overhead center chandelier this awkward center table is retreating, like the electric fixtures, to the side walls or to one end or other of the room, leaving the center open and inviting.

There are various attractive ways of placing the library or living room table. In case there are two windows at one end of the room, the table may be placed between them endwise, that is, with the narrow side against the wall and the longer sides extending into the room. If the table is a large one, one side may be fitted with writing materials and the other may hold the book ends, with a deep reading chair beside it. The table is always at its best when it stands back of a long davenport before the fire. Another inviting position for it is at one end of the room, well in from the windows or wall, with a handsome straight chair benind it for use while writing and two comfortable reading chairs in front or at the sides of it.

It all depends, of course, on the shape of the room and the location of the windows and fireplace. If there are windows in plenty and the floor space is limited, the table may stand in front of a window and will look very charming from outside the house, too, especially if there is a glowing lamp and a bowl of flowers upon it. In general, however, it is best not to obstruct the windows, unless there are so many that one must be used as a wall.

Queen Victoria's Former Cuisinier

Mother nature is a bountiful provider for her human family. Each season has its own products that are sufficient for the thrifty housewife, if she will avail herself of these foods.

To purchase strawberries, ... potatoes and other hothouse specialties when they are out of season is very poor economy. Fruits and vegetables that are forced and out of season have little real flavor. When marketing for food become familiar with the various canned packs of peas, beans, corn and asparagus.

Do not buy foods because of their fancy labels.

When buying fresh vegetables you should know that asparagus should have firm, close heads and tender stalks and it should be in a strictly fresh condition. Old asparagus, the kind that the produce man trims and stands in a pan of water, will be lacking in flavor and tough in texture.

Early turnips, blood beets, small or medium sized, are best and sweetest. Large beets are frequently apt to be tough. Brussels sprouts belong to the cabbage family; they should be picked when the buds are closed and they are in best condition when the buds are the size of a large walnut, with fresh, unwilted leaves.

Beans, string, snap and butter, should be quite fresh. Wilted beans are hard to make appetizing, as they frequently require long cooking to make them tender. Beans should break brittle, with a snap. Carrots of medium size are sweetest and they should be firm. Cabbage should be selected in medium-sized heads and should be quite solid and crisp.

The exceptions—red cabbage, curly cabbage, also new cabbage.

The cauliflower heads are best when the attractive flowerets are white, firm and crisp. Old or trimmed cauliflower is strong flavored. Medium-sized cucumbers, in which the seeds are not overdeveloped, are best; they should have a good green color. Wilted or partially yellow cucumbers are not desirable.

Corn must be fresh and not allowed to heat in the sun or in a pile; it should be free from worms.

Eggplant—The long purple is most desirable. To test for freshness press the skin with the fingers and if wilted it will give considerably. Unless the plant is fresh, it is quite apt to have a bitter kind of taste.

Planning the Sunday menu to provide suitable food for the season of the year means much to the thrifty housewife.

BRAND-NEW SCHEME PROPOSED BY BRYAN

for or against the Lodge reservations, and put the republicans on the defensive in the elections this year.

Mr. Bryan dwelt on his idea at great length. But both republican and democratic leaders were able to dismiss it in a few words. Senator Hitchcock, like Mr. Bryan, claiming Nebraska as his home, declared the democrats might as well vote for the ratification of the treaty with the Lodge reservations as to permit such ratification by their silence.

Mr. Hitchcock did not draw attention to the rule of the senate which requires unanimous consent for a senator to be excused from voting if he is present, but other senators did. They said that the republican "bitter-enders" could not be forced into making a quorum any more than could the democrats.

Fine Idea, But Won't Work.

Opinion about the senate lobbies came down to the view that Mr. Bryan had a fine idea, but that it would not work out in actual practice. Stretching their imaginations even so far as to consider his program practicable, senators could not reconcile Mr. Bryan's repudiation of any break with President Wilson with his recommendation that the democrats give silent acquiescence to the program of putting the treaty ratification with the Lodge reservations squarely up to the white house. He explained that by saying that the president and the allies could determine whether the Lodge reservations were acceptable, although his whole idea seemed to be based on the president's acquiescence, since the Commoner referred repeatedly to the eloquent appeal of a suffering world for peace.

Mr. Bryan's appearance at the capitol and his talks with democratic senators transcended all other events in the treaty situation today.

The Bryan program drew greater interest than a conference between republican "mild, reservationists," Senator Lodge and democrats. This conference had been hailed as the first real step toward treaty compromise, but if anything positive came of it the senators participating were unable to discern it. Mr. Simmons, of North Carolina, regarded as one of the democrats best qualified to bring about a compromise, left the conference early. As he climbed into his overcoat he remarked that the conference was getting nowhere. Mr. Kellogg, of Minnesota, a "mild reservationist," called for his coat and hat very soon thereafter.

When the conference adjorned, Mr. Lodge said, the conferees had talked over the Lodge program of reservations in a general way, but that no actual negotiations were possible until the democrats had indicated in writing just how far they were willing to go and how many were so inclined. Another meeting is to be held on Saturday, when Mr. Lodge hopes to be able to report the sentiment of republican senators on the democratic overtures.

Beginning, Says Lodge.

"This was just a general talk running over my reservations," Mr. Lodge said. "It is a beginning. It is the first time there has been a real attempt to get together."

It was the first time that Mr. Lodge and Mr. Hitchcock had spoken to each other on treaty compromise, and in order not to mar the occasion of Article X, the real stumbling block to a treaty compromise, was not mentioned.

The participants in the conference were Senators Lodge, Lenroot, Kellogg and New, republicans; and Hitchcock, Simmons, Walsh, of Montana; McKellar and Owens, democrats. All of the senators present regarded the conference as the real beginning toward a compromise, but Article X was not discussed.

Both delegations were chosen informally and were said to be without specific authority to act for their respective sides, but leaders hope that subsequent negotiations will result in a compromise which will muster the two-thirds vote necessary to ratification.

The Lodge reservations were the basis of discussion at the conference. While no formal suggestions in writing for their modicfiation were presented by the democrats, many verbal suggestions were made by the democrats, and these Senator Lodge said, were taken under advisement by the republicans. Before the negotiations are concluded, it is expected that formal drafts of compromise proposals will be brought forth.

Senator Hitchcock talked somewhat of Mr. Bryan's idea for ratication of the treaty, but said he could not indorse it. He could not see why the democrats should sit on the sideline and let the "nullifying" Lodge resolutions go through. That, he held, would be a refusal on the part of the democrats to perform their constitutional functions in the senate.

"If we are willing to let the Lodge reservations be the basis for ratication, the more straightforward thing for us to do would be to vote for them," Mr. Hitchcock said.

Mr. Bryan had an elaborate argument in support of his program.

"I believe," he said, "an overwhelming majority of the American people want the treaty ratified right away. There is a great deal more interest in speedy ratification than there is in phraseology; that is, the republic will indorse any arrangement that is made here if the arrangement hastens ratification and takes this issue out of the way. An agreement is infinitely better than any other settlement for two reasons:

"First—It takes the question out of politics, and permits both parties to turn their attention to very important domestic issues.

"Second—It permits ratification by a larger majority than would be possible under any other plan. That gives the greatest possible weight to our action, and has a tremendous influence abroad."

His previously expressed suggestion that the democrats of the senate withhold their votes and let the republicans ratify the treaty with their reservations, Mr. Bryan said, should only be a last resort, if compromise negotiations failed.

Appeal to Country.

"An appeal could be made to the country," he continued, "to reserve in the league of nations any action taken by the senate and to authorize restoration of any provisions stricken out. And in my opinion, the democratic party could make a much more successful fight before the people for authority to restore than it can for authority to retain provisions, if it must share responsibility with the republicans for fourteen months' delay."

"I believe we can put the republican party on the defensive by proposing an immediate compromise if compromise is possible, and, second, by throwing the responsibility on the republicans for immediate action if compromise is impossible."

Asked whether he believed the president would approve a compromise set of reservations, Mr. Bryan answered:

"I do not know that anybody is authorized to say what the president will accept and I don't think it is fair to ask in advance what he will accept or for him to suggest changes that would put him where he might be accused of a breach of faith."

TEACHERS TO STRIKE UNLESS BETTER PAID

follow other professions has been marked," she continued. "The public will pay Babe Ruth $20,000 for half a year and Jack Dempsey $100,000 or $300,000 for a single fight, but they will not pay their college professors enough to live on. A professional baseball player sells for $130,000; a professor is secured from one of the western colleges for a few dollars more than he was receiving there."

Explaining that her statement this fall that professors should form a union and strike to enforce their demands was "not intended to be wholly serious." Miss Taft nevertheless declared tonight that "the teacher is under no contract to stay in his profession, and, if he were, he would have every justification for breaking the contract at present when the salary has been cut in half by the rise in the cost of living."

Miss Taft declared that "unless conditions improve the college will have to double its tuition fees, as students cannot continue to be educated at the cost of the professor."

Many Teachers Quit.

Chicago, January 15.—The number of school teachers who have abandoned t... profession because of low wages has increased 40 per cent in the last year, according to a survey of co... in Chicago by teachers made public today.

"School teachers work under a twenty-five year handicap on the basis of a lifetime's earnings," the report says.

"The average teacher will have to live to be 70 before her total earnings amount to as much as a plumber can make by the time he is 40. She will have to teach until she is 58 to earn as much as the pattern makers, electricians or pressmen have earned at 40.

"Blacksmiths, butchers, soda clerks, shoe clerks and chauffeurs would, under their present wages, have earned as much at 40 as the school teacher would have earned at 52.

mously the proposals of their resolutions committee that they show in this manner a "spirit of co-operation instead of fight" in the government's efforts to reduce the cost of shoes and other commodities.

H. A. Rosenbach, chairman of the committee, said the proposition had not been finally drafted, but it was described as follows:

"It is impossible to outline any general percentage of profit, either net or gross, that can be made by all retail shoe stores in America. Your committee in its resolutions will go definitely on record against the possibility of any such law and they will deny absolutely and unequivocally that there is profiteering in the shoe business in the United States, except in the 1 per cent that Attorney General Palmer mentioned.

"The plan of your committee is that we will organize a vigilance committee with one man in every state, preferably associated as closely as possibly with, or a member of, the various price fixing or fair price committees, who will operate as the vigilance officer of that state and who will appoint under him representative shoe men throughout the state. Any case of profiteering that may come to our ntice may be directed to that vigilance officer, and the National Shoe Retailers' Association of America will go on record as going the limit to stamp out that man who profiteers."

Bathing Beauties Place the Blame On Jealous Women

Manager of Sennett Revue Will Appear in Court Today to Face Charges Made by Chief of Police Beavers.

"Honi soit qui mal y pense!"

All of which is preliminary to the real meat of the argument, which lies in the fact tha tthe Mack Sennett bathing girls, showing in person at the Criterion theater, are, likewise in person—very much so—the bone of contention of an argument which is to be threshed out in the recorder's court this morning, with "Jedge Johnsing" as the official referee.

B. J. Shea, 38 years old, of New York city, who is the manager of the bathing girl revue, as it is entitled, is the defendant in the case, which results from charges made by Chief of Police Beavers, under the city ordinance relative to indecent exposure and dress. The case was made after a visit to the theater by two police officers who reported that some features of the performance were, in their opinion, violations of the ordinance.

Object to "Shimmy."

It is understood that the particular feature to which the police objected was a tiny little "shimmy dance," by one of the girls while on the stage. It is certain that it could not be for anything spoken, for, as a matter of fact, the show is a silent one. The girls merely parade the stage dressed in the bathing suits in which they were wont to disport themselves on the beaches of California before the camera lenses, where the sea waves are no longer sad, since Mack Sennett makes most of his "locations" there.

It is rumored that Harvey J. Hill, who has been retained as counsel for the defense, will contend that an ordinance passed in 1909, before the "shimmy" was invented, cannot possibly prohibit a dance which has been acclaimed in all the theaters, and at all kinds of dances, and which came upon the stage so much later than the date of the said ordinance.

Willard Patterson, manager of the theater, says the whole thing came upon him out of a clear sky. He was at home at lunch when Mr. Shea phoned him and broke the news. He states that the performance is fully in keeping with the high-class of attractions regularly shown at his house and that nothing improper ever will be presented at the Criterion.

Cherchez La Femme.

But the girls themselves advance a widely different reason for the "pinch." They claim that there is some mysterious, unknown party behind the police, who has lodged a formal complaint. And they are sure it is a woman. Why? Jealousy, of course.

"These women come in to the show to see us and they enjoy lookin' at us," said one of the girls last night. "Then they go out and get to thinkin' it over. They make a comparison between us and themselves, and as a result, get jealous. Sure, it's jealousy. And, y'know, what's in a woman just has to come out."

The girls say that they are all from California. They tell how they worked for a long time with the Mack Sennett company and how they have been on the road now for five months.

"And it's the first time in any town we've been in that anyone has kicked on the show," they said. "It's a darn shame that it should happen this week," one added. "Because right up to now we've had a chaperon with us, but she had to leave last week because her daughter, who was in the company, is under contract for some more pictures and had to go back to California. It'll look bad, this case comin' the very first week we haven't got a chaperon."

Come From Good Families.

"I'd like to tell 'em," broke in another of the beauties—they crowded around the newspaper men, just bubbling over with indignation—"that we all come from good families in California and we've got fathers and brothers who'd never let us do anything improper. Why, my dad is a prominent doctor, and so is hers, and hers is a lawyer," she concluded, pointing to other girls.

"We don't do a thing except just let the folks see us in the bathing suits we really swim in out home," explained another. "They're glad enough to look at us that way in the pictures; why shouldn't they like it in real life?"

There was one thoughtful little creature in brown, over in the corner. Just at this moment she spoke for the first time:

"I know I show people just lots of 'me,'" she said. "But why shouldn't I?

She stood up and turned slowly around and the newspaper man had to admit that she had just cause for pride and he fell back on the same phrase this story began with:

printed in a pamphlet which he distributed. Returning to the bench he again sang, this time the crowd joining in the song. The next evening the same man spoke in the theater, his announced subject being 'The Doctrine of Bolshevism.'"

Three months ago, according to his testimony, he was in Orizaba, south of Mexico City, at the time a strike was in effect. He attended meetings of the strikers and listened to speeches by radical agitators and to the crowds crying "vivas" for the bolsheviki and for Russia.

Carranza Upheld Radicals.

It was in August, 1919, he said, that Carranza upheld the militant radicals in Tabasco. A Mr. Green, who, the witness said, was a descendant of an American, had declared himself elected governor. He asserted Green was not the choice of the people, but Green had the local army and retained his power until the appearance of a federal force commanded by General Pertani, who, after listening to the complaints of the merchants and land owners who alleged reprisals by Green, overpowered the local army.

"Green's troops were called the 'reds' and the 'boisheviki' by the people in that state," said the witness. "It seems Bertani made a mistake in disarming these troops," he added, "because Carranza called him to account for it, and brought him to Mexico City, lectured him and restored Green to power with an army to support him against the will of the people. Ever since that time, however, Tabasco has had two governors, one the people want and one that Carranza wants."

Testimony intended to corroborate reports of general insecurity of American life and property was given the committee. Along this point the witness told of a recent occasion when he and another American, he said, were removed from a train that rebels had attacked and burned. They were marched off into the hills and told by one of the escort they would be hanged. His companion escaped. His own release he attributed to his reply when he was asked if he were an American. "Yes," he said, "I am an American of Scotch descent."

Women Tell of Horrors.

Dramatic accounts of their experiences were given the committee by Mrs. Mary Wright, Mrs. James A. Willis and Mrs. Joseph C. Bailey. The husband of Mrs. Willis disappeared while trying to get her out of the country. It was assumed by her he is deda. The husband of Mrs. Wright died as the result of hardships endured in Mexico. Mrs. Wright told the committee how she and her daughters hid for weeks in a cornfield to escape the revolutionists, described their efforts to cling to their farm in San Luis Potosi and finally their flight to the United States when word reached them that the state department had advised Americans to leave Mexico.

The testimony of Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Willis was of their failure to save their farms in the state of Aguascallentes and their subsequent escape into the United States.

Matthew Warner, veteran of the civil war, and now a resident of San Antonio, added to the committee's record corroborative testimony regarding the insecurity of life and property by giving the history of the Attascador colony which he founded during the rule of Porforio Diaz, near Tampico. It was peopled by farmers from Nebraska, Illinois, Iowa and Texas. A German and one American family remain on the property. His account included reference to the murder of A. Burt and the serious injury of his father by Mexicans. It was on that property, he said, that the daughters of Matthew Gourd were attacked by Mexicans who first roped their father in such a position he might witness their acts.

P. F. Poorbaugh, Kansas City, who told of the devastation of the Fortuna property in the state of Vera Cruz, of which property he was part owner, describing one visit he paid to the property, said the German consul at Puerto Mexico advised him to go into the interior accompanied either by a German or an Englishman if he wished friendly treatment by the Mexicans.

His Little Son Killed.

O. G. Compton, of San Antonio, telling the committee the story of the Glenn Springs raid in 1916, which cost Compton his 5-year-old son, shot in his own home, said the raiding party shouted "vivas" both for Villa and Carranza.

One of the three prisoners brought out of Mexico by the punitive expedition that followed the raid had in his possession papers identifying him as a colonel in Carranza's army, Compton said.

Luis Cabrera, minister t of finance in President Carranza's cabinet, was invited today to appear before the United States senate subcommittee investigating Mexican affairs as an ordinary witness, but the committee will not go to Mexico.

Senator Fall, of New Mexico, chairman of the subcommittee, today received Cabrera's invitation to go to Mexico City "to find out what Mexico really is," and he announced he would reply with the counter invitation.

MEXICO RELEASES AMERICAN SAILORS.

Washington, January 15.—Harry V. Learned and Harry O. Martin, sailors of the navy submarine chaser Pocomoke, who were arrested at Mazatlan, Mexico, on a charge of assaulting a Mexican citizen and sentenced to two months' imprisonment, were released last Tuesday night, according to advices to the state department today from the American consul at Mazatlan.

SIR OLIVER LODGE TO TELL OF SPOOKS

continued. "It may not be a different world from this. We encounter another aspect of one world, an aspect that does not make any appeal to our present sense and hence an aspect which we may thoughtlessly imagine to be nonexistent. Our senses are no criterions of existence. They were evolved from earthly reasons, not for purposes of philosophy, and if we refuse to go beyond the direct evidence of our senses we shall narrow our outlook on the universe to a hopeless and almost imbecile extent."

Sir Oliver advised persons of weak minds to keep away from the ouija board. He said he did not condemn it as an instrument, but believed that unless a person possessed a strong force of mind there was danger that constant application upon the board might affect his mentality.

While he expressed gratification at "the great spirit of friendliness" between Great Britain and the United States, Sir Oliver said that he did not believe that the time was quite ripe for a federation of the English-speaking peoples of the world.

"If the British and American nations hang together," he added, "and co-operate in good works their inter-action will be of the utmost benefit to the human race, and nothing will so powerfully operate to put down oppression and check needless internecine conflicts with a high hand. An era of good hope is dawning for humanity."

DEKALB TO TAKE OVER HER FORTY CONVICTS

Decatur, Ga., January 15.—(Special).—Forty convicts of DeKalb county, who have been at work for Fulton county for the past year, will Thursday morning be taken over by DeKalb and set to work on highways here. Camps, clothing and supplies have been fully renovated and replenished, and the first camp will be at Stone Mountain, where the convicts will work the Decatur-Stone Mountain road. With the aid of federal money, DeKalb will spend $100,000 on this road, and as it is already in very good shape, it should soon be a splendid highway. W. R. Jack Fought Chaney Cyclonic Even Break

Several Wildcats, a Few Buzz-Saws and Old Man Science Were Seen in Ten-Round Main Event Thursday Night.

By Les Rawlings.

Twenty-eight rounds of as good a boxing card as has ever been seen in Atlanta, composed of one konckout, three draws and one decision, was witnessed at the Auditorium last night, the classic of the evening and probably of the year 1920 being a vicious hard-hitting ten-round main event between Jack Lawler, of Omaha, and Young Chaney, of Baltimore, which went the entire route to a draw, fairly and squarely decided.

One Johnny Kilbane, upon whose shoulders rests the mantle of championship in the featherweight division, will probably have to come to Atlanta twice before he can satisfy two mighty clever fighters and the Atlanta boxing fans. Johnny was booked to meet the winner of the Chaney-Lawler go, and inasmuch as they both won, he's now up against about the hardest pair tackled by any titleholder in some time.

The man who fights Jack Lawler is going to have to fight a couple of buzz saws, three or four tons of dynamite and seven wildcats rolled into one piece of fighting humanity. The boy who takes this bird Chaney on for a little seance is going to be up against cold calculating science and a two-fisted man who can give and take, toe to toe, with the best of them.

Audience Was Pleased.

To say that the fair sized audience was pleased with the show and mainly the main event Thursday night would be putting it mildly.

Lawler and Chaney didn't stall, didn't slow up and didn't dance through any of the ten rounds which were three minutes each.

What they did do was this—Chaney, always on the aggressive, cool and collected bore in always against his smaller and seemingly much lighter opponent. On the other hand the much lighter opponent fought as a wildcat would fight a powerful wolf, in and out, with lighting like punches, withdrawals and sidesteps.

Feinting, dodging and slamming in pistonlike blows, Lawler was too fast for Chaney while on the other hand, cool collective science of the ring and experience made Chaney too much a match for Lawler and as a result the battle was as beautifully an even one as has been seen in many and many a day.

McDonald didn't have to split hairs to give the decision. He didn't have to go back and remember this or that point for where Chaney would land three blows, Lawler would turn around and do the same and it was even-stephen throughout.

The show opened with a battle royal between five blackbirds which narrowed down by the process of elimination to two duskies who went two rounds until the dusky referee, who should have been given the decision for his footwork, called the contest a draw in self defense.

Paper Weight Fought.

When two youngsters, one representing Boys High school and the other a student of Tech High, came before the audience with many grievances, one against the other. They fought like they wanted their very hardest to clear those grievances up but Referee "Bill" Kaliska couldn't see anything but an even break and was right in awarding the honors equally.

The youngsters fought under the ring name of "Battling" Brooks and "Kid" Merlin.

Billy Hooper, who must be getting along in years, by the latest census, would be a good advertisement for the patent medicine people. Billy is dusky and husky and has been battling around Atlanta for lo these many years and yet his battling is such that they can't find anybody to put a quietus on his ambitions. McDonald went as far as Savannah for an opponent for Billy but the Savannah boy didn't get any farther than the third round when he caressed the canvas three consecutive times and on the third trial the birds were twittering "Home, Sweet Home" to him.

Freddie Boorde is an Atlanta favorite. His favoritism was enhanced when it came time for him to mix mitts with one Jack Sharkey, of Brooklyn, and he proceeded to stay by his friends, the fans, and come through with the bacon and quite a bit of the colored fluid belonging to his opponent.

Sharkey Was Smallest.

Sharkey was lighter than Freddie and game as they make 'em, but he was no match for the scientific way the Walk Miller fighter went in and brought him to time.

In their eight rounds of milling, Freddie had all but one session and the bell saved Sharkey from taking a lot more punishment than should have fallen to his lot, taking into consideration the game exhibition he put up.

The Lawler-Chaney bout, last but by far the best of anything seen in some time, got under way, with Chaney seeming to have the advantage on the Levy protege in reach and weight. They fought evenly for the first round, while Lawler made more of his punches count in the second. The third and fourth were even, while Chaney topped the fifth and sixth. The seventh was even and the eighth was even, while Lawler easily took the ninth and tenth, although all of these rounds were awarded either one or the other on slight shades and by no large majority.

It was a good evening and the expressions of satisfaction heard from every hand attested the popularity of the entire show from start to finish.

National Commander of American Legion Will Say Whether Jack Shall Square Himself or Not.

Indianapolis, Ind., January 15.—Decision as to whether Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, will be permitted to appear before the supreme council of the American Legion and give testimony as to his record during the war, will not be made until the return to Indianapolis of Franklin D'Olier, national commander. This announcement was made today from national headquarters here. D'Olier is in Philadelphia and is not expected at his office before next week.

Jack Kearns, manager of the pugilist, announced last night in Los Angeles he had telegraphed the national commander of the American Legion in behalf of Dempsey, asking that an opportunity be given him to answer charges of various posts of the soldier and sailor organization that he was a "slacker" and draft dodger. The telegram asked that a halt be called on such action by the posts until a letter written by Kearns reached headquarters.

Boys' Basket League Gets Flying Start

G. M. A. Defeated Boys' High, the Tech High Swamped Marist and Peacock Overwhelmed Commercial High Quintet in Fast Affairs.

The Boys' Prep League of Atlanta prized off the lid of the 1920 basketball season Thursday afternoon with a large crowd attendant at the game, and amid much enthusiasm on the part of the students. Three games were played yesterday afternoon, G. M. A. beating Boys' High by a 28-to-13 score; Tech High swamping Marist, 47 to 16, and Peacock overwhelming the Commercial quintet, 66 to 5.

Coach Tolbert's silent wonders have at last spoken, with tongues that will be heard all over prep basketball circles, for the cadets defeated the Boys' High quint by a score of 28 to 13. G. M. A. may have had good basketball teams in former years, but the team this year will equal or better any that has ever taken the floor for the cadets.

When the G. M. A. team stepped upon the floor, all who were on the side lines said that it would be an easy time for the high schoolers, but when Captain Murray and "Froggy" Meiers broke loose, they soon changed their mind. Murray seemed to be all over the court and at the right time. His passing was almost perfect and, time after time, he would break into the interference and throw a long pass to Gomez, and then 2 points were chalked up for the G. M. A. team.

Boys' High was taken by surprise and, before they knew what had happened, the cadets had made a total of 16 points.

For G. M. A. the work of the whole team deserves nothing but praise. Murray was the outstanding star of the game by a large majority, while Gomez ran a close race for second place.

McGarrity played the best game for Boys' High, scoring all points except 2, and "Baby" Roane also did some good guarding, besides shooting a lone goal.

The line-up was as follows:

G. M. A. (28)	Pos.	BOYS' H. (13)
Meiers (8)	L. F.	McGarrity (11)
Gomez (6)	R. F.	Clark
Murray (14)	C.	Staton
Carter	L. G.	Roane (2)
Anderson	R. G.	Simpsno
Epps	L. G.

Referee, Anderson; Dubose, G. M. A., Wilson, T. H. S., timekeepers. Scorers, Clark and Field.

Tech High's Victory.

Tech High opened the season with a 47 to 16 victory over Joe Bean's Marist five.

The game was fast and snappy, both teams playing hard. "Pee Wee" Stewart was the fastest man on the floor, scoring 12 of the 47 points. "Flexible" Williams, thelanky center of the Smithies, also did some good work, besides scoring 16 points.

At the beginning of the second half, Coach Enloe gave most of the scrubs achance to shoot, and they did some neat work, both in shooting and in guarding.

The line-up of the teams and summary was as follows:

T. H. (47)	Pos.	MARIST (16)
Sylvester (5)	L. F.	Holliday (4)
Stewart (12)	R. F.	Golden(6)
Williams (16)	C.	Palmer (4)
Di Christina	L. G.	Safarrans (2)
Warren (6)	R. G.	Brabley

Referee, Thomas; timekeepers, Stips and Eckord. Substitutes, Tech High, Dillingham (8), Wright; for Marist, Reynolds.

Peacock Swamps Commercial.

The Peacock team defeated the Commercial High five by a score of 65 to 5 in one of the opening games of the season yesterday afternoon on the Peacock court.

The game was a runaway affair for the Peacock team, "Red" Laird, at right forward, scored 31 points and would have scored more, but Coach Fincher gave all the scrubs a chance, and the Commerical High team could do nothing much with them.

PEACOCK (65)	Position.	COM. HIGH (5)
Sparks (13)	L. F.	Balser (2)
Laird (31)	R. F.	Goldstein (3)
Venable	C.	Welch
Mooty (6)	L. G.	Sands
Yeager (4)	R. G.	Boswell

Referee, Goban. Substitutes: For Peacock, Owen (6), Minnhinnett, Speer (2), Rosenbaum (2), Bush, Belgen (2), Ethridge; for Commercial High, Miller and Pitts.

Roger Bresnahan, Toledo, magnate, expects to obtain several high-class players from the New York Giants and Yankees before the season opens in the association. He says he will again be in control of the Toledo club.

Committees of the Brookhaven Country club, the estate of the Captial City club on Peachtree road beyond Buckhead, are considering whether or not to raise sufficient funds to rebuild their club's lake, swept away by the heavy rains before Christmas, or abandon the institution.

If members of the organization see fit to discontinue the country home it will be a blow to the golfing colony of Atlanta, as Brookhaven numbers among its membership some of the most enthusiastic golfers of the city.

Atlanta is large enough and a big enough golfing center to support two institutions the size of East Lake and Brookhaven and both can be supported with ease providing the memberships get together and take the necessary steps to popularize both from a co-operative standpoint.

"Josh" Cody, one of the most popular fooball players who has ever romped over southern gridirons, has been offered a job coaching the Mercer university athletic teams. If "Josh" takes the position, chances are he will be one of the most popular mentors who has ever trained southern teams.

Stanley Meegan, the young pugilist who gave "Kid" York such a run for his money at Walk Miller's fight club several months ago, arrived in Atlanta Thursday following a visit to his home in Chicago. Meegan is going to get in training and issue a few challenges to the Atlanta stable of boxers.

It seems a pity that just as the fight game was being revived and running along successfully with Atlanta's boxing fans enjoying the shows being staged by McDonald, steps have been taken by an impoverished city government to get more revenue out of the Auditorium in such a way that it means the discontinuance of all bouts at the city's playhouse.

Twenty-five per cent of gross receipts are out of the question, according to Promoter McDonald, which will probably mean that last night's bout is the last one to be staged at the Armory.

Of course there are other places in Atlanta where boxing matches can be put on, but chances are they will not be as comfortable from the standpoint of the fans as the Auditorium has proved to be.

McDonald has been complimented by every true sport lover of Atlanta for the class of entertainment he has put on with his shows.

The type of bills seen under his direction have been such that a large following of the fairer sex have taken to witnessing the bouts, which in itself is an argument for the cleanliness and sportsmanlike exhibition.

McDonald might promote under a 25 per cent arrangement, but if he did so it would be impossible for him to bring high-class artists here and necessitate the staging of matches between amateur "ham-and-egg" fighters who would be sure to pull the standard of the game down.

TECH AND A. A. C. READY FOR GAMES

Jackets Play Mercer Tonight and Macon Saturday Night, While Athletic Club Tackles Mercerites Saturday Night.

With the prep leagues of Atlanta getting in full swing and three big league contests coming Friday and Saturday nights, the present week is going to wind up in a blaze of glory for basketball. The Mercer college five plays Tech at the Athletic club Friday night and the Athletic club at the club Saturday night, while the Techsters play a Saturday night game with the Macon Y. M. C. A. at the auditorium.

Coaches Joe Bean and Alexander have been drilling their charges steadily during the time which has elapsed since the last games in which the two teams appeared and although the Athletic club hasn't much improving to do, Alexander has succeeded in ironing out a lot of the rough spots for the Jackets.

Mercer seems to have a fairly strong quint, judging from press reports of the last several days, and her victory over the University of Florida was taken as an indication that the Mercerites have a fast aggregation.

Tech gets the first crack at the visitors Friday night on the Athletic club court and if the Jackets should happen to be vanquished, Captain Rufus Bass has promised the Techsters that his A. A. C. will get the proper amount of revenge in the Saturday night contest.

At the same time the A. A. C. and Mercer are playing at the Auburn avenue gym Saturday night, Tech will tackle the Macon Y. M. C. A. five at the auditorium.

Macon is said to have improved considerably since her first appearance here against the Athletic club and chances are Tech will have a full fledged fight on hand.

Manager Dan Sanford, of the Jacket team, says tickets have been going good to both contests in which the Jackets appear. It will be impossible for the general public to see the game at the Athletic club tonight on account of a lack of space to seat any outsiders, but Saturday night's battle at the Auditorium will be for every loyal supporter of the Gold and White and lover of basketball.

Taking it all the way around this has been one of the most strenuous weeks since the close of the football season and bids fair to end with satisfaction on the part of fans, prep, college and general.

Girls' League Opens Basket Season Today

Four Games Will Be Played Between Fair Exponents of Cage Sport This Afternoon on Courts of City.

Two openings instead of one will take place this afternoon in prep basketball circles, for the Girls' Prep league and the newly organized Fifth District Girls' league will officially start the new year with the first of a long string of sporting events. There will be four games this afternoon.

The girls' league is composed of Fulton High, champions of the league last year; Decatur High, Marietta High, Woodberry and last but not the least, the newly organized team from the Dekalb school known as the Stone Mountain quintet.

The opener will be played at Stone Mountain, in the old boys' gymnasium, with DeKalb and Decatur as opponents, while the other will be played in Marietta with Woodberry playing the Cobb county girls.

Probably the most interesting of the two will be the one played at Stone Mountain, for the Mountain girls are reported as having one of the best teams in the league, while Decatur High made a very creditable showing Saturday night against the girls from College Park.

The Stone Mountain team will have several new faces on it, but all have played the game before and know the rudiments pretty good. Miss Goldsmith is captain of the squad and will play a forward position.

The Decatur team will be captained by Miss Estes, a forward from the 1919 Decatur team.

The game at Marietta will be worth while the trip to the Cobb county metropolis, for the Marietta girls are determined to beat the Woodberry team, then do the same to the Fulton High team when they meet. Miss Calley is captain of the Marietta team.

One team will be idle on each date, on account of having five teams in the league, and the Fulton High players will have the honor of being spectators on opening day.

The Fifth District league also opens Friday afternoon.

The Kirkwood team played the Fulton High girls Wednesday afternoon, and made a very creditable showing.

The games for the Fifth District league opening will be Kirkwood girls against East Point High girls at East Point, and the other game will be Fairburn High girls against College Park at College Park.

There are only four teams in this league and every team will play every scheduled day. The teams that make up the Fifth District league are Kirkwood High, College Park High, Fairburn High and East Point High.

Games in this league will be played every Friday afternoon at some convenient place to both teams.

FULTON HIGH GIRLS DEFEAT EAST POINT IN PRACTICE GAME

Coach Joe Bean's Fulton High girls' team defeated the East Point five by a count of 32 to 1 yesterday afternoon on the Fulton High court back of the courthouse.

The girls don't seem to be satisfied with winning one game a week, but come right back and win another game after their defeat of the Kirkwood girls Wednesday afternoon.

The Fulton High team has not finished booking games for this year's schedule. They are planning many road trips and also to have several good out of town teams appear in Atlanta.

They say that when Alexander was at the Atlanta, he told them they had won the state championship for two successive years, and that was perfectly true enough, then he told them they would walk away with the same honors this year and probably next, but whether this is true or not remains to be seen, inasmuch as the season has not started. The girls of Fulton High are still believing this and from the looks of the team now they have a good chance to make the prediction come true.

Miss Phillips, captain of the team, is playing a wonderful game at guard and bids fair to make the same place of all-state guard that she held last year.

A new girl has been added to the Fulton High team in the person of Miss Ruth Proctor, a forward from College Park. Miss Proctor seems to have stepped right into the vacant forward position made by the graduation of Nina Graves, and is holding it down like a veteran. Miss Proctor does all the shooting of fouls for Fulton High.

154 Games Favored.

Chicago, January 15.—Sentiment strongly favored adoption of a 154-game schedule when club owners of the American association met here today to lay plans for resumption of the game in 1920 on a pre-war basis. The election of officers and fixing player and salary limits was the other business up for consideration.

LONDON AUTHORITIES REITERATE ESTIMATE.

New York, January 15.—Prominent London authorities today reiterated a crop estimate of 11,700,00 bales, including linters, and their estimate of world's consumption at 12,500,000.

New York, January 15.—The cotton market just about recovered yesterday's losses during today's trading. March deliveries sold up to 36.60, compared with 35.58, the low point of yesterday afternoon, and 75 points net higher, closing at 36.50, with the general list closing steady at a net advance of 40 to 65 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 15 points to an advance of 13 points, near months being relatively easy in response to lower Liverpool cables. Houses with Liverpool connections were sellers at the start, while there was a renewal of Wall street selling on rumors that there would soon be an advance in discount rates.

Nervousness over the disturbances reported in Germany seemed to have subsided overnight, however, and prices soon turned firmer on buying by foreign and domestic trade interests, accompanied by reports of an advancing spot basis and better demand in the south. There was very little southern selling here, and the market was sensitive to buying orders, which became a little more general during the afternoon on reports that officials of the federal reserve board had stated no immediate advance in discount rates was contemplated, and the better tone of the stock market.

May sold up to 34.90 and July to 33.35, or 55 to 75 points net higher. Two January notices were reported out this morning, making four so far this month, but trading in that delivery was quiet.

Liverpool cables said that the decline there was due to wire troubles to the continent, with the market later steadier on a reported settlement of the railroad troubles. Other cables reported a strike of the telegraph department of the Belgian postoffice, which was supposed to explain the wire troubles referred to.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET IN STRONG ADVANCE

New Orleans, January 15.—Strong advances were made by cotton today, mainly because of more favorable advices from the spot department, although hope that the peace treaty would shortly be ratified by this country had much to do with the early buying as did also cablegrams from England telling of a turn for the better in the railroad labor situation.

On the opening call, during the first trades prices were 4 to 12 points under the close of yesterday. This small decline was immediately recovered and the market went to net gains which were constantly though gradually widened during the remainder of the session. Late in the day the list stood 63 to 80 points higher than the final quotation of yesterday. Closing prices were at net gains of 57 to 70 points.

Bullish sentiment was fostered by accounts of large spot sales after hours yesterday to Japanese interests and by claims by spot houses that both foreign and domestic mills were taking more interest in the lower grades.

There were reports in circulation that Italian mills were buying next crop cotton and shipping people stated that a steamer already in port was loading a cargo of cotton for Genoa that would probably count up to 34,500 bales, the largest cargo of cotton ever heard of. The day's exports were large and added to the steadiness.

Total clearances from all ports were 47,688 bales against 8,435 this day last year.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS.

CONTINENTAL TRUST HAD PROSPEROUS YEAR

The annual stockholders meeting of the Continental Trust company was held Wednesday, January 14, at 3 o'clock p. m. Reports of the officers covering the operations of the company for the year 1919, showed that the company had had a prosperous year.

The stockholders re-elected the board of trustees to serve for the year 1920: Joel Hurt, Dowdell Brown, R. Miflin Hood, A. B. Sims, Charles A. Bickerstaff, H. V. Casey, W. F. Pattillo, James T. Williams and Joseph G. Blount.

After the stockholders meeting the trustees met and elected the following officers: Joel Hurt, president; A. B. Simms, vice president; Donald T. MacKinnon, treasurer; Harry J. Crider, secretary, and Robert A. W. Barrett, trust officer.

The company is conducting an aggressive work. It is an important factor among Atlanta's financial institutions. Its real estate department, but recently installed, is under the management of E. Hilliard Spalding. This department already has a large clientele, and promises to be an important factor in the real estate field of Atlanta.

Dry Goods.

New York, January 15.—New prices named on narrow napped cottons were on a basis of 25 cents a yard for Amoskeag 1921 cloth. Dress goods opened for fall were priced on a basi sof 7½ to 10 per cent up from last prices. Ginghams and tickings were higher and cotton goods and yarns continued very firm. Burlaps were firm and spot goods very firm.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, January 15.—(Special.)—Opening lower on the decline in Liverpool, our large local traders became large buyers on the idea that the decline of the past week justified buying for a sharp reaction. They felt the bearish factors had been exhausted for the moment at least. In this view they were correct, as their buying turned the market, which advanced some 60 to 70 points, closing steady. The trade continue to be bullish, as they argue that, with the present demand for yarns, it will be an easy matter to carry over the surplus cotton which has been on hand for several years into the new crop year even at the discounts. They feel that while money may remain very high, no efforts can be made by the reserve bank board, which will seriously interfere with the present prices of cotton. As for the importations of goods of any kind from abroad, they believe they can be easily absorbed in the present mood of the American people. In November the percentage of exports to the United States from Great Britain had risen to 10 per cent of the total exports.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, January 15.—(Special.)—Opening prices were slightly lower, influenced by fear of possible action on the part of the federal reserve board raising discount rates. The market, however, improved quickly, prices advancing about 60 points from the previous close on large Liverpool and domestic trade demand, with the principal buying in the near position. So long as spot cotton continues in good demand and the basis advances gradually we look for steady markets and favor purchases on good recessions.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, January 15.—(Special.)—It was obvious from the start this morning that sentiment was much more optimistic, with the result that, following a somewhat lower opening, a demand started that continued practically throughout the session. Washington advices were much more optimistic regarding treaty prospects. A prominent New York bank in a semi-monthly publication stated that the prospects are for sustained industrial activity. Cables commented upon the fact that ratification of the peace treaty abroad was quickly followed by the removal of trade barriers, particularly in England and France, and prominent spot brokers were among the more aggressive buyers. New crop positions were exceedingly strong on reports of delayed plowing in south Texas owing to wet soil, and advices from the eastern belt indicating drastic cut in acreage the coming season. If the overnight news confirms the optimistic treaty dispatches, today's advance will not only be held, but, in our opinion, the market will sell sharply higher, as the technical position is very strong.

JOHNSTON BROS.

New York, January 15.—(Special.)—While Liverpool cables were very much lower than due, we gave only half-hearted response on the opening. Trade buying immediately appeared and was more or less in evidence all day long. Selling orders from Liverpool, New Orleans and the south supplied the demand. Wall street covered a fair amount of shorts. Notwithstanding the strength shown today, there are many who look with fear upon inflated conditions and continue of the belief that the peak of prices has been seen and liquidation will sooner or later reduce prices.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

NEW ORLEANS LETTER.

New Orleans, January 15.—(Special.)—Increasing activity in the spot department was the main incentive back of the buying that put the price of cotton higher today, although some of the early demand for contracts was based on cablegrams from England saying that the railroad labor troubles were about to be settled, and on claims from Washington that the peace treaty would shortly be ratified. It is not improbable that the near future of the market depends to a great extent on whether or not it is true that the spot demand is extending to the lower grades. Bullish traders frequently made the statement today that it was.

TONE OF STRENGTH IN STOCK MARKET

General List Rallies, But Money Uncertainties Intensified the Confusion in the Market—Oils and Specialties Weak.

New York, January 15.—An under-current of strength pervaded today's stock market, although the undefined attitude of the federal reserve bank and attendant monetary uncertainties intensified the confusion already prevalent in speculative circles. Rallies of two to eight points from the acute depression of the previous session were due, according to popular belief, to an oversold condition rather than to any more positive or potent influence.

The call money market was materially easier, the opening rate of nine per cent. holding until the final hour, when contrary to its usual course, loans were offered as low as six per cent.

So far as actual transactions were concerned, time money existed only in name. Yesterday's high rate of 8 1-2 per cent was bid for short maturities, but offers were almost negligible.

Stocks were at their best in the early afternoon, a spirited advance accompanying word from Washington that the officials of the central bank had adjourned without acting upon or even considering questions of higher interest or discount rates.

There were several outstanding features of weakness, notably secondary oils and specialities. Prominent among these wede Middle States Oil, Union Oil and Columbia Graphophone, in which gross reactions ranged from five to 17 1-2 points.

Foreign remittances weakened with another collapse in German and Austrian exchanges. Sterling derived no benefit from the more favorable weekly statement of the Bank of England.

The heavy bond market embraced investment rails, Liberty and international war flotations and numerous speculative industrials. Total sales, par value, were $17,200,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Newfoundland authorities report that there are less than 1,000 tons of bituminous coal at present at St. Johns, or 25,000 tons below normal. This is only a fortnight's supply for local purposes, and therefore vessels are refused bunker coal until supply is obtained from Nova Scotia, which probably will take several weeks.

Coffee.

New York, January 15.—A renewal of scattering liquidation caused an opening decline of 9 to 16 points in the market for coffee futures today and active months sold about 9 to 23 points net lower during the first few minutes. The firmer ruling of futures in Santos and the development of a better tone in the stock market after early irregularity checked selling, however, and prices rallied later on covering and trade buying, which was said to be partly for European account. May sold up from 15.70 to 16.14, or 27 points net higher, and closed at 16.00, with the general list closing at a net advance of 11 to 27 points. The official cables reported a decline of 225 reis in the Rio market and of 1-32d in the rate of Rio exchange on London, but the Santos spot market was unchanged and the early cable showing an advance of 125 to 225 reis in futures was followed by a further gain of 275 to 450 reis. The Constitution's Markets, Business and Financial News

Heavy Short Covering Features Day's Trading

By R. L. Barnum.

(The Constitution-Philadelphia Public Ledger Service. Copyright, 1920.)

New York, January 15.—Before the close of the market yesterday and again this morning there was a larger demand for stocks in the loan crowd than at any time since the downward price movement began last week. This in the face of the favorable overnight news confirmed the belief of those who had made up their minds yesterday that a recovery was due.

Bryan's prediction that the peace treaty would be ratified in the very near future, together with the announcement from the white house "that the outlook was hopeful," was responsible for part of the short covering that started this morning immediately after the opening showed higher prices, but the best news of all was the announcement made by the group of American, English, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish, Danish and Swiss bankers that a conference of international bankers had been called to discuss the financing of war-ridden Europe's needs and that actual plans for meeting the situation would be submitted at the conference.

During all of the months since the war ended, there has been endless talk of how much money was needed from us to finance foreign trade and what was going to happen to us unless we raised it. Only a few days ago, Sir George Paish said unless a $35,000,000,000 international pool was formed, we would all go down like a row of ten pins. Under such conditions sensible people in this country were not going to put their money into foreign bonds.

Clean Cut Business.

In the plan now proposed there is no charity. It is a clean cut business proposition on the part of lending countries to borrowing countries. The borrowers are to make a budget of their requirements and their income and unless the income is sufficient to meet the outgo there will be no loan made. In some cases collateal will be required in addition to a statement showing income and outgo. In any event the countries having printing presses which are adding to inflation, will get no loans. On the other hand, some of the inflation now outstanding must be reduced before the cashier's o.k. is obtained.

While this highly conservative step has been taken, Wall street bankers realize that some dark days are likely to come before the foreign situation passes beyond the danger mark. With easier money and the peace treaty ratified, the stock market may have quite a recovery. But such a recovery is not likely to be maintained until after more people who are now doing speculative business in and out of Wall street on borrowed money either voluntaily "get in out of the wet" or are forced to clean up.

Wall Street Gossip.

Call money opened today at 9 per cent but did not go any higher. In the last fifteen minutes, six per cent was touched. That meant that, for the day, all demands had been supplied, and time money was again quoted at 8 to 8 1-2 per cent.

Liberty bonds opened a fraction lower today and then were irregular. Two issues, the first 4½s and the Victory 4¾s are now selling below the low price made last year. Other Liberty issues have lost virtually all of the recovery made since the end of the year. Some banks are charging 5½ to 6 per cent for money to carry bonds which have not been paid for in full. Hence the selling by corporations and individuals.

Armour and company is planning to make an offering to its shareholders of the stock of the new Armour Leather company, which will in the future handle the leather and tannery end of the business. With other forbidden branches segregated in another way, the question arises what has been accomplished by the government in breaking up the meat packers' "trust?" The answer is that the only process so far discovered that has stood the test of the supreme court in breaking up trusts is the one being followed. There may be another way. But so far it has not been found. The one adopted is very slow, but in the end the desired results will be accomplished and without actually destroying property rights. In time the shareholders of Armour and company and the Standard Oil company and the American Tobacco company will become widely scattered and the stocks of subsidiary companies which have been distributed will not be held by the present owners.

Oils Decline Following Report.

Reports were circulated in brokerage offices today that the local banks have virtually agreed to "throw out" all of the promotion oil stocks as collateral for loans. This was responsible for today's drastic decline in oil stocks on top of the heavy losses registered during the past few weeks.

Middle States Oil and Union Oil were the features on the big board, the former declining about 16 points, while the latter was down about 5 points at the low level. On the curb market, where many promotion oils are listed, there were also some sharp reactions in prices. Among the features were Gilliland, White, Dominion and Simms. Losses in this group range from 3 to 7 points or more and at current levels these stocks are down from 20 to 30 points from the prices prevailing only a few weeks back.

Pan-American Petroleum and Transport and Mexican Petroleum issued statements for the first nine months of 1919, the statements being made in conjunction with listing new stock on the board. These reports, however, were almost lost sight of, in view of the turmoil in the oil group. The statement of Mexican Petroleum showed that the company earned $4,427,071 net in the time mentioned, which, after the payment of all preferred dividends, was equal to $9.08 per share on the outstanding common stock. This compares with earnings of $6,699,444 in the full year 1918, which was equal to $14.13 per share. Pan-America's report, which was for the same period, showed net income of $3,696,023. This was equal to $3.92 per share on the common stock of $50 par value. This company in 1918 earned $4,666,769 net, which was equal to $5 per share.

"Spontaneous Combustion."

"Spontaneous combustion" was the usual reply of bankers today to queries as to who originated the scheme of calling an international conference of experts to consider means of averting frequent bankruptcies. Recent European dispatches have spoken especially of the activity of Dr. Vissering, head of the Bank of The Netherland, in devising plans to stabilize conditions. It was learned today that Dr. Vissering had been one of the instigators of the present plan, in which neutral countries had showed an especial interest. The array of names, high in the financial and political world, which is attached to the document, was interpreted today in Wall street as an indication that the business interests in all countries are more heartily in favor of the present plan than they had been on any previous occasion.

Students of finance saw in the statement of the bankers a positive doctrine of opposition to the policy of inflation that has prevailed in some European countries during and after the war. Sir George Paish has represented the viewpoint, not uncommon in England and elsewhere in Europe, that large amounts of additional credit must be made available before there can be economic recovery. The bankers take the view that economic recovery is based on national solvency and that the test of solvency is the meeting of government expenditures by taxes. Opinion in conservative quarters is almost unanimous in indorsing this view, just as it was almost unanimous, during the war, in the view that a policy of inflation must be adopted.

To Form New Company.

According to dispatches from the west, prominent St. Louis and Chicago men, like G. H. Walker and Ogden Armour, are going to join some well-known Wall street men, including Percy Rockefeller and W. A. Harriman, in forming a company that will distribute new securities. Preference probably will be given to new western projects. This announcement may prove to be another chapter in the Vanderlip National City bank split-up.

Since Vanderlip left the National City, Vice Presidents Rich and McRoberts have resigned. Rich was a newsboy in Chicago when Vanderlip picked him up. McRoberts had been treasurer of Armour & Co. before he went at Vanderlip's solicitation to the National City. Admour is a director of the National City bank, with very close connections with that institution and its subsidiary, the National City company, which does financing such as that proposed by the new western company. This point was one of the objections raised by Attorney General Palmer.

Association Asks Options On 300,000 Bales of Low Grade

Sale of This Cotton to Be Made to Foreign Countries on Safe, Bankable Arrangement, Says Statement.

Columbia, S. C., January 15.—(Special.)—Following a conference of officials of the American Cotton association here today, it was decided to hold meetings all over the cotton belt in an effort to secure options on 300,000 bales of low grade cotton in order that a sale of this cotton may be effected to foreign countries, according to a statement issued after the conference. Officials of the association said that the sale of the cotton could be effected at a price ranging from 41 cents low middling to 35 cents ordinary f. o. b. shipping points.

The owners of the cotton are asked to give options good until February 10. The statement declares that the association has bona fide offers and it is declared that options are already being received from all sections of the belt.

The statement issued by the association follows:

"At a special meeting held in Columbia today all of the details of the plan concerning the sale of low grade cotton were submitted and were unanimously indorsed, it being the unanimous judgment of this representative committee that this sale would prove very advantageous to the producers and is safe, sound and bankable.

"The presidents of the American Cotton association of the various states, presidents of the Bankers' associations, presidents of the Farmers' unions and commissioners of agriculture are urged to secure options, good until February 10, under the following terms:

"The price to net the owner of the cotton, after paying all expenses of the transaction, including freight to port, 41 cents, low middling; 39 cents, strict good ordinary; 37 cents good ordinary, and 35 cents, ordinary, f. o. b. shipping points. Conditions of sale, 80 per cent cash as shipped, 20 per cent deferred payment, secured by a syndicate of foreign banks and guaranteed by their government, rendering the 20 per cent absolutely safe and bankable, bearing 6 per cent interest.

"It is urged that meetings be held in each county in the cotton belt immediately and these options secured. Blank options of the form required will be forwarded to the various state presidents of the American Cotton association and same can be secured from them by application. All particulars and details have been submitted to the best bankers and experts, who unanimously agree that the transaction will be perfectly safe and sound and will result in not only removing this amount of low grade cotton from the market, but will make a complete change in the cotton industries and result in an enormous additional direct sale abroad."

U. S. Banking Power Is Decentralizing, The Treasury Says

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, January 15.—Definite indication that the tendency of the banking power of the United States toward decentralization still is going on is given in a treasury department analysis of national bank resources made public today. According to the figures compiled by John Skelton Williams, comptroller of currency, as of November 17, last, there are 120 national banks with resources of more than $25,000,000 each in 25 states as against 19 such banks in five states 20 years ago.

On September 7, 1899, the comptroller's figures show 14 of the 19 banks with resources of more than $25,000,000 were located in New York city, one in Philadelphia, one in Boston, two in Chicago and one in St. Louis.

On November 17, 1919, there were 120 national banks having resources of more than $25,000,000. Twenty-five, or less than 21 per cent of these banks, as compared with 74 per cent in 1899, were located in New York state, all being in New York city; 17 in Pennsylvania; 9 in California; 7 each in Illinois, Missouri and Texas; 6 in Virginia; 5 each in Massachusetts, Minnesota and Ohio; 3 each in Colorado and Oregon; 2 each in Georgia, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey and Washington, and one each in Alabama, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

In 1899, five cities in the United States contained the 19 national banks with resources of $25,000,000 or more. Today the 120 national banks, with $25,000,000 or more, are distributed among 39 cities. Of those banks, 49 are in the New England and middle Atlantic states, including the cities of Boston, 5; New York, 22; Albany, 2; Buffalo, 1; Philadelphia, 10; Pittsburg, 6; Scranton, 1, and Newark 2. There are in Maryland, District of Columbai and the southern states 23 of the big banks, including the cities of Atlanta, 2; Baltimore, 2; Washington, 1; Richmond, 5; Norfolk, 1; Nashville, 1; Louisville, 1; Birmingham, 1; New Orleans, 1; Dallas, 3; Houston, 2; Fort Worth, 2, and Tulsa, 1.

The total resources of all the national banks on November 17, 1919, were $22,444,992,000, and $10,383,479,000 of these resources were held by the 120 largest national banks.

SEE-SAW MARKET IN CORN THURSDAY

Wheat Transportation Order Leaves Market Uncertain — Close Nervous at Gain—Oats and Provisions Up.

Chicago, January 15.—Uncertainty as to the effect of orders that 70 per cent of grain cars be devoted to handling of wheat led to a seesaw market today in corn.

The close was nervous at ⅛ to ½c net higher, with May $1.35⅝ to $1.33¾, and July $1.31⅞. Oats gained ⅜ to ⅝c. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 30c up.

Difference of opinion as to the significance of the method chosen to distribute grain cars was so nearly even that any radical change in the values of corn today seemed to be out of the question. Bears argued that the tendency of the order would be toward a burdensome accumulation of coarse grain stocks as there was not adequate outlet to the east provided. On the other hand, houses with country connections feared that the result would be to curtail still further the supply of cars to rural stations. In the end bulls had a slight advantage owing to strength in hog values and to seaboard buying of corn, oats and rye.

Export purchases of oats totaled 500,000 bushels. Besides, 300,000 bushels were taken by domestic distributors.

Owing to tardiness of cash demand provisions made only a moderate response to a sharp advance in the hog market.

London Stock Market.

London January 15.—(Special cable.)—The course of the stock markets today was a little disappointing especially at the outset of business when the general tone was dull and uncertain. Following the announcement that the railway men had accepted the terms of the government's offer, the markets developed a better tendency.

Home railway securities showed a general advance at the close and the oil market rallied. There were again some notable advances in miscellaneous markets, Dunlop Rubber and leading shipping stocks showing renewed strength. Money was wanted during the early hours in connection with heavy calls which fell due on recent new issues, and four per cent was paid for French accomodations. Later in the day, the market became easier on the whole. Surplus balances at the close were placed at 3 per cent. The tendency of the discount market was not quite so firm, especially after the figures of the bank return became known. Fewer bills were offered than was the case the previous day, and in view of the heavy maturities of treasuries, more inquiry for bills was experienced.

New York exchange was again less favorable, the rate closing at $3.71 5-8 as compared with $3.73 15-16 yesterday. French and Belgian francs continue to depreciate, Paris closing 42.50, against 42.09 and Brussels 42.35 against 42.00. Marks reached a new low level, 208 to the pound.

Macon Cotton Stock.

Macon, Ga., January.—(Special.)—Cotton stocks in Macon are the lowest at the present time since October 14, 1919. The number of bales now on hand total 49,412. The movement from Macon has been greater than receipts ever since cotton reached the forty-cent level.

REALTY SALE CLEARS $10,000 IN 3 MONTHS

Sale of Spring Street Lot Illustrates Phenomenal Expansion of Values.

Illustrating the phenomenal expansion of realty values in Atlanta, Smith & Ewing announced Thursday afternoon the sale of a lot on the corner of Spring street and West Peachtree place for $30,000. This price is $10,000 more than was paid for the same property three months ago, and the advance of 33 1-3 per cent is attributed to anticipated widening and repaving of Spring street, which is soon to be started by the city.

The above lot was purchased through Smith & Ewing from a client by R. M. Patterson, and its dimensions are 60x200 feet. The new owner of the lot, while giving out no announcement as to his intentions, is understood to be planning for a fine development in the near future.

Smith & Ewing also announced the sale of the corner of Orme and Alexander streets, a lot 100x215 feet, for Frank P. Rice for $12,000. This property was sold to a client of the realty firm, and no statement was made with reference to the use to which it will be put. The same firm also sold a corner lot for George W. Walker to a client for $3,500 cash.

A tribute to the service of Sovereign M. E. Hill was paid by camp members by the presentation of a silver loving cup, which was presented following an impressive speech by Consul Commander G. A. Wright, upon assuming the leadership of Capital City, after it was relinquished by Mr. Hill.

Full plans for a membership drive for "1920 members in 1920" will be outlined at a meeting of Capital City camp to be held next Wednesday night, and at the same time further steps will be taken toward the organization of a Woodman's circle grove as a ladies auxiliary to the camp. The work of organization is being conducted by Miss Clara B. Cherry and Mrs. H. W. Allingham.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY HERE SOON

The Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, with Eugene Ysaye conducting, which will give a concert at the Auditorium-Armory on Friday evening, the 23d, in the Civic concert series of the Atlanta Music Study club, is on its fourth tour of this very busy season.

This tour will take the organization as far south as New Orleans and Houston, Texas. It is a matter of great regret on the part of the orchestra management that more time cannot be devoted to this southern tour, following the big success met with last season. Requests have come for concerts from almost every city and town of consequence and more than a month could be spent in the south with concert engagements every day. This, however, has been impossible owing to the concert engagements at home and at nearby points and only a comparatively brief time can be spent on tour.

However, some of the most important musical centers of the south will be visited during the three weeks which will be spent on this tour and the orchestra will be heard by many thousands who will embrace this splendid opportunity of hearing this famous organization under its distinguished leader.

SYNDICATE OFFERS BIG ISSUE OF BONDS

A syndicate headed by the National City company, the Guaranty Trust company and Harris, Forbes & Co., is offering an issue of $4,340,600 Miami Conservatory district, Ohio 5½ per cent bonds. The issue is divided into series maturing from 1928 to 1946 and is offered on a basis to yield about 5 per cent.

The Miami Conservatory district is a political subdivision in the state of Ohio for the prevention of floods and the protection of cities, villages and farms in one of the most fertile sections of the state. When the work is completed such cities as Dayton, Hamilton and many others will be permanently protected against such disasters as have happened to them in the past. The bonds offered under the statutes and rulings are exempt from federal income taxes.

LARGEST POSTAL BILL IN COUNTRY'S HISTORY

Washington, January 15.—The largest postoffice appropriation bill ever presented, carrying $460,977,868 for maintenance of the department during 1921, was passed today by the house.

Provisions for continuing the existing airplane mail service after July 1 and for its extension were eliminated from the bill on a point of order by Representative Tincher, republican, Kansas, who held operation of such service permanently was unwarranted by law. Representative Walsh, of Massachusetts, as speaker pro tempore, sustained Tincher's objection. The item carried $85,500 for purchase of airplanes and the extension of aerial mail routes through the south and to Alaska. Supporters of aerial mail look to the senate to restore the provisions.

Appropriations for experiments in operation of motor vehicle truck routes and country motor express routes also were eliminated, members arguing that existing methods of mail delivery were adequate.

Extraordinary increases in prices of supplies and the rapid increase in the volume of business necessitated a large general appropriation, Chairman Steenerson, Minnesota, of the postoffice committee, said.

The bill is the second general appropriation measure to pass the house since it reconvened following the Christmas holidays. The first, covering the needs of the Indian affairs bureau, carried approximately $14,000,000.

Following passage of the postoffice bill today Republican Leader Mondell, of Wyoming, issued a statement saying that because of expeditious action in disposing of these two measures all of the thirteen general appropriation bills might be passed by April 1. This schedule, he forecast, might result in adjournment by June 5, several days before the opening of the republican national convention at Chicago.

"The date which I have suggested," the statement said, "will give us twenty weeks, or 120 legislative days, and much ought to be accomplished in that time. Now the duty of every member is to bend all our efforts and exert every energy in the direction of economy of expenditure."

The agricultural appropriation and the diplomatic and consular service bills are expected to be presented in the house soon, hearings having closed on both measures. The army and navy appropriation bills will probably be the last to be considered, since members of the committee desire to have the reorganization bills for both branches of the service passed by both house and senate before appropriating for the needs during next year.

$150 Damage by Fire.

Clothing and other articles belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hanlon in their home at 127 West Alexander street were damaged by fire to the extent of $150 just before noon Thursday. The fire originated in the bed room of Mr. and Mrs. Hanlon, which is in the front of the house. The house was saved by the prompt action of the fire department.

Macon Negress Gives Age to Enumerators Of the Census as 116

Macon, Ga., January 15.—Special.)—The California woman who gave her age as 112 years when the census enumerators called on her, will have to "go way back and sit down," for she is a "spring chicken" when put alongside of Millie Webb, a Macon negress, who was today enrolled by a Macon census enumerator with 116 years opposite her name. Millie told the enumerator she remembered the war of 1812 and was considerably past fifty years of age when the War Between the States broke out. She is a helpless invalid at the present time.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR 12,136 SOLDIERS

Report Has Just Been Completed by Eligibility Squad of Federal Board.

Vocational training is available for 12,136 soldiers, sailors and marines in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee. This report has just been completed by the eligibility squad of the federal board following a survey of conditions in this district. Of this number, 1,508 men are eligible for immediate enrollment in educational institutions or shops, in which they may acquire desired training, their cases having already been approved. More than 1,300 are now in training in this district.

The eligibility squad studied each of the 24,460 cases included in the Fifth district's list of disabled veterans. Some 12,324 of these are to be held up until the individuals care to avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the federal board, they having as yet made no response to efforts designed to give them vocational training.

Federal board officials are eager to induce every eligbgile man to accept training and will concentrate their efforts upon the 11,507 who, with the 1,508 men whose cases have been approved, have manifested some interest in vocational education and whose applications have progressed to varying degrees.

Lack of medical data and evidence to the effect that disabilities were caused by service for Uncle Sam is given as the principal cause for delay in passing upon the cases of the 11,507 men who may take advantage of vocational training. The fact that tubercular, or other serious disease cases, have been placed in hospitals for treatment, explains many of the failures on the part of individuals to take training. A number of other reasons are given for the apparent lack of interest in vocational training manifested by men who originally made application.

The fact that 12,324 are to be held up pending the concentrated effort upon those individuals who have manifested an interest in training does not mean that they will not receive consideration from the board, but places the initiative upon the individuals rather than upon board officials. Notice is being given each of these men that his case is held up and advising him that if he desires vocational training he must notify the board of this desire. It is anticipated that this notification will inspire many men, who have so far failed to take advantage of the vocational opportunities offered, to immediate action.

The eligibility squad, made up of some twenty experts from Washington, spent five days examining the records at district headquarters here. Their efforts will make possible the concentration of effort in the fifth district upon the most meritorious cases, and the federal board organization under the direction of Dr. C. G. Schulz, district vocational officer, will be concentrated upon rendering a real service to those most in need.

A case analysis of the 24,460 disabled men originally registered in the fifth district shows that 629 are complete in every detail; 92 are deficient in data regarding status of dependents; 124 lack dependency data, also copies of discharge from army or navy, 323 are deficient only as regards discharge; 3,442 are somewhat doubtful and are lacking in several necessary particulars, 1,516 are eligible for training under section 3 only; 879 have been approved by central office; 934 have been closed tentatively in the district files; 3,571 have been closed by the Washington office; 7,819 have been transferred to other districts; 407 are mental cases; 114 are temporarily unable to take training on account of illness; 1,030 are suffering from tuberculosis.

"DIVORCE WEEK" WILL SMASH ALL RECORDS

The undefended divorce docket for the January term of the Fulton superior court, which will be tried the week of January 26, before Judge John T. Pendleton, was partially completed Thursday afternoon by Deputy Clerk J. Clark Lewis. Two hundred and fifty-eight cases have been handed in up to date, which represents one half of the cases eligible for trial at this time. "Divorce week," this term promises to be the happy ending of more unhappy marriages than any "divorce week" yet held in Fulton county.

PARKER-HOLLAND CO. CONVENTION CLOSES

Vaudeville Acts and Other Entertaining Features Help Make Banquet Success.

The dealers' convention of the Parker-Holland Co., Georgia distributors for Chandler and Cleveland automobiles, came to a brilliant close last night with one of the most successful banquets ever given by an Atlanta automobile concern.

The feast was made more highly enjoyable for all those present by the introduction of many attractive vaudeville stunts, including a revue of Sennett's Bathing Beauties, Hawaiian music and dancing, several splendid vocal solos and other features that will make it easy for this organization to get a gathering of their dealers any time in the future.

E. R. Parker, president of the company, acted as toastmaster, and all agree that though he is a wonderful automobile distributor and has surrounded himself withone of the best dealer organizations in the south, that it is possibly as host and toastmaster that he excels.

There were more than fifty dealers, or representatives of his dealer organizations, several invited guests outside of the automobile busines, including J. R. Smith, one of Atlanta's best known business men and boosters; Mr. Perkerson, cashier of the Fourth National bank, and representatives of the press, with W. B. Westcott of the Cleveland factory as the guest of guests.

J. M. Dunlap, sales manager and vice president of the Chandler factory was to have been present, but owing to pressing busines at the factory, and preliminary arrangements for the National show in Chicago next week was unable to attend, however, he telegraphed his mesage to the Georgia Chandler dealers.

Mr. Parker tok this occasion to tell his dealers of his wonderful plans for 1920, part of which was to persuade his factories to increase his allotment of 1,530 cars by at least four hundred more, as his dealers canot be satisfied from his present allotment.

Other members of the Parger-Holland organization told the dealers just what would be done for them in the way of co-operation from their special departments. One of the most interesting of these was the message from "Bill" White the service manager, that he would spend his entire time in the field working with the deaelrs and their service organizations.

Mr. Westcott, from the Cleveland factory, tol dthem briefly of the first conception of the Cleveland car and the ideal attempted in its construction as wel as pertinent facts about the factory organization.

Just as the meeting was to come to a close, Carl Thompson, retail sales manager, presented Mr. Parker with a beautiful diamond stickpin as a token of appreciation from the members of the Parker-Holland organizataion.

FAIR WEATHER TODAY, SAYS THE FORECASTER

The slight drizzle that began to beset Atlanta last night in an effort to damper the ardor of the "dry" celebration, is scheduled to be entirely forgotten this morning, so that Atlanta may enjoy a fair day and not be worried by the unpleasant sorts of weather that have a habit of seeking her out.

Most of Thursday was fine and highly enjoyable; and people find it remarkably easy to credit the official weather forecast that promises us fair weather for Friday.

NOTHING TAKES THE PLACE OF CALOMEL!

Your Doctor Will Tell You That Nothing Takes the Place of Calomel. Examine Your Prescriptions, and You Will Find That "Hydrarg. Chlor. Mite." (the Latin Term for Calomel) Usually Heads the List.

Calomel is the most necessary, the most important and the most beneficial of all medicines.

Without this valuable drug the world could scarce exist, as there is no substitute for calomel. Only calomel stirs the sluggish liver to its normal functions, stimulating the flow of bile and acting as an intestinal antiseptic.

AXON LIVER TABLETS are a nauseless and effective form of Calomel, pleasant to take with no griping or bad after effects. The Calomel in Axon Liver Tablets is combined with vegetable ingredients which sweep the drug from the system and make it unnecessary to follow the dose with salts or oil.

If you are bilious, headachy, with that run-down tired feeling, with sallow complexion, sour stomach and bad taste in the mouth, you need CALOMEL—and the most pleasant and effective way in which Calomel can be taken is in AXON LIVER TABLETS.

AXON LIVER TABLETS can be had at your druggist's—25c a box of twelve 2 grain tablets.

Entertaining Show Is Given By Neil O'Brien's Minstrels

Neil O'Brien's Minstrels made their annual bow to a local audience at the Atlanta theater last night, and, as usual, proved about the most entertaining offering of the kind of the season. They will be here for two more night performances and matinee on Saturday. But there is one lamentable fact in connection with the show this year, which all lovers of minstrelsy will mourn. Listen, while the sad news is told:

There was, as always, a wonderful roster of singers and comedians. The singers delighted even unto many encores and the comedians brought laughter until it 'most hurt. Among the fun-makers there are included many old-time favorites and some new ones who took many of the laurels. There is Bert Swor, "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, Dan Fitch, Frank Quinn, Fred Miller, Bobby Gossans, Charles Strong, Major Nowak and George Faust, but—here are the sad tidings—Neil O'Brien himself isn't with the company.

There is a note at the head of the program from Mr. O'Brien in which he says that he thinks he can serve the amusement public better by devoting all his time to the production of his shows. Maybe so, maybe so. But it will take some wonderful shows to make up for the absence of the one and only Neil.

For real fun, it is probable that the O'Brien minstrels lead them all. The laughs come fast and frequent, and the jokes are always of the kind that don't bring any feeling of embarrassment to any in the audience. The whole performance goes with a swing and a spontaneous comaradarie that delights. And the stage settings are always artistic and very effective, probably improved by the fact that there is no attempt at any over-elaboration.

The show this year, after the customary first part, includes a number entitled "A Song and Dance." This includes the famous ragtime idea that this organization has made famous. Then there is a screamingly funny farce, entitled "The Potato Peeler," which has to do with the experiences of an "ex-doughboy," who tries to pose as a war hero, without the actual veracity to back up his claims. "Sugarfoot" Gaffney does excellent work in this and is the star of the number.

Next comes Bert Swor, that old friend of the blackface art, who steps out on the stage and talks in the way in which only Bert Swor can. He has a new line of chatter this year, and it "gets over" with big success.

The final number is entitled "The League of Expla-nations," and the Inali scene shows the conference hall where the representatives of all the nations are assembled. Gaffney and Frank Quinn are the chief funmakers in this.

Among the soloists whose vocal efforts brought many encores last night were James Baradi, with "Oh, What a Pal Was Mary;" John Worland, with "I Love You, Just the Same, Sweet Adeline;" James F. Wallbank, in "Give Me You, and the World Will Be Mine;" J. Lester Haberkorn, in "The Heart of a Fool;" "I Can Make Tame Wild Women," sung by Frank Quinn; "A Good Man Is Hard to Find," sung by Sugarfoot Gaffney; "Room 202," by Bert Swor, and "Take Your Time," by Dan Fitch.

All in all, it is a good minstrel, and all minstrel lovers in the city will go and enjoy themselves to the utmost. They will fill the house at every performance, and it is well worth such attendance. But, again, there is a large portion of regret that Neil O'Brien isn't there himself.

RALPH T. JONES.

Loew Vaudeville.

Jimmy Burke and Eleanor Durkin, talented specialists in song and melody, featured the bill presented by Loew's Grand for the latter half of the week. While their songs were not unramiliar to the Atlanta people, they made up for the lack of novelty by their good voices, their musical talent and comedy features that went big with the crowded houses.

Simmons and Bradley, in a skating specialty, executed intricate dances of the most thrilling and dificult variety, doing stunts on the rollers that would have done credit to performers on less slippery footing. In this act, the grace of the performers, the pretty costumes and the varied hues of the spot lights all combined to make up a performance that was thoroughly enjoyed.

The two Ronallas, acrobats and comedians, put on a series of feats that showed not only marvelous strength and prowess, but a synchronized team work that showed them to be high-class artists. As tumblers of the eccentric variety, they are of the best that have been seen this season in Atlanta.

"Salvation Molly," a melodrama, with a Chinatown setting, and involving the white slave traffic, secret service agents and a heroic Salvation Army lassie, who foils the direful plans of a Chinese tong leader, gave the audience a series of thrills. This one-act drama, well staged and well acted, is one of the good features of the bill.

Playing the role on a re-married widow, Madeline Travers is presented in a picture play that has a wonderfully dramatic finale. After her second wedding, she hears that the reported death of her former spouse is untrue. The situation presented is unique and melodramatic, and the picture, which is a Fox porduction, is well worth seeing.

PAUL JONES.

Keith Vaudeville.

At the Lyric.

No one would have ever thought that anything new would have developed in a ventriloquail offering. But it has. Hugh McCormick and Grace Wallace sprung it in Atlanta when they appeared at the Lyric last night as headliners of the weekend Keith vaudevile bill. They presented an offering that is a genuine novelty if there ever was such a thing.

First of all comes the setting, an extraordinary affair that shows why the novelty is called "At the Seashore." Then there are stunts with dummies that even McCormick and Wallace have never attempted before. There is nothing slow about the act which proved a winner from start to finish.

It's a rather difficult thing to say just which act on the bill is really the best. The whole show, as a matter of fact, is good, and a considerable improvement over the bill of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Sterling Rose Trio opened the bill with an excellent acrobatic turn. In number two position are Mary Duncan and Dan Casler with Irving Berlin songs for Miss Casler that forced her to take encores. One of such encores by the way, is a nifty song about "the high cost of loving" that you want to hear.

McCormick and Wallace are in number three position. Then there are the Bowman brothers in a blackface comedy turn that is all the advance notices claimed for it. Particularly a speech by one of the brothers.

Dedie Velder, who is almost as much like Charlie Chaplin as Charlie himself, closes the bill with a lavishly staged novelty in which there are some pretty girl dancers. The pictures are the Pathe News, Gaumont Topics and Bray Pictorial.

Career of Robert B. Mantell.

(Coming to the Atlanta.)

In Ayrshire, not far from the birthplace of Robert Burns, was born February 7, 1854, Robert Bruce Mantell, foremost classic tragedian of this generation on the English-speaking stage, who comes to the Atlanta theater Monday night for the week. When the boy was 5 years old his parents moved to Belfast, which has given rise to the mistake sometimes made that the tragedian was born in Ireland. It was in Ireland, however, that Mantell studied for the stage, and he made his first appearance in a theater in Belfast when a boy of 19, playing De Mauprat in "Richelieu," at a church benefit. His really professional debut, however, was made at the Theater Royal, Rochdale, England, October 21, 1878, as the Sergeant in Dion Boucicault's "Arrah-na-Pogue." Seats for the Mantell engagement at the Atlanta theater are now on sale.

Bathing Girl Revue.

(At the Criterion.)

With the current movie attractions enjoying such satisfactory popularity generally, it is not surprising that this week brings a double novelty to the Criterion theator. The double novelty, a dazzling combination of feminine loveliness and a filmed satire of convulsing, yet heroically patriotic plot, is revealed to amusement-seekers in Mack Sennett's "Yankee Doodle in Berlin" upon the screen and Mack Sennett's Bathing Beauties in Atlanta for the first time professionally outside the Sennett studios. The shapely, wholesome and beautiful models of feminine perfection are seen in person in their fetching costumery and in an act specially designed and lighted to reveal them at their athletic best. Bigger even than Sennett's recent success, "Mickey," is his latest screen feature, "Yankee Doodle in Berlin," and in it Sennett, while resuming his role of humorist, satirist and burlesque expert, appears in the role of a prophet of patriotism and a first aid to history; for Sennett has shown up the kaiser in his true colors.

"Everywoman."

(At the Rialto.)

Only two more days, including today, remain of the engagement of "Everywoman," at the Rialto theater, where it is completing the second week of its extended run. The beautiful and dramatic screen version of Walter Browne's great morality play has proved even better adapted to its present form, under the Paramount-Artcraft seal, than for a stage play; and its Atlanta engagement will be recalled as one of the leading events of the season. The musical setting, played by Wood's Rialto orchestra, is a feature of the presentation, which is at the usual prices.

William S. Hart.

(At the Vaudette.)

That sterling and rugged hero, Bill Hart, is the star of the pictorial feature at the Vaudette today and Saturday—"Shark Monroe"—one of his strongest plays. With him on the same bill is the always delightful Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond," and Halligan and O'Rourke, the tuneful Irishmen, in their vaudeville offering, "Songs and Smiles," replete with melody and sparkling with humor.

"Should a Woman Tell?"

(At the Strand.)

Alice Lake in her new play has the answer to one of the severest questions of modern life—"Should a Woman Tell?"—and that remarkable photoplay, backed by an admirable and brilliant Sennett comedy, featuring the original Sennett Bathing Girls, has been packing the Strand all this week. The play is one of peculiar interest, both to men and women. It deals with a young girl whose past contains one dark chapter. Shall she tell the man she really loves and who loves her? Her decision—her action, and its results form the theme of a most unusual drama. In the Sennett comedy, "A Lady's Tailor," the Bathing Girls are as shapely as ever. They wear some beautiful garments.

"The 13th Commandment."

(At the Forsyth.)

Miss Ethel Clayton in her latest Paramount-Artcraft release, "The Thirteenth Commandment," opened to crowded houses Thursday for the rest of the week. The play is one of singular interest to both sexes—so much so that where they attend in pairs the management is accustomed to looking out for possible squabbles. Maybe you didn't know there was a thirteenth commandment—or maybe you read Rupert Hughes' great book, from which the picture was made. It's a good one. Gail Henry in "Gas," a Christie comedy, is on the same bill.

Alaskan Dog Team Advertises Picture Coming to Tudor

Traffic was almost stopped at Five Points Thursday afternoon, when a regular Alaskan dog team, driven by a full-blooded Indian and carrying an honest-to-goodness Esquimau as a passenger, drove through the heart of Atlanta.

The team, the dogs and the Indian and Esquimau are the property of the Canadian government, and are bonded to insure their safe return to Canada by February 15. But they have been loaned for this week and next to the management of the Tudor theater to advertise "Back to God's Country," the lavish production of James Oliver Curwood's famous story. "Wapi the Walrus," which will be the attraction at the Tudor all next week.

The Indian, whose name is Shooting Star, is the same sort of quaint character that figures in the Curwood picture, and so is the little Esquimau, who has been christened a name that means "Little Bear." With them, the management of the Tudor will have on exhibition in its lobby during the showing of the picture a genuine polar bear and a splendid collection of furs, antlers and other hunting trophies from the Canadian wilds.

"Back to God's Country" is released by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. It is said to be a startling picture, for it was made right in the wilds of Canada, farther north than any movie company has ever penetrated. To make the picture cost one life from freezing, and many of the actors had their feet frozen. Bears, lions, otters, deer, porcupines, wolves and wild cats are among the wild animals in the picture.

PLAN HIGHER TAX TO HELP TEACHERS

Generally Believed in Political Circles That the Finance Committee Will Recommend Increased Rate to Provide Necessary Funds.

Following the appearance of several department heads of the school system before the nance committee of council Thursday morning, the opinion was freely expressed in political circles that the committee's budget recommendations would advocate an immediate raise in Atlanta's tax rate of twenty-five cents per hundred dollars tax to provide funds for the expected increase in teachers' salaries.

Many speakers came before the committee at the meeting, the teachers being represented by three department heads and several witnsses. Among the speakers for the plan were Fred E. Winburn, president of the board of education; Superintendent W. F. Dykes, and Mrs. Annie T. Wise, principal of the Commercial High school.

Among the scores of people present interested in school and municipal activities were: Robert F. Maddox, president of the Atlanta National bank; Mrs. Harry P. Hermance, C. E. Phillips, president of the Atlanta Teachers' association and Mrs. John Spalding, president of the City Parent-Teacher's association.

Teachers Strike.

That a teacher's strike was within the pale of possibility developed in the addresses of two of the speakers, Superintendent Dykes and Miss Nora Goodman, a teacher at the Spring street school.

"Suppose all of your teachers left," said Miss Goodman, "what would you do?"

"We'd have lots of money then," returned Chairman A. J. Orme.

"You may have to give us the money now," continued th eteacher. "It would be looking a little ahead to pay us proper salaries now."

It was stated by advocates of the teachers' petition that $238,000 would be necessary to cover the salary increases sought by the teachers, with the suggestion that it should be included on the finance sheet for the first six months of 1920.

That it was impossible to keep the public school system a well-oiled and efficient machine on the present income was clearly pointed out in the addresses of Superintendent Dykes and Mr. Winburn.

"We can't accomplish the things we ought to, when we are so badly handicapped for funds," said Superintendent Dykes. "The teachers haven't made any threats, but I know they are deeply concerned. If council refuses their plea, there will be intense disappointment. Not only disappointment. It's going to amount to more than disappointment."

Committee's Attitude.

The committee's attitude toward the petition was explained by Chairman Orme.

"There isn't a member of this committee who isn't for you; every one of us favor doing just what you ask, but this is the question that confronts us: Where can we find the money?"

In answer to this question Mrs. Wise stated:

"We come right back to the point we were trying to stress in the bond election last April. The city is trying to live on the same income that it had years ago. Is there a home where the living expenses have not increased tremendously? And yet we are trying to make the city do its housekeeping with the same old figures."

"In that other election," Mrs. Wise continued, "there were those among you who misled many voters. I say 'misled' advisedly. Fortunately we know who those gentlemen were. This time there shall be no defeat."

CALHOUN SCHOOL CLUB ADVOCATES INCREASED PAY

Proposed floating of bonds for the junior high schools of Atlanta and raises in teachers' salaries were the main issues in the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association of Calhoun school yesterday afternoon.

At this gathering the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, we, the Parent-Teachers' association of Calhoun school, realizing the deplorable condition of our school system and the crying need for better buildings and equipment; and,

Whereas, lamenting the fact that many of our best and most experienced teachers are leaving the system because they are not receiving salaries commensurate with the value of their services; and,

Whereas, we, as parents and loyal citizens, are not willing that our children should be deprived of that sacred heritage, the best educational facilities in our power to give, nor that our city should fail to take its proper place among cities of equal rank and importance; therefore, be it

Resolved, first, That we support with all the influence at our command the movement inaugurated by the Federation of Labor and by our board of education and our superintendent of schools for a bond issue of sufficient amount to place our school system on a modern and up-to-date basis as to buildings and equipment;

Second, That we heartily approve and indorse the request of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association, now being considered by city council, for better salaries for all of our teachers;
